Saigon Next Stop On Nixon's Trip?

Visit To Troops Is Expected Tomorrow

BANGKOK (UPI)—White House sources said today President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon will fly to Saigon tomorrow.

The sources said Nixon would go there to "visit the troops" and that Mrs. Nixon would spend her time visiting military hospitals in the South Vietnamese capital.

There had been speculation on such a visit since Nixon set out on his seven-nation tour of Asia and Communist Romania, but the White House has refused to comment for security reasons.

Today, White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler would not confirm or deny the reports, saying only, "I don't have any information at all to give you."

FLIGHT PLANS

But other sources on the President's staff said they would leave here tomorrow, probably before noon (1 a.m. EDT) aboard Nixon's plane, Air Force One. He had kept his schedule free tomorrow for such a trip, as had Mrs. Nixon.

Nixon conferred today with Thai Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn and Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and then with U.S. Far Eastern envoys, including Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to Saigon.

Khoman said Nixon told them the United States would begin the gradual withdrawal of the 47,000 American troops in Thailand as the war in Vietnam tapers off.

ABRAMS' VISIT

Saigon dispatches said Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, chief of U.S. forces in Vietnam, flew here today to talk with Nixon and discuss the possibility of

Reagan Denies Employee Cut Is Political

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State government embarked today on a new economy drive ordered by Gov. Ronald Reagan to drastically cut back costs during the 1970 election year.

Most Democrats cautiously withheld comment, but one leader termed the plan "ridiculous" and said it was inspired to boost the Republican Governor's expected re-election bid. Reagan denied it.

The program calls for a reduction in the work force below the level of 1967 when Reagan took office and envisions the abandonment of some state services deemed not of the highest priority.

"This is the only way we will ever be able to secure significant tax reduction," the economy-minded chief executive told a special news conference yesterday.

Under the new procedure, a sum less than the funds now appropriated under the current budget will be earmarked for

Bolinas Harbor Takeover Bill Gains Ground

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to carry out the dissolution of the Bolinas Harbor District last night cleared its last legislative committee with a unanimous "do pass" recommendation by the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill (AB) 2295), by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, went to the upper house floor for a vote that will send it to the governor's desk for signature into law after Assembly concurrence with minor amendments.

The committee vote apparently was the final defeat for several directors of the district who promoted a campaign against the bill. There was no opposition voiced at the night hearing on the bill, and it won support from the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association.

The association opposed the bill before it was amended to provide for the possibility of a harbor refuge in the lagoon.

Bagley introduced his bill at the request of the Marin County Board of Supervisors after voters in the harbor district balloted in March to dissolve the district.

Bagley's bill will transfer ju-

Moon Pictures Released; Rocks Excite Scientists

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts early today viewed spectacular films of their moon landing journey, including Neil A. Armstrong's first step on the surface and clear footprints in the lunar dust.

Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins stayed up after midnight in their quarantine quarters to look at 16mm movie and 70mm still photos.

Some of the film was released to news media today. It has been undergoing decontamination for three days to destroy possible lunar bacteria.

John McLeaish, space agency public affairs officer quarantined with the astronauts, reported the spacemen showed extreme interest in the pictures, which he described as excellent.

"During the descent," McLeaish said, "you can see the landmarks they flew over and the blowing dust kicked up. You see Neil proceeding down the ladder to the surface.

"The American flag they planted is very clear and gives the impression of waving in the wind," he added. "You can very

New Riches: U.S. Budget Has Surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government balanced its budget or the first time in nine years during the business year just concluded, possibly causing the Nixon administration an embarrassment of riches in its effort to extend the income tax surcharge.

Figures for the fiscal year that ended June 30 showed federal income exceeded spending by $3,073,988,000, the first time since 1960 the government's books had been in the black and the biggest surplus since 1957.

The surplus was a stark contrast to the $25.2 billion deficit recorded during the previous fiscal year. Both the Nixon and Johnson administrations had predicted a surplus but the size came as a surprise. As recently as July 8, Budget Director Robert P. Mayo told the Senate Finance Committee the surplus would be about $900 million. Income tax receipts provided most of the increase.

Mayo used the forecast of thin surplus as an argument in

Doctors Will Launch Health Care Checks

By PATRICK SULLIVAN

The Marin Medical Society plans late this fall to launch a program to police fees and services rendered by its members to patients covered by the Medicare and Medi-Cal programs.

And for persons not covered by government health plans, the society is preparing to step up publicity of its long standing grievance prodedure, the existence of which, a local official acknowledged, has been practically a well-kept secret.

The new thrust — especially in the area of Medicare and Medi-Cal — is a result of mounting pressure directed at the county level throughout the state by outraged legislators and government officials stirred by reports of abuses in

IN A LONELY MOMENT—A young girl gazes on the out-of-doors through the screened and ornamentally barred window of her room at Marin County Juvenile Hall. JUVENILE HALL

First Contact Is Sometimes Key To Youngster's Future

By JOANNE GRANT

(First of four articles)

Jimmy hung his head as his meager possessions were listed on an envelope and placed inside for safekeeping.

He responded lethargically to the gentle questions of the fatherly man leaning over him.

The questions concerned the child's health. Had he been drinking or taking drugs? Had he been to a doctor lately?

The simple process was the skinny, scared 12-year-old's introduction to Marin County Juvenile Hall one day recently.

Jimmy (not his real name) had been drinking wine. His parents could not be reached. He would stay, at least temporarily.

Edward N. Donald, supervisor of the junior boys unit, had been handling the situation just as he had outlined earlier it should be done. "The first contact with the child is important," he had said. "If it's not overly negative, we have a chance of rehabilitation."

He led Jimmy away for a shower and clean clothes — the uniform levis and tee shirt or sweatshirt that all boys at Juvenile Hall must wear—and generally hate.

As Jimmy was escorted down the walk, the wheels of the juvenile intake unit began spinning to decide whether Jimmy would be released or kept.

The initial investigation takes about 90 minutes with decisions made individually within state law which requires releasing a minor immediately to his parent guardian or responsible relative, unless release would be destructive to the minor or dangerous to the community, or if he has no place to go.

As Jimmy was led to bed to sleep off the wine, intake officer John David Rogers arrived with the news he would be there a while. A quick record check had revealed he'd been in trouble before. The wine was a violation of probation.

A deeper investigation would be made, with Jimmy's probation officer called in. (Probation officers are assigned within hours after a person first arrives at the hall.)

If the probation officer believed he should be detained he would get a court hearing within 72 hours.

Probably, though, he would go home.

"We have a real dedication to keeping kids in their own homes as much as possible," said Fredric M. Latty, supervisor of field services for the probation department.

"Real life is fought in a real arena. The institution is an ar-

Atom Peril Linked To Spy Ship Loss

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congressional investigators have warned that the same "serious deficiencies" which resulted in capture of the USS Pueblo and loss of the EC121 intelligence plane have impaired the nation's ability to meet a nuclear attack.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, responding to the criticism, said steps have been taken to correct intelligence deficiencies. He hinted that ships like the Pueblo now have orders on how to defend themselves against an attack such as the one which snared the intelligence ship.

The congressional criticism came in the form of a report from a special armed services subcommittee which conducted a five-month investigation into both the Pueblo capture and the downing of the EC121 by North Korean fighter planes. In general, the report said the military brass was more at fault than the Pueblo's crew for that incident.

"There exist serious deficiencies in the organizational and administrative military command structure of both the Department of the Navy and the Department of Defense," the report said. The deficiencies, it added, rest in the fact that while the military can gather intelligence, it was unable, in the case of the Pueblo and EC121, "to relay this information in a timely and comprehensible fashion to those charged with the responsibility for making decisions."

As a result, the report said, "our military command structure is now simply unable to meet the emergency criterion" of instant response to nuclear attack laid down by President Richard M. Nixon.

Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the investigating subcommittee, added: "We have never demonstrated any capability to get a message from a scene of crisis to the President, and a message back."

The report called for creation of a presidential study group, composed of both military and civilian officials, to make "a complete review of our military-civilian command structure and its capability to cope with emergency situations."

As the report was released yesterday, Laird disclosed a letter he had sent to Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Laird said the Defense Department had already taken steps "to correct a number of deficiencies...in the area of military intelligence.

Air Force Tries To Cut C5A Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has served notice it may hold up further purchases of the C5A supertransport in order to get major revisions in its multibillion dollar contract with the plane's manufacturer.

Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. said yesterday, "I am reserving judgment" on buying the remaining 39 of a proposed 120-model purchase pending negotiations with Lockheed-Georgia Corp.

Asked if the orders holdup isn't a negotiating weapon, he told reporters: "It certainly is."

Seamans met with newsmen as his assistant secretary for installations and logistics, Philip Whittaker, presented a 150-page report on the controversial C5A program requested last April 30 by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

The inquiry was ordered after Congress became increasingly critical of large cost overruns once purported to be as much as $2 billion in the program to build the world's largest air transport.

The Whittaker report said the over-all program cost has gone up 52 per cent, from an original $3.369 billion to $5.125 billion. Both he and Seamans contended this compares favorably with other aircraft programs.

Both made it clear the Air Force wants more C5As for rushing huge amounts of military equipment overseas and that they believe it is a good aircraft.

Average flyaway cost for each C5A is now $26.9 million and could go higher, the report stated. Further cost increases are possible, Whittaker said, and if they become significant the program might be jeopardized.

When pressed for amplification, he replied: "I'm not sure what I mean about significant."

The report found "no clear evidence" Lockheed had "bought" the C5A contract in 1965 with a phoney bid.

Whittaker said, however, Lockheed's cost estimate was too low and the company was "overly optimistic" about how it could handle expected technical problems. A sharp increase in inflation paralleling the Vietnam war also helped bloat the cost of building the plane.

The government's commitment to Lockheed now stands at buying 81 planes. This includes 58 under the initial production run and 23 under part of the second production run authorized last January. This will equip four squadrons.

PLANS FOR 'THE ROCK'

Texas financier Lamar Hunt is proposing converting abandoned Alcatraz Island into a money-making tourist attraction, complete with tours of "The Rock's" famous jail and a replica of Apollo 11. At a meeting of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors yesterday, Hunt unveiled plans that include: construction of a plaza area, underground museum and a 364-foot replica of the famous moon rocket and landing module with an observation deck for a panoramic view of the Bay Area.

New Reports Cites Cigarette Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Cigarette smoking continues to be confirmed as a serious health hazard to the people of this country, one which is the cause of much unnecessary disease and death."

That's how Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch introduced yesterday the Public Health Service's third report on smoking.

The 135-page document cited new links with disease, summarized previous findings, and added "no substantial negative evidence has appeared which refutes these judgments."

New evidence was uncovered connecting cigarette smoking and heart attacks, cancer of the throat, emphysema, non-cancerous mouth disorders, pregnancy troubles.

Cigars and pipes continued to be generally absolved.

Charcoal filters, in the words of a doctor who worked on that section of the report are ineffective and "not worth a damn."

In part, the report, which is a summary of more than 600 separate studies by physicians and scientists last year, added these points to the anti-smoking argument.

"Cigarette smoking is the most important agent in the development of pulmonary emphysema in man." Warning signs of possible emphysema were present in 97 of 100 cigarette smokers and six of 10 ex-smokers in one study group.

"It appears that maternal smoking during pregnancy may be associated with an increased incidence of spontaneous abortion, stillbirth, and neo-natal death."

Thousands Packing Uganda City For Pontiff's Visit

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Thousands of African Roman Catholics crowded into Kampala today in anticipation of Pope Paul VI's arrival Thursday — the first visit to Africa by a modern pontiff.

The Pope will consecrate a shrine to 22 African martyrs put to death for their religious beliefs 84 years ago and see if he can do anything to help settle the civil war between Nigeria and the secessionist state of Biafra.

Uganda has invited both Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu of Biafra and Gen. Yakubu Gowon, Nigerian chief of state, to Kampala for the Papal visit. Both said they would send delegations. Biafra called for a cease-fire during the Pope's visit.

Hundreds of Africans set up camps near the shrine which the Pope will consecrate.

Tropical rainstorms slowed work on the 50-foot high altar at Kololo Hill where Pope Paul will concelebrate mass with Cardinals and Bishops. The torrents of rain washed away the freshly painted white and yellow Vatican colors on the stands around the alter.

The Ugandan government ordered extra police into the capital for crowd control duty.

El Salvador Faces OAS Sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States has prepared to impose economic sanctions against El Salvador in retaliation for the continuing presence of Salvadoran troops in Honduran territory.

A resolution placed yesterday before OAS foreign ministers charges El Salvador with aggression for refusing to withdraw troops it has stationed during the past two weeks over a four-state area of western Honduras.

A second resolution orders the suspension of exports or imports of oil, coffee, cotton and sugar unless El Salvador agrees to the immediate withdrawal of its troops.

It also provides for supplying Honduras with "all the material help necessary" for restoring its territorial integrity.

The terms of the resolutions were agreed to privately by the foreign ministers during lengthy sessions at the Colombian Embassy before their introduction at OAS headquarters here.

In an 11th hour bid for a reversal of the OAS stand, El Salvador charged Honduras with aggression. One foreign minister, who asked not to be identified, said the Salvadoran charge served only to solidify the inter-American alliance against El Salvador.

Airlines Strike

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Western Airlines flights in 14 western states were canceled for today after 2,000 aircraft mechanics went on strike at midnight.

Negotiations between the Teamsters Union Local 2707 broke off last night following confirmation that mechanics voted against accepting a tentative contract agreement made July 18.

A decision was to be made later today on whether flights would resume tomorrow, the company spokesman said. The tentative agreement would have boosted wages and fringe benefits by 27 per cent over the three-year life of the pact, the company said.

Record Drownings

TOKYO (UPI) — Police said today 72 persons drowned and 13 were missing on the nation's beaches and rivers Sunday — a record for one day.

France Aids Biafra

PARIS (UPI) — France has been shipping to Biafra four tons of food supplies each day for more than a year, according to Agriculture Minister Jacques Dunamel. He said yesterday the supplies were being carried to Biafra aboard a private plane loaned by the French government.

U.N. Death Probe

CAIRO (UPI) — A U.N. observer mission has arrived in Cairo from Jerusalem to investigate the death of a Swedish U.N. observer, Maj. WASHINGTON (UPI) — The flotilla of Soviet ships that skirted the U.S. coastline and visited Cuba has left Havana and is headed westward, according to the Defense Department. The warships were 75 miles west-northwest of Havana when last sighted, the Pentagon said yesterday. A spokesman said the American destroyer Glennon was "in the general area."

Riot In Prison

MANILA (AP) — Violence between rival gangs broke out today at the national penitentiary, and a prison spokesman said nine inmates were killed and 22 wounded.

It was one of the worst riots in recent years at the penitentiary 15 miles south of Manila.

The spokesman said the two gangs armed themselves with improvised weapons and clashed near the control gate of the main building.

Another Homicide

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco man who died of stab wounds suffered last Friday became the city's 90th homicide victim of the year.

Ronald G. Imperial, 21, never regained consciousness after he was found lying on a sidewalk in the Fillmore District. He died yesterday.

Police said they found that Imperial had been arguing with a man dressed in a woman's coat and wig prior to the stabbing.

Meters Removed

OCEANSIDE (AP) — The City of Oceanside will remove its downtown parking meters in September in an effort to improve the volume of shopping. The city council decision is a one-year experiment.

In place of meters there will be limited parking, the limit depending upon the location. Enforcement will be effected by marking tires.

Revenue from the parking meters on streets last year amounted to $21,253, with an additional $5,769 from meters in city-owned parking lots.

Meters will continue in use on off-street parking lots and on parking lots on the Streand area of the beach.

Black Tax Collector

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thad Brown had been promoted to city tax collector, the highest San Francisco civil service position ever won by a Negro.

Brown, 43, was named yesterday as the winner of the civil service examinations to fill the vacant position.

The position has a salary range of from $17,964 to $21,828. The date he'll take office was not announced.

As an administrative analyst to the city's chief administrative officer he had held a position paying from $11,856 to $14,400.

Vatican Deserter

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Italian police are looking for a deserter from the Vatican's Swiss Guards.

Vatican officials wouldn't talk about it, desertion from the guard being a rarity. But police said the missing man was Kaspar Holzgang, and he disappeared a month ago after serving only a few months.

Should Holzgang be located, no disciplinary action can be brought against him. Service in the Swiss Guards is voluntary, and enlistment does not bind a man to an unbreakable contract. If the police track him down, all they can do is reoort him to the Swiss Guard headquarters and take away his Vatican identity card.

Democracy Begins

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan's military regime is going to allow limited political activity as a first step in the "smooth transfer of power to the elected representatives of the people," President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan announced last night.

"Our goals are clear, but we must not rush headlong toward them," said Yahya, the commander of the army until President Mohammed Ayub Khan resigned and turned the government over to him four months ago. Since then the country has been under martial law.

Yahya said his government, which will be host to President Richard M. Nixon on Friday was taking steps to prepare for a return to constitutional government.

Construction Plans Sliced For Middle School Due To High Costs

Construction plans for the new middle school were temporarily cut back last night when Mill Valley School District trustees heard that cost estimates will exceed available funds by more than $350,000.

School architects said an independent cost estimate of plans for the new school at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue came in at $2,350,000, while school bonds currently available for sale can only produce $2 million, according to Supt. James A. Collins.

Trustees agreed to submit existing plans for bidding, to be opened about Sept. 12, but to amend the contract later to cut costs down to the $2 million limit, Collins said.

Trustees tentatively agreed to build only the outer shell of one of the four classroom pods and to install a gymnasium floor and showers only in the multipurpose room. Architects were directed to make recommendations for specific cuts in the site preparation budget, estimated to cost $267,000.

Collins said the architects are also investigating ways to substitute less expensive materials in the building while still maintaining aesthetic and functional qualities.

Amenities cut out during the initial construction phase will be restored in April when an additional $400,000 in bonds will be available for sale, he said.

Mixed Housing Favored For Alto Bowl

Apartments and single family residences are a desirable development mixture for the Alto Bowl, the Mill Valley Planning Commission declared last night.

Commissioners reaffirmed their desire to see a mixture of housing, including low-cost housing units, in the 26-acre development proposed by Cal-Fong Associates, planning director Harvey E. Bragdon reported.

Bragdon said the commission noted "multifamily units are not evil and need not be ugly" but said development should not intrude onto a prominent hill in the development area. Instead, he said, development should be in the valley areas, clustered closer together, but not so close as to preclude use of open space.

Developers were instructed to return Aug. 11 with economic facts to justify their request for a density increase from 3 to 5.4 units per acre, Bragdon said.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also:

SHOPPING — Approved the Alto shopping area section of the proposed 701 plan.

CAMPERS — Agreed not to regulate the placement of campers, vacation and house trailers on private property but asked Bragdon and the police chief to see if trailers parked on city streets block safe visibility.

UNDERGROUNDING — Supported a request by the California Roadside Council to endorse a proposal by two state public utility commissioners that all new and replaced utility lines be placed underground.

Mill Valley School District Board Also:

GRANT — Heard the district's application for $15,000 outdoor education planning grant in cooperation with the county schools office has been approved by the federal government.

KQED — Approved a contract for supplemental materials for education films from KQED-TV, estimated to cost $792.

BOYD MUSEUM — Approved a contract for nature study programs from the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science for 1969-70 school year, to cost $350.

AIR FORCE — Signed a contract to allow the Air Force to provide transportation for students coming from the 666th Radar Squardron station on Mount Tamalpais at a cost of $2,200.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations from Jean Patterson, speech therapist, who has accepted a job with the San Mateo County Schools office, and from Mary Williams, fifth grade teacher at Strawberry Point School, who is leaving on a tour of Europe.

HIRING — Hired Genevieve Poehlmann as math and science teacher at Edna Maguire School at an annual salary of $9,390; Vera Obermeyer as a part-time psychologist in the guidance office, annual salary $3,750, and David McKenzie, custodian at Marin Terrace School, monthly salary, $507.

CLOSED SESSION — Agreed to reopen negotiations with the Mill Valley Teachers Association on 1969-70 salaries and met in closed session to instruct Collins on negotiations.

Expanded Kindergarten In Mill Valley Will Be Kept

Mill Valley School District's expanded kindergarten program, started last year, will be continued in the 1969-70 school year, the Mill Valley School District board decided last night.

Supt. James A. Collins reported the board voted to spend $60,000 of its recent $230,000 windfall to assign six additional teachers to the program. The windfall resulted when the county schools office discovered it had been too conservative in estimating state aid for fiscal 1968-69.

Under the new program, kindergarten students attend school for 200 minutes each day, an increase from 10 minutes allowed in prior years, Collins explained.

Each teacher will handle only one class of 25-30 students each day and have the other half of the day for program preparation, he said.

The board also voted to hire an additional music teacher for Edna Maguire School, replacing one cut earlier in the year because of budget stress. The additional teacher will cost $10,000, Collins said.

An addition request by persons in the audience to have the library program, also cut at budget time, restored, was delayed pending further study by Collins.

Collins told the board it will cost $20,000 if two additional librarians are hired to bring the library staff back up to six persons and said he is considering reassigning clerks to handle the two positions under the supervison of a trained librarian at a cost of only $8,000.

The library recommendation will be submitted to the board in September, Collins said.

Swim Team Fate Still Uncertain

Youngsters concerned with the fture of their swimming team met with the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission last night to see what plans are underway.

Chairman Ronald E. Rasmussen said he told the youngsters that a commission committee is studying the team, but has not yet made any recommendations.

The committee was established two weeks ago to study the possibility of setting up a second team and the operation of the current team, known as the Sting Rays. Rasmussen assured the youngsters that they would be consulted before any changes are made.

The commission also heard a report from recreation director Thomas West that four teams have been set up in the women's softball league with 18 women on each team. West predicted that six teams would be fielded next year.

Four Counts Dropped After Guilty Plea

Four drug charges against Russell Michael Guidi, 21, of Fairfax, were dismissed in Marin Superior Court yesterday when Guidi pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing marijuana Sept. 10 in San Rafael.

Dropped were charges of possessing a narcotic-smoking device, being present where narcotics were used, possessing LSD and using marijuana. Guidi was ordered to appear Sept. 15 for sentencing.

Police Report

Three Burglaries

San Rafael police today reported three burglaries amounting to $706.

Two impact wrenches valued at $138 each were reported stolen from the Midas Muffler Shop, 615 Francisco Boulevard, sometime between Saturday and Monday.

Police also said a pool sweeper valued at $400 stolen Friday from the pool at the apartment building at 35 Fairfax Street.

Police reported $30 stolen yesterday from the cashier's window at the Safeway market at 700 B Street.

Two Fined For Drunken Driving

Two drivers were given fines and probation terms in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for drunken driving.

Edward Schofield Travers, 44, of 100 Scenic Drive, Fairfax, was fined $240, given a 60-day suspended jail term and placed on two years' probation for drunken driving April 26 on Bolinas Road in Fairfax.

Robert John Montemayor, 20, of San Francisco, was fined $200 and placed on a year's probation for drunken driving Sunday on Caledonia Street in Sausalito.

The State Tree of Massachusetts is the American Elm.

Novato Porch Is Firebombed

A fire bomb was thrown today onto the porch of a Novato home, setting a blaze which caused about $200 damage, Fire Chief Jack Kidder said.

The bomb — an unidentified container probably containing gasoline — was tossed at the home of Ann T. Eastman at 707 Diablo Avenue at 3:19 a.m.

Police are investigating.

Man Declared Guilty Of Forgery

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday found Anthony Mark Ramirez, 29, guilty of passing two forged checks last year in Tiburon and Novato.

Ramirez, of San Francisco, was identified as the mystery man who got a driver's license under a false name, then used it as identification in cashing checks stolen from United Associates Fork Lift Service of San Francisco.

It was the false license that led to Ramirez's undoing, Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry W. Herman said. An alert liquor store clerk seized the license when he tried to cash a check in Novato, and the suspect fled.

Officers compared the thumbprint on the license with that of a suspect — Ramirez — believed passing Fork Lift checks in the San Jose area.

The prints tallied and Marin authorities issued a warrant for Ramirez, but had to wait until he completed a 90-day jail sentence elsewhere before bringing him here for trial.

The jury yesterday agreed Ramirez had passed checks Sept. 23 at Embee Stores in Tiburon and Oct. 7 at Warden Liquors in Novato.

The jury could not decide on a third count charging Ramirez with passing a check Oct. 12 at D and L Market in Novato — ironically, the place where clerk John Dent seized the phony license from the bilker.

Judge Thomas F. Keating set sentencing for August 25. A new trial date for the third charge is also to be set then.

Governor's Pay Raise Bill Advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly Ways and Means Committee sent to the floor today a pay raise bill boosting the annual salary of the governor from $44,100 to $49,100.

The measure by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and a companion bill also would raise the salaries of other constitutional officers, state agency heads and members of the governor's staff. (Other Legislature stories, pages 1 and 8.)

The committee approved the bill with little debate — but Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, strongly objected to Gov. Reagan's refusal to disclose the number of members on his staff.

Crown asked: "How many persons does the governor have on his staff?"

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post replied: "We don't know . . . and we haven't been able to get it. We have been notified it's not public information."

Crown retorted: "You mean to say that we do not even know at this time whether Gov. Reagan's staff is bigger than (former) Gov. Brown's?"

Post said that was true, adding: "It's a new policy."

McCarthy Asks No BCDC River Control

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A proposal to bar the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission from expanding its jurisdiction up the Sacramento River was made today by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

A bill before the Senate to extend the life of BCDC would extend its jurisdiction about six miles up the river to include the huge industrial area at Collinsville in Solano County.

The BCDC asked for control over the area to insure that it would be used only for water-oriented industry. Use of the prime industrial site for other industry eventually would require more fill for industry that needs water access to the bay, the BCDC plan said.

The present limit of the commission's jurisdiction is a line between Stake Point in Contra Costa County and Simmons Point in Solano County. The Army Corps of Engineers has traditionally used this line as the dividing point between the bay and the delta.

A McCarthy aide said the amendment was asked by Solano County, which is part of the senator's district, to encourage plans by the National Steel Co. to build a mill at Collinsville. The company also is considering putting the plant in Texas, where there are no fill controls, the aide said.

McCarthy, who opposes giving BCDC any shoreline control, will push his amendment even if the Senate adopts the recommendation by its finance committee that shoreline controls be cut out of the bill, the aide said.

Arabs Term U.N. Agents 'Our Enemy'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops clashed with Jordanian forces today near the Sea of Galilee and two Israeli civilians died when their car struck an Arab mine. An Arab guerrilla organization said U.N. Middle East cease-fire observers would be treated as its enemy.

An Israeli military spokesman said Israelis and Jordanians battled with machineguns near Ashdod Yakov on the Jordan River cease-fire line. An Israeli soldier was wounded.

Two civilians were killed when their car hit a mine which Israel said was planted by Arab guerrillas in the Jordan Valley eight miles south of the Sea of Galilee.

Al-Fatah, the leading Arab guerrilla organization, in a broadcast from Cairo said U.N. observers stand in the way of Arab conquest of Palestine and Israeli-held territory.

"Anyone who bars the way to liberation is our enemy and will be declared as such," the broadcast said. U.N. observers are in the Middle East to protect Israel and "carry out the proposed political settlement the Arabs have already rejected," Al-Fatah said.

Accused Son Recalls Night Of Slaying

A 20-year-old Corte Madera youth, accused of fatally stabbing his father last December, took the stand in his own defense today and recounted, in a barely audible, sometimes quavering voice, the night his father died.

David Vaughn Busdieker recalled coming home and telling his parents, Larry Glenn and Violet Busdieker, he had lost the keys to the family car and would find them in the morning.

"My dad started swearing at me," and threatened to kill him, Busdieker said. "Then he came at me."

"I kept saying I didn't want any trouble and just leave me alone," the youth said quietly.

He said his father continued swinging and one blow connected, knocking him off balance. "I kinda crawled into the kitchen," the 1967 Redwood High School graduate said.

He said his father continued swearing at him and saying to him, "I'm going to kill you."

"I grabbed the knife," he said. And the swearing and threats continued.

"The next thing I remember he was on the floor."

"I told my mom I didn't mean to hurt Dad," the youth said.

He testified he had gotten the knife because "I wanted to scare him off so he would leave me alone." He said he had no intention of killing his father.

Busdieker also told of earlier occurrences when his father had sworn at him, threatened to kill him and beat him.

The night of his death, however, the father was different. "He talked a strange way, his eyes didn't look right. He just didn't seem like the same person," Busdieker said.

He also testified he had had a couple of drinks while he was working as a dishwasher earlier in the evening and at a friend's home before he returned to his own home.

He said he made no attempt to run after his father's death. "I was too stunned and scared."

Shortly after the trial opened today in Judge Harold J. Haley's courtroom in Marin Superior Court, Busdieker's attorney, Roger Garety, in vain asked for acquittal on the grounds there was insufficient evidence to prove intent. Busdieker is charged with manslaughter.

BUDGET

favor of the administration's proposal to extend the surtax at its present 10 per cent rate until Dec. 31 and then at 5 per cent until June 30, 1970.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who has vowed to delay a vote on the surtax extension until a comprehensive tax reform bill is ready for action, was asked if the budget report would change his strategy.

"The news is good," Mansfield said. "I'm delighted with it. But the situation is unchanged."

Mayo, in testimony to the House Ways and Means Committee May 20 and to the Senate Finance Committee July 8, said extension of the surtax would spell the difference between an inflation-dampening surplus for the present fiscal year or an inflationary deficit.

With the surtax, he said, the budget for this fiscal year would be $6.33 billion in the black. But, opponents of the surcharge now point out, if the surplus for this fiscal year is as much underestimated as the margin for the last one, the budget will balance even without the $7.6 billion the surtax would raise.

In a joint statement, the Treasury Department and the Budget Bureau yesterday said receipts were $187.8 billion for the 1969 fiscal year compared with expenditures of $184.8 billion.

The surplus was the first since $240 million in fiscal 1960 and was the biggest since $3.2 billion in fiscal 1957.

School Bussing Session Is Set

The Kentfield School District board will hold a special session Aug. 11 to award a contract for school bus service in the fall, a spokesman announced today.

The board will hold its next regular meeting Aug. 4 to adopt a preliminary budget.

The board did not meet last night. July is the only month in which the boards holds only one meeting, which was held this year on July 14.

NIXON

withdrawing more troops from Vietnam. A Saigon visit would give Nixon opportunity to discuss this further with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The visit to Saigon also would give him a chance to see for himself how the war was progressing. And it could give him a chance to say goodbye to 750 men of the U.S. Ninth Infantry Division who are leaving Bien Hoa, 15 miles north of Saigon, tomorrow for home.

The departing Ninth Infantrymen will bring to more than 7,000 the number of Americans withdrawn from Vietnam since he announced on Midway Island last month that 25,000 would be withdrawn by the end of August and more if the situation warranted.

President Lyndon B. Johnson visited Vietnam twice and each time he went to Cam Ranh Bay on the seacoast northeast of Saigon, one of the more secure areas in Vietnam. His visits were in October 1966 and at Christmas 1967.

Saigon is much less secure than Cam Ranh Bay but the sources said Nixon did not want to go to Cam Ranh Bay because he did not want to be identified with Johnson's role in the war at all.

Although Saigon has been hit by rockets and mortars in the past, there have been no attacks in recent weeks nor have there been any recent attacks against Tan Son Nhut, the big airbase on the fringes of Saigon where Nixon would be expected to land. Another base that could handle Air Force One is Bien Hoa, 13 miles north of Tan Son Nhut.

The disclosure that Nixon wanted to pull American troops out of Thailand was made by Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman.

Khoman answered newsmen's questions in writing after the end of more than four hours of meetings between Nixon and his top national security aide, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger on one side, and Thanat and Premier Thanom Kittikachorn on the other.

It is Thailand's problems with guerrillas—and the possibility of involving the United States in the current low-level insurgency—that has caused the concern among both Thai and American officials about the status of U.S. troops that came here originally to help fight the Vietnam War.

The Americans, operating from six airbases in Thailand, have bombed North Vietnam from here and carried out B52 strikes against Communist forces in South Vietnam. They also have struck against Communist forces in Laos in what some call "the secret war" there.

Thant said he and Kittikachorn had assured Nixon that Thailand was able to stand by itself against the enemy within the country, but that it would require substantial amounts of military equipment from the United States to help it do so.

San Rafael Man Sentenced For Armed Robbery

I-J Special Report

SAN LUIS OBISPO — A 36-year old man who said he lived in San Rafael was sentenced yesterday in San Luis Obispo County Superior Court to a state prison term for the armed robbery of a food market here on June 28.

Jerome William Jenks was sentenced by Judge Richard F. Harris.

Police said Jenks and a companion, Billy Ray Jackson, 34, who also identified himself as a San Rafael resident, took $895 in the robbery, then had a gunfight with officers when cornered.

Jackson, who gave an address on Stevens Place, has pleaded innocent to an armed robbery charge and will go on trial Aug. 6.

Jenks listed his address as De Luca Place.

Coast Guard Plans For Marin Eased

The Coast Guard reported yesterday that its local command has cut down the number of townhouses and may ask Washington to buy more acreage for its proposed housing site in Inverness.

The assurance came from Rear Adm. C. R. Bender, commander of the Twelfth Coast Guard District in San Francisco, in a letter to the Marin County Planning Commission. (Other county planning commission stories, page 18.)

Planning commissioners, obviously happy with the assurance, asked Planning Director Paul C. Zucker to send a letter to Admiral Bender, "concurring with the modifications proposed."

"We have just reduced the number of planned family housing units from 36 to 30," said Admiral Bender. "We are also giving serious consideration to recommending to our Washington headquarters that we acquire such additional acreage, so that coupled with the reduction in housing units, we can halve the density that was mentioned in our July 14 meeting with you."

That would reduce the 3.5 density thus far proposed by the Coast Guard to 1.75, much nearer the 1.15 limits set by the West Marin Master Plan.

The question of density was a major cause of objection to Coast Guard plans by some Inverness property owners and county planners.

The Coast Guard has planned to build four barracks for 41 men and 36 townhouses for 36 families on 22.5 acres. At a hearing on July 14, several planning commissioners and residents of Inverness Valley objected to the density and the possibility of sewage, school and police problems.

In addition to reduced density, Admiral Bender assured the county that the sewage treatment facility will meet requirements of the San Francisco Bay Area Water Quality Control Board, and a soils stability analysis of the spray irrigation field will be performed.

"We will continue to do everything possible to make our development compatible with the community," said the admiral.

Doctors Will Launch Health Care Checks

Some charges of abuse are more than 3 years old.

One example of such a charge occurred in 1967 when the state director of the Office of Health Care Services reported about 300 physicians in the state had received between $80,000 and $110,000 each from the Medi-Cal program during its first 16 months of existence.

Don. W. Sower, executive director of the Marin society, said the decision to police fees and services also stemmed from urgings by the California Medical Association.

Such programs, carried out by reviewing each bill to be submitted to the government, already are in operation in Sonoma, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, he said.

In Marin the plan has the backing of most of the more than 300 doctors who belong to the society and are anxious to "bring services into line," he said.

He acknowledged, however, there were a handful of doctors who would oppose the program.

But those "bad apples" will find that they simply won't get paid for treating Medi-Cal and Medicare patients unless they submit their bills for society approval, he said. The government has indicated it is more willing to cooperate with the reviewing procedure, Sower added.

This is how the reviewing program will work:

California Physician's Service (Blue Shield), which currently scans all bills submitted under the Medi-Cal and Medicare programs, will be asked to divert first a few, and then all bills to the society's claims division.

A span of about three months in putting the program in full gear will allow the claims division, yet to be organized, to iron out wrinkles in its operation. By December all bill s should be coming first to the society for review, Sower said.

In the screening process bills that seem inflated will be set aside, the physician contacted and efforts made for an adjustment. Reviewers also will watch for abuses by patients applying for excess care, Sower said.

Persons with private health insurance through Blue Shield or other organizations will not be protected by the reviewing function, Sower said.

Hence the society's decision to plug in its publicity machine and make the public aware that there is a place to take its grievances for review and remedial action.

It still leaves the decision on whether to pursue a complaint on the shoulders of the individual.

To spread information on the procedure, the society has chosen a modest, three-fold pamphlet with black lettering on mustard colored paper. Tentatively, plans are to make doctors' offices the distribution points for the pamphlet.

The publication sketches grievance plans here and in other California counties, and then offers the reassurance: "The medical society's grievance, mediation or review committee exists neither to 'protect' nor to 'defend' the physician if he is at fault. It exists to see that justice is done . . ."

Last year about 75 complaints regarding fees and services were made to Sower's office. He was unable to indicate what percentage that was of the total bills issued last year in Marin, but the total is in the thousands.

Eighteen of the 75 complaints required action by the society's public service committee of 10 specialists in surgery, pediatrics, obstetrics, internal medicine and other areas and two general practitioners.

Dr. Roger W. Hedin, one of the two GPs, is chairman.

He explained how the grievance appratus works, using the case of a Marin County woman.

She complained that a $180 bill for treatment of a leg gash was "twice as much" as it should have been, Hedin said.

She was asked by Sower during her telephone call to write a letter explaining her position. The physician involved was asked to do the same.

With the two accounts, and after investigation and a recommendation from the appropriate physician on the committee, it was determined the bill more equitably should have been $92.

The doctor acceded to the finding, even though the committee has no power to enforce compliance.

Why? "Peer pressure" is a lever doctors find hard to ignore, Hedin said.

The explanation: The doctor had arrived at the figure because he considered the case a complex one, citing the woman's other medical problems. The committee determined the case was more one of a simple laceration.

The woman went away satisfied, Hedin added.

Such disparities in bills are likely to continue to occur, at least until April of next year, Hedin and Sower said. Not until then will doctors be supplied with a new edition of a California Medical Association guidebook on fees.

The one currently in use is 5 years old and full of gaps, with no provisions for some types of care, the pair noted.

APOLLO

definitely see footprints on the surface."

Earlier McLeaish reported the moonmen have been reflecting on the significance of their momentous mission and the place they will take in history.

"As you know, they are not outspoken people," he said. "But they feel the significance of what they have done."

Fourteen persons, including doctors, technicians and a cook, are quarantined with the astronauts.

Researchers delayed until tomorrow the first treatment of germ-free mice with moon dust to determine if lunar organisms exist which could threaten life on earth.

They had hoped to start the process today, but officials reported more time was needed for preparation, including grinding the lunar soil samples into uniform size for the experiments.

The opening of a second box of rocks returned by the Apollo 11 astronauts was delayed by a rip in a glove that technicians use to reach into a glass-encased vacuum chamber.

The outer layer of the three-layer right hand glove was torn while removing samples from the first box. If cut all the way through, outside air could seep in and ruin the vacuum, or lunar organisms, if present, could leak out.

A new outer covering was being placed on the glove today and work in the chamber was expected to resume late in the day.

Meanwhile, scientists studying rocks gathered on the moon by the Apollo 11 astronauts say the evidence is overwhelming that the lunar plains were created by lava flows.

They also said mysterious black dust clinging to the outside of the rocks contains a high percentage of lustrous glass-like spheres that may have rained down on the moon after a meteor plowed into the surface.

The experiment with the mice called for scientists to inject moon dust into the animals' blood, spray it in the air they breathe and put it in their food.

If the mice come down with an illness which cannot be explained or controlled between now and the time the astronauts' quarantine period is to end Aug. 11, the spacemen and 14 other people with them will have to remain untouchables for a longer time.

Similar studies will be made later using plants, insects, human tissue cultures and sea creatures.

Excitement among researchers examining moon dust and rocks was focused on preliminary findings of the material's physical properties, including a real scientific surprise—that up to one-third of the moon dust is composed of the glass-like beads.

"They seem to be telling us something is going on on the moon that we haven't anticipated," said Dr. Paul Gast of Lamont-Doeherty Geological Observatory at Plalisades, N.Y.

The tiny spheres—which range in color from dark brown to yellow—probably resulted from "condensation of a gas or vapor created by the impact of a meteor," said Dr. Clifford Frondell of Harvard University.

"The gas turned into droplets, condensed and rained down on the lunar surface," he suggested,

Researchers probing around the moon dirt also turned up a pebble-sized rock which looked whitish, like a pearl.

Perhaps the most important find was that most of the rocks returned by Apollo 11 appear to be hardened lava.

Preliminary studies have produced "overwhelming evidence that the mare (dry lunar seas) are built up by lava flows," said Dr. Eugene Shoemaker, geologist at the California Institute of Technology.

While the scientists still say it is possible the lava was formed by meteors slamming into the surface rather than volcanos, a researcher who has supported a theory for 20 years that the moon is cold and hard said he may change his mind.

Mariner 6 Takes First Mars Shots

PASADENA (AP) — Mariner 6 snapped its first pictures of Mars last night and flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory later said its camera seemed to be working well.

Quality of the pictures—start of a week-long series which may show whether life in any form can exist on Mars—will not be determined until the space craft begins television tonight.

The start of picture taking came while the 850-pound Mariner 6 was still 771,500 miles from Mars and about 58 millions miles from Earth.

Signals from the space craft take five and one-half minutes to reach Earth.

A few minutes before picture taking started, a spokesman said signals indicated the camera platform was properly aimed at the center of Mars and that light was entering the lens.

Then came word that some sort of picture was being recorded on tape.

The first sequence of 33 long-range pictures, requiring about 20 hours, is to be stored on tape aboard the space craft and sent to Earth starting 6:35 p.m. today (PDT).

The first pictures are expected to show the full disc of the planet at a distance and may not be much more detailed than those made by earth telescopes.

They should show, however, virtually all faces of the planet as it revolves before the approaching space craft.

REAGAN

an agency or department drafting its 1970-71 budget. It will be up to the department to assign its highest priorities to fit that sum.

A department can submit a "supplemental list" of lesser priority services and programs. Reagan ultimately will approve or deny those items before submission to the Legislature.

He said his No. 1 goal is reducing the cost of state government. The second highest priority will be given to reduction of employees below the 114,403 civil servants on the payroll when he took office. There were 115,402 last January, but neither total included University of California or state college workers.

"I know you're all going to refuse to believe this," Reagan said. "This decision was not based on anything to do with campaigns or politics at all. It was on my continued screaming that we've got to do more on reducing the cost of government."

Later Assembly Democratic caucus chairman George Zenovich and the California State Employes Association criticized the move.

"It's ridiculous," said Zenovich referring to the department heads setting priorities. "I don't see any logic in a move like this."

Asked about the timing of the announcement, the Fresno Democrat said, "He's been looking at polls showing his popularity has dropped. The campuses have been quiet. The people are upset at the high taxes since he's been in office. He can't get his tax reform moving."

A spokesman for the employee organization said Reagan "is treating state government like it is his own personal toy. He seems to forget that government is providing services requested by the people."

OBITUARIES

ALBERT LaMOTTE

Funeral for Albert E. LaMotte, 75, a 25-year resident of Sausalito, will be at 10:45 a.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

LaMotte died Sunday at a local hospital following a long illness.

He was a native of Brockton, Mass.

He was a boilermaker and had last worked for Fraser and Johnston Co. of San Francisco. LaMotte was a member of Boiler Makers Iron Ship Builders Welders and Helpers Local No. 6, San Francisco. He was also a member of Muir Lodge No. 136, Knights of Pythias and retired member of the Sausalito Volunteer Fire Department.

The family home is 524 Spring Street.

He is survived by his wife, Josie; two sons, Percy LaMotte of San Rafael and Gayle LaMotte of Novato; four brothers, Lector, Frank, Rolly and Raymond LaMotte and a sister, Dora Liska, all from the vicinity of Hamar, No. Dak.

The Knights of Pythias will hold a memorial service for LaMotte at Keaton's Mortuary at 8 p.m. today. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

HAZEL MONJE

Funeral for Hazel E. Monje of Novato was held yesterday at Crosby-N. Gray and Co. Mortuary in Burlingame. Burial was in Skylawn Memorial Park, San Mateo.

Mrs. Monje died Saturday in a Novato convalescent home. She was born in Michigan, where she was an apartment house manager for 50 years, and moved to Marin County over three years ago.

She lived at 1656 Novato Boulevard before entering the rest home.

Surviving are two sons, Henry E. Monje of Novato and William G. Monje of Phoenix, Ariz., and six grandchildren.

State May Lend Marin Youth Aide

A pilot project to staff Marin's new post of juvenile coordinator has been proposed by the state.

The coordinator was approved by the board of supervisors to work with the Marin County juvenile delinquency prevention and youth commissions.

The state Youth Authority and delinquent prevention officials have proposed lending Marin "a high-caliber person" for a year, Gary T. Giacomini, a commission member, reported.

However, he said, Marin may not be able to pay as much as that type of person would earn.

A meeting to discuss the proposal with a state representative has been set for 9 a.m. Aug. 6 in Room 33 of the Cheda Building, San Rafael, Giacomini said.

He reported the commission would investigate the possibility of the state making up the difference in the salaries.

He said it appears the coordinator could be hired within about a week if the state proposal works. Going through regular county personnel procedures would delay the hiring until November, he said.

Giacomini indicated the two commissions have so many plans and ideas members would like to begin work immediately.

The regular meeting of the juvenile delinquency prevention commission will be held at 8 a.m. Aug. 6, preceding the meeting with the state representative. It was postponed from the regular meeting time of the fourth Wednesday.

risdiction over the lagoon from the district to the County of Marin. It requires the county to submit its plans for the lagoon to the State Lands Commission within three years. If the commission rejected the plan, the lagoon would revert to state jurisdiction.

The bill also requires that the county carry out its plan within five years after approval by the commission. If a harbor of refuge were included by the county in its plan, according to the bill, it must be "consistent with the preservation of the natural features of the lagoon."

The committee also gave a unanimous recommendation to another Bagley bill. It would require that meetings of the Regents of the University of California be open to the public.

A BURNING ISSUE — Women opposing a divorce reform bill passed by the Senate yesterday burn a simulated marriage certificate during a demonstration yesterday outside the Long Beach office of a state Assemblyman. The bill needs only Gov. Ronald Reagan's promised signature to become law. (AP Wirephoto)

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Only Reagan's Signature Is Needed For New Divorce Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Only Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature was needed today to overhaul laws.

And the governor, a divorced man himself, has assured drafters of the first major divorce reform bill since 1872 that he will sign it.

The state Senate gave final legislative passage to the compromise measure yesterday and sent it to Reagan's desk on a 25-8 vote. Not voting was Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael. The Assembly passed the same bill last week 55-10.

The key portion of the measure eliminates such traditional grounds for divorce as mental cruelty, adultery or habitual drunkenness and permits just two: incurable insanity or irreconciliable differences.

"Irreconciliable differences are those grounds which are determined by the court to be substantial reasons for not continuing the marriage and which make it appear that the marriage should be dissolved," the measure states.

Community property would be "substantially" equally divided except when one spouse squandered or misappropriated it. No private investigator reports could be introduced as evidence to prove one partner was at fault.

Alimony would be determined by considering a woman's earning ability and the duration of the marriage.

And the word divorce will be dropped from the law books. All decrees granted after the law goes into effect next Jan. 1 will be known as a "dissolution of marriage."

A provision making divorces final in six months instead of the current one year and reducing the residency requirement to six months drew criticism from those who thought it would make divorce too easy to obtain in California.

But Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watonsville, contended, "We are stemming with this bill the Nevada quickie-type divorces."

Differences of opinion were also evident in Nevada. In Reno, an official of the Nevada Bar Association disagreed with the Nevada Assembly Speaker who claimed the new California law would ruin the Nevada divorce business.

The Nevada divorce trade has been built around the short six-week residency requirement and the relatively simple grounds on which a divorce can be obtained.

Nevada Assembly Speaker Howard McKissick had been quoted as saying the new California law would "ruin our racket" and reduce Nevada's lucrative divorce trade to a "dribble."

But Bar Association Executive Secretary Robert Herz said that most Nevada lawyers center their business around "the general practice of law — they may or may not include divorces. The California law won't have much effect on law practice here."

Opponents of the new California measure argued it would make divorce too easy and also that the final compromise bill did not accomplish all it set out to do.

"We do not want to make California a divorce mill state," said Sen. Clark L. Bradley, R-San Jose. "This makes it far easier to get a divorce than has been the case before."

Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, said the two chief sponsors—Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, and Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R.Long Beach—were "on the right track" but missed their mark.

"The bill is better than existing law, but it is not reform," said Moscone. He said irreconcilable differences still leave it up to the judge to decide whether a marriage should be terminated.

Moscone said this will permit evidence to be introduced that could lead to the same bloody court battles that now take place. The measure was aimed at preventing courtroom fights.

He said he favored the approach originally recommended by the Governor's Commission on the Family. It would have granted a decree when "legitimate objects of matrimony had been destroyed," a concept Moscone said would allow "consent" divorces.

Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, opposed the measure because he said it abetted the gradual eroding of the family in American life.

"Instead of trying to preserve the family as a unit we're going in the opposite direction of making it easier to get a divorce," he said.

Sen. George Danielson, D-Los Angeles, disputed the contention that divorces would be easier to get. He said obtaining one will be the same only "the procedure will be less painful." Grunsky, who has been working on divorce revision for three years, agreed. He said the bill would reduce the number of Californians who flow over the border to Nevada to get a decree.

SEEKS HELP

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Sen. John A. Nejedly appealed today to the public for help in resurrecting his bill outlawing DDT in California by 1972.

The Assembly Agriculture Committee yesterday killed the measure which was opposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan's Department of Agriculture and the state's $4.5 billion agriculture industry.

A nearly unanimous vote sent the bill to gather dust in between-session study. As a substitute, the committee approved and sent to ways and means committee a combination of several other proposals dealing with economic poisons.

The bill that cleared the committee lays out specific guidelines for the agriculture department to follow in registering pesticides and herbicides, controlling their use and keeping records on the amounts sold and used.

Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, said he hadn't given up on an outright ban on DDT. He said he'd ask for reconsideration of the committee action.

"You can be sure the bill will come back again," he said of one of the major conservation bills before the Legislature this year.

He appealed for public support for the DDT ban.

"Now it's up to the people to express their interest and their concern," Nejedly said after the vote. "They should write every member of the Assembly and tell them of their views and set the stage for moving this bill again as early as we possibly can."

Personality clashes flashed between Nejedly and the committee members during the lengthy hearing.

Nejedly objected at one time that committee members were "badgering" his research scientist witnesses with their questions. The former Contra Costa County district attorney began his presentation standing and making his points as if talking to a jury.

"Sit down and be comfortable, Mrs. Nejedly," said Chairman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles.

Agriculture director Jerry Fielder repeated administration objections to the bill and said his department "intends to phase out the use of DDT but feels it can do so by (present) regulations."

A string of witnesses for the agriculture industry said it could not survive the cost-price squeeze without use of DDT.

BLOCKS BILLS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Robert Monagan yesterday blocked further action on Assembly bills still pending before the lower house, including Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform program.

Monagan caught Democratic leadership by surprise when he invoked a rule no further action can be taken on Assembly bills after 10 days before the day set for adjournment.

The Assembly earlier voted to adjourn Aug. 6, making the deadline for consideration of Assembly bills midnight last night.

The action left Reagan's tax reform program and rival tax reform plans all stalled in Assembly committees.

Also caught by the deadline were Republican-sponsored bills that would place a tax on publically owned electric companies and abolish the practice of appointing inheritance tax appraisers, both introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Monagan was asked why Democrats had not anticipated the deadline.

"The Democratic leadership isn't very smart," he replied.

Democrats could obtain another day to consider Assembly bills by agreeing to adjourn Aug. 8, the date set by the Senate.

PREEMPT

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill empowering cities to regulate topless and bottomless shows died yesterday in the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee.

The senate-passed bill by Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, was killed on a split voice vote after Richardson argued the measure would clarify the laws as to what areas were expressly preempted by the state.

Duane R. Baker, Glendale police chief and a strong proponent of the bill, listed several areas including entertainment, prostitution, loitering and trespass, that he said are unclear on whether the state or city have power to legislate.

"We need clarification," Baker told the committee.

Richard Carpenter, lobbyist for the League of California Cities, supported the measure but opposed a section which would have invalidated the San Francisco gun registration ordinance, upheld by the state Supreme Court.

The committee defeated the bill after rejecting a motion by Assemblyman Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, to strike all of the measure except the section declaring the state only could enact gun control laws.

Man Arraigned

Gerald A. Tucker, 24, of San Francisco, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing marijuana in his car Saturday on Shoreline Highway. Tucker was ordered to appear Aug. 7 to enter a plea.

Attacks On Patient Bring Demo Charges

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Democrats are blaming budget cuts by Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration for making possible the repeated mistreatment, including homosexual rape, of a 14-year old boy at Napa State Hospital.

But the governor, while describing the case as "tragic," denied the Democratic charges that the abuses resulted from cutbacks in money and hospital staffing. He said an investigation of conditions at the hospital has been started.

The charges and denial were prompted yesterday by the release of a parent's letter reporting attacks on the youth. The letter was addressed to Reagan and a copy sent to Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, who made copies public at a news conference.

The boy reportedly was beaten and subjected to humiliating acts by other youths in the children's units and was tormented by hospital staff bers.

Assemblyman John Dunlap, D-Napa, said "any negligence or responsibility involved...rests with the department (of mental hygiene) headquarters in Sacramento and with the Reagan administration to whom it is responsible."

Dunlap said that the children's unit staff had been cut from 121 to 100 while the patient population remained at 183. He and Ryan said that while 19 additional persons have been authorized for the children's ward, the increase worked out to only one-third of a person to each ward at any one time.

Reagan's human relations secretary, Spencer Williams, told newsmen there had been no staff cuts at the children's unit but "some overadminsions" had reduced the staff-patient ratio.

But he said "there is no question that these events took place," referring to the abuses. However, he questioned the accuracy of a published report of a "gang attack."

"It is a case that obviously was not brought about by any curtailment or cut in personnel, Reagan said. "We are increasing our staffing and I think you'll find that in almost every institution there is now a higher ratio of help to patients than there was when we took over."

The parent said the boy, who has been at the institution since July 1, 1968, was knocked unconscious, his eyeglasses broken and teeth chipped when 10 other youths covered him with a blanket and beat him.

The parents said homosexual attacks in the children's ward "are viewed by all and many do occur often."

The letter charged that when the boy came home on visits "we could not walk toward him without his putting his arms up as if to protect himself.

"He is alive physically, who knows what emotional reprecussions this will have for my son now and-or for the rest of his life. Who's to blame, governor? Who's at fault?"

Rail Changes Mind About Garbage Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Maybe San Francisco's garbage won't be hauled to a Lassen County desert after all.

S. Myron Tatarian, city public works director, told the board of supervisors yesterday that the Western Pacific Railroad had changed conditions of a proposed contract.

As a result, he urged that the city instead give consideration to a proposed disposal area at Mountain View, about 30 miles south on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Tatarian said that last Friday the railroad "summarily and unilaterally" advised that it would not consider a 20-year agreement, and was demanding a 10-year pact.

That action, he said, threw out cost figures the road had worked up in connection with the 20-year proposal and substituted new rates for a 10-year pact which were "substantially" higher.

Butternut trees are also known as white walnuts.

Date Corrected For Next Housing Talks

The next meeting of directors of Ecumenical Association for Housing will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 17 in the administration building of the Marin Civic Center.

A story in the Independent-Journal July 23 incorrectly reported the meeting date as Sept. 27.

meaders is still old-fashioned about some things...

MEADERS may have some of the fanciest equipment made (including an IBM-programmed cleaning machine), but they haven't thrown away the hand irons. In fact, all your cleaning is hand finished at Meaders. Meaders thinks that's the beauty of advanced equipment—it does its job better, and frees people for the careful hand work that no machine can do. Old-fashioned, maybe; but your clothes will show you what Meaders means.

Small things matter at Meaders.

It doesn't complicate your life.
Maverick is the simple machine—simple to own, simple to repair, simple to service, simple to drive.

It doesn't cost a lot.
With prices everywhere going sky-high, Maverick comes along with a down-to-earth price—$1995.*

It doesn't have a tiny trunk.
Maverick gives you 10.4 cu. ft. of trunk space—nearly twice as much as the leading import. Now the whole family's luggage can go along for the ride.

It doesn't squeeze you in.
Some big people live in this country. That's why we made Maverick bigger than the imports. Lots of legroom and shoulder room.

It doesn't squeeze you out.
It's great for parking, great for handling, great for zipping through traffic.

It doesn't cost a lot for maintenance.
You can do most maintenance jobs yourself, if you want. If your mechanic does it, he can do it in a lot less time. Great when time is money and the money is yours.

It doesn't need a lot of service.
Maverick oil changes and chassis lubrication come less often than in the leading import. (Isn't it time you started seeing less of your mechanic and more of your car?)

Cheaper by the doesn'ts.

It doesn't skimp on essentials.
Maverick gives you tough brakes, unitized body construction, rustproofing, and four coats of paint. Its 3-speed transmission is able to handle twice as much horsepower as the engine turns out.

It doesn't burn a lot of gas.
Maverick gives you the kind of mileage you'd expect from a little import—even with a powerful six-cylinder engine.

It doesn't hold back on power.
Turn on the engine and turn loose 105 horses—nearly twice as much as the leading import. This means highway power, passing power. The kind of power you need.

It doesn't handle like a kite.
The road might be wet and the wind strong but Maverick's tread is wider than the car is high—great for stability. (Most economy imports are higher than their tread is wide.)

It doesn't follow the herd.
Maverick's new, different. A bright idea with bold, new colors. See your Ford Dealer for the rest of the story. Find out why Maverick is the hottest selling new car to come along since Mustang.

JUNIOR BOYS — Chess playing is only one of many activities that keep the young boys busy at juvenile hall. They are usually a small group, easier to handle. Besides a variety of indoor activities the 8 to 13 year olds take field trips regularly. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

INSIDE THE HALL — Residents of juvenile hall spend a lot of time in their rooms, sometimes just sitting and thinking and sometimes, like this boy, messing around. Out of their rooms, the young people play pool, read, make things.

tificial environment — real stresses and strains are softened," he said. "The shock of real life after an institution is pretty hard for some kids to take."

The shock of the unreal life at juvenile hall is also hard to take. It feels like a different world.

Outside it 's attractive enough, nestled beneath the hills in Lucas Valley, two miles west of Highway 101. It's strangely, uncomfortably quiet for a place housing an average of 50 children from 8 to 18 — even when they play outside.

Inside, reached through a series of locked doors there are stresses and tensions barely imaginable to outsiders.

The girls' unit, a depressing old building, housed 21 girls the day we visited. There are nine tiny rooms equipped with bunk beds and, in some cases, an extra mattress on the floor to accommodate overflow population.

Girls of all ages are housed together, making it difficult for them and for the staff. "We have to try to meet some needs of each age group," said Milton P. Shimabukuro, acting supervisor of the unit.

Sole relief in the austere surroundings are the magazine pictures and posters some girls have hung.

Decorative grillwork serves to bar the windows and each heavy door has a small screened window.

Rooms are bugged, with a two-way communication system. Doors are locked most of the time, whether the girls are in or out.

There are two bathrooms for all the girls. The day we visited two of the four toilets were out of order.

There's a recreation room and kitchen, large enough for quiet activities but not especially inviting. A large room next door, the site of the first co-ed dance in a Juvenile Hall in the country a few years ago, stands empty.

The whole unit is dreadfully hot with a pressing, airless kind of heat.

Similar in makeup, but larger, is the senior boys unit, where, counselors say it takes just three minutes to break out through the bedroom windows.

There are 20 rooms for a population which averages in the 20s but climbs to 37 or 39 at times.

It's woefully lacking in simple conveniences such as chairs, much noiser than the girls unit, every bit as hot and airless.

Less depressing is the junior boys unit, a portable which isn't locked. The day we visited there were six residents, four of them detained for being beyond parental control "but you don't see that kind of behavior here," said a counslor.

The younger boys have occupied the unit since January and there hasn't been a single runaway. "We had more problems when they were locked up," said counselor Michael L. Di-Cerbo. "They've really developed a sense of trust and group unity," he added.

"The only thing that really keeps a child here is that they feel safe — emotional and physical safety," Donald explained.

All of the units are inside the high fence which surrounds Juvenile Hall. However, no one pretends the fence will stop a runaway if he really wants to go that way. Only about 5 per cent a year do, according to officials.

Petaluma Council Reviews Plans For Widening Three Streets

The Petaluma City Council in special session last night reviewed plans to widen East Washington Street, Payran Street and Caulfield Lane.

Reporting on the completion of months of study was B.C. Albritton of Whitlow, Hoffman and Albritton, civil engineers of San Rafael.

The recommended plan line to widen East Washington Street began at the area of reconstruction of the Washington Bridge, with the width of 69 feet being constructed there to be continued along the presently 42-foot-wide street to highway 101.

Albritton said the widening would permit four traffic lanes rather than two, with protected left turn lanes at most intersections and street parking in most blocks.

He said the plan lines were established to cause the minimum disruption of businesses and expensive properties. Under the plan, 64 parcels of land would be affected and 18 buildings disturbed. Construction cost was estimated at $323,000. Most of the right-of-way acquisition would be on the south side of the street, he said.

Albritton offered four other plans that included banning parking and widening to only 52 feet, to divide the right of way takes evenly on both side and a plan to take all right of way from the north side.

City engineer David A. Young said the five proposals varied in construction cost from $298,150 to $332,400 and recommendation that the right-of-way needed be most seriously considered in determining costs.

On the widening of Caulfield Lane, Albritton recommended that the street be widened or improved to four lanes, 52 feet wide from South McDowell Boulevard to the proposed new Highway 101 overcrossing.

Most of the needed right-of-way was purchased when subdivisions were built in the area several years ago. Albritton said that four parcels would be affected and three buildings disturbed.

Total construction cost for the Caulfield project was estimated at $556.787 but Young quickly added that most of the cost would be for the freeway overcrossing which would be paid by the State Division of Highways.

On the Payran Street plans, Albritton recommended it be widened to 64 feet from Petaluma Boulevard to Caulfield Lane.

He said the most problems would be met in the Linda Del Mar subdivision between Petaluma Boulevard North and East Washington Street where builders ignored easements and built homes in the right-of-way area.

The engineer said that many homes would lose garages and have steep grades for driveways. He said that 117 parcels would be affected and four homes disturbed.

In the plans for widening Washington Street between Keokuk and Kentucky streets, Albritton recommended the street be widened by 52 feet. He said that only the sign at the Showcase Theater would be disturbed. The widening of 10 feet would reduce sidewalks from 14 to 9 feet.

The council took the widening plans under consideration and said it would devote future study sessions, the council awarded the bid for construction of a boat launching ramp on the Petaluma River to the Cleverdon Co. of Layfayette at $121,336.

Young said some of the plans had been deleted to bring the project cost within the $121,000 grant from the State Division of Harbors and Watercraft. Deleted from the project were plans to put asphalt and concrete on the parking area. A double sealer coat was subsituted to bring down costs.

Young said the completion of the project is expected in late November or early December.

Integration Test For Richmond

MARTINEZ (AP)—The Richmond School Board's plan to achieve integration by voluntary busing will get a one-year trial, Superior Court Judge Robert J. Cooney ruled yesterday.

Cooney told the Contra Costa Legal Services Foundation that it may request further court hearings after May 31, 1970, if the plan fails to achieve racial balance in the schools.

The foundation had sought to revive a plan of forced busing adopted earlier by the school board.

On July 10 the board, with three newly elected members, substituted voluntary busing which will be paid for by the district if parents wish to send children to schools outside their normal attendance area.

Appears In Court

Richard Sheldon knowles, 18, of San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Superior Court on a charge of stealing a car June 28 in Stinson Beach and ordered to appear Aug. 11 to plead to the charge.

Parallel Parking Big Novato Item

Grant Avenue, west of Highway 101 in Novato may have only parallel parking in the future, according to Clifford Temps, public works director.

Last week, the Novato City Council awarded a contract to resurface 4.5 miles of city streets, among them, Grant Avenue from First to Seventh streets.

"When we remark the parking on the street, we would like to make it all uniform with parallel parking," Temps said.

At present, there is angle parking on the south side of Grant from Second to Fifth Street, and one-half block on the north side of Grant, west of Fifth, while the rest of the street has parallel parking.

Temps estimated the 83 angled parking spaces would provide 56 for parallel parking, a loss of 27 spaces.

By eliminating the angle parking, the street's travel lane would be widened enough to allow the creation of left turn lanes which would speed up the flow of traffic on the street, Temps said.

Temps had called a meeting for 8 p.m., Aug. 7 at the Novato Community House to explain it to the merchants.

Sculptor Earns Advanced Art Degree

By BETTY FROST

"Art is a very personal kind of journey," said sculptor Ruth Hofmann in her Strawberry studio.

"In art you are dealing with things that have been around for centuries and to this material you bring your own awareness. It can be an occupation or a passion," she continued.

A relative newcomer to Marin County Mrs. Hofmann moved here four years ago when her husband, Harry Hofmann, a naval architect for the Standard Oil Company, was transferred to San Francisco from New York City. Accompanying them were the three Hofmann children, Peter, now 22, and twins, Catherine and Thomas, 20.

The move interrupted 15 years of activity in art for Ruth. She had studied and taught ceramics and sculpture, produced ceramics to order for decorators, and maintained a sculpture studio in New York City. Adjacent to the family home at Babylon, N. Y., she had a workshop.

THROUGH WHAT she calls "high powered decorators" in the New York area she had assignments to create such items as room dividers, lamps and planters for banks, a ship, a hotel, and private homes.

Of these busy years of juggling household responsibilities and an active career, she says, "If you want to work, you manage. I was a better mother because I wasn't home all the while. I always had my studio near my home, so I was available if the children needed me." She feels that her decision was a personal one and adds. "Some women need to work, others are completely involved with their families."

But, for a woman to undertake a demanding career, "an understanding husband is the first prerequisite. You can't ever have any conflict. You have to decide that in the beginning. My husband and family always came first, my work, second."

After her tough schedule, she suddenly found she had no more contract deadlines to meet, no more students, a complete break in the accustomed routine.

"The move west gave me an opportunity to reassess. I decided that going back to school would put me back in touch, and give me a chance to discover new things in the art world," Ruth said.

She enrolled in San Francisco State College. After two years of study and work, she was granted her M.A. in sculpture from the college in June. In her studio, surrounded by the body of work she had created for her master's thesis, she said that a knowledge and ability to use tools was invaluable. She was working in new materials, such as polyester resins, and learned to do expert welding.

"GOOD ART should ask questions," the sculptor said. The study of form and space preoccupied her in her research. "Sculpture covers more than objects," she explained, "art has broken down the boundary lines between painting, sculpture and movies. Working with this new point of view has been a very stimulating and rewarding experience."

She was granted her B.A. degree at the University of Michigan, with honors in literature. After her marriage she moved to England and studied and taught art there, before continuing her career in New York.

Her husband is interested in boats, and the family brought their fishing boat from the East. Since November they have been living on the Strawberry Lagoon, where their boat, now being overhauled, is usually docked. Ruth enjoys cruising and looks forward to more time on the water here.

Her sculpture has been exhibited in Europe and throughout the United States. Her work was chosen by the State Department for international shows. She has examples of her art at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the De Young Museum in San Francisco, the San Francisco Museum of Art, and the Richmond Art Center.

SINCE OBTAINING the advanced degree her friends are always asking Mrs. Hofmann, "Now what are you going to do?"

Enthusiastic about the idea of community art centers, she plans to assist the recently formed Sausalito Community Art Center, and will teach sculpture in the group's Bayside School headquarters in the fall.

What about Ruth Hofmann's own creative work — will she continue to produce?

"All good art teachers should be productive," she emphasized.

'A SENTINEL' is an example of the body of work which Mrs. Harry Hofmann presented in the one-man show required for the M.A. degree in sculpture at San Francisco State College. The woman sculptor works in a studio adjacent to the Hofmann family home on the Strawberry Lagoon. The native birds which fly in and out of her unfinished studio often provide her with inspiration for studies of the ambiguity of space. (Independent-Journal photo by Roger Bockrath)

'WHAT IS REAL?' is the question sculptor Ruth Hofmann designed the black-lighted study in form and space to demand of the viewer. "Is reality the space you see or the space you know is there?" (Independent-Journal photo by Roger Bockrath)

Vernet Launches Tubular Fingertip Style In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Philippe Venet today launched a tubular fingertip cardigan silhouette as the Paris fall and winter fashion showings took over center stage after Rome and Madrid. All of the Paris openings will be crowded into one week.

The long cardigan look is shown with stovepipe pants, or softer slacks, or skinny pants. A sealing wax red outfit is one color from top to toe and is shown with a brief miniskirt and lacy matching tights.

The miniskirts that often appear with slender belted tailored jackets have a low placed deep flounce, usually box pleated.

Venet's idea is varied for all occasions by fabrics and colors. A five-or six-inch band runs all the way around the cardigan hemline. He even does it in a new white and gray streaked mutation mink, banding it with black fox, in a maxilength.

Another idea from Venet came in coats which were extremely full and fluid with a bell effect. Some of the coats—either single or double-breasted—had an important back flare.

At the Molineux house, little suits had close to the body jackets detailed with flapped pockets, velvet touches at neckline and cuff, and silver, steel or gunmetal buttons. The silhouette remains supple and the striped-down look plays up the beauty of the flannel, nubbed tweed or muted plaid fabrics.

An iron gray suit has a lining of wide gray and white awning stripes matching the top of the dress. A conservative checked coat has a camel hair lining and a matching dress, worn with a camel jersey head scarf.

A BIT OF THE ORIENT

Parisian designer Louis Feraud presented two Oriental inspired outfits in printed silk in his 1969-70 collection. The pants outfit at left features a bare midriff, loose sleeves, and a large metal necklace. At right the long skirted dress is highlighted by a deep plunging neckline. The high fashion showings opened in Paris yesterday and continue through the week.

Research Team Finds The Evils Of Being A College Student

DEAR HELEN:

Are colleges and a college education really what they're cracked up to be? According to a Michigan State research team, maybe not.

The survey shows that only one of every four college students gets a degree; there are twice as many suicides among college students as among the general population; college students have 50 per cent more mental and emotional problems than the general public; there is very little or no correlation between grades in college and later success.

The research further reveals that if a student invested the equivalent of the cost of four college years, he would have larger lifetime earnings than if he attended college — that is, if he invested wisely.

"Therefore," the study concluded, "By attending college, a young person has a better chance of becoming a dropout, going crazy, killing himself, learning irrelevant things and losing money."

P.S. I found this gem in our Sacramento suburban newspaper, and figured its tongue-in-cheek philosophy had a good deal of bite. Right? — DWIGHT

DEAR DWIGHT:

Right. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My sister and I will be married in a double wedding. Helen, my future husband and I would like a chocolate wedding cake with white icing. Friends and family are aghast. They say a white cake is traditional. My sister will have the white cake. We want a dark one. What's wrong with that? — CHOCOLATE LOVERS

DEAR LOVERS:

By me — not a darn thing. I'd be very happy with dark cake at a wedding reception, as I'm partial to chocolate. But then I'm less an etiquette buff than I am a sniper at senseless traditions. Your family and friends may overrule me. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a girl friend who does not have a boy friend. I know a boy who likes her. He is a cute kid, but he would never speak to her on his own, being shy. How can I get them together, and should I? — CONFUSED

P.S. My mother saw this letter and she said, "You're just wasting a stamp. She won't print it." Please print it so I can show her.

DEAR CONFUSED:

First find out if the boy really wants an introduction, and then invite them both over to your house for cokes. Let's hope your girl friend likes him too — H.

P.S. You lost, Mom.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a boy friend who lives in California. He'll be back in a few days, and my mother won't let me date him, even though she liked him before he left. You see, when he first got to California he got busted for the possession of marijuana. He only tried it once. Good grief.

My Mom really lost her cool, and now she thinks he's a dope addict. How can I make her understand that he learned his lesson? — TIRED OF CRYING

DEAR TIRED:

Paranoid parent Number 11053. Your mother should realize that one joint doesn't make a doper any more than one drink creates an alcoholic. Your boy friend paid for breaking the law. He shouldn't be tired twice for the same crime. — H.

How To Digest Your Next Trip

Traveling, whether for vacation or business, often puts a strain on the digestive system. New foods, odd hours and anxieties about unfamiliar places can be distressing. Taking health precautions is good travel insurance.

Abroad and in the U.S., allow extra time to reach destinations. Allow for time changes, too. Try exotic foods in small quantities at first. Snack if meals are delayed. Don't drink large amounts of cold beverages.

Take medicines with you, especially for the all too-common stomach upsets. An antacid usually relieves heartburn. Ask your physician to recommend a reliable remedy for diarrhea.

Take special care about the water you drink, especially in remote areas.

Creative Spurt In Old Age

Aging, by itself, does not necessarily reduce creativity, a Washington, D.C., psychiatrist and gerontologist maintains. Instead, it may stimulate it, Dr. Robert N. Butler says.

The creative person, more aware than others of the uncertainities and brevity of human life, often feels more impelled to perform in ways that change his own life and others. This holds true, Dr. Butler says, "even in old age, perhaps even more so in old age."

Nursing Moms Need Iodine

The symptoms of hypothyroidism, commonly resulting from an underactive thyroid gland, may be a feeling of fatigue or laziness. This feeling, known to nursing mothers, may not be psychological but the result of nursing itself.

Mother's milk is rich in iodine. Iodine is essential for the thyroid gland to produce its hormone. When iodine is deficient, thyroid hormone production is reduced. The indicated remedy: iodine in the new mother's diet, according to two Michigan State University physiologists writing in Today's Health magazine.

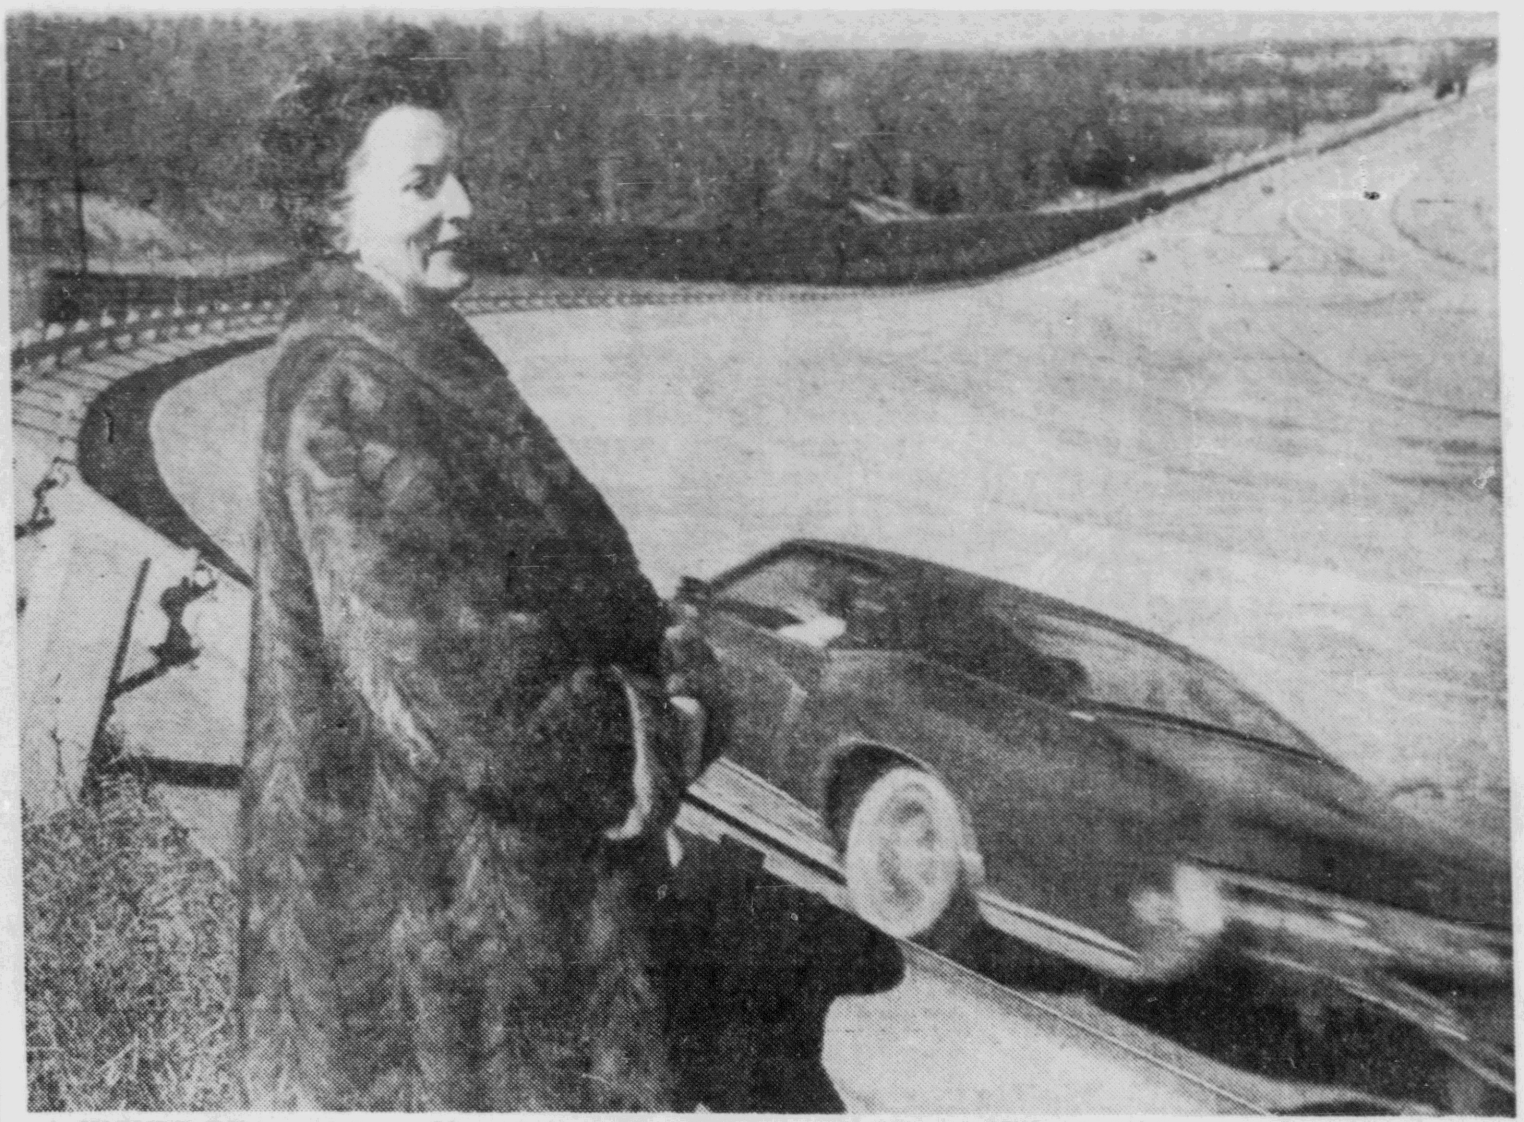
Federal Aid

Forty regional medical programs have received federal grants to improve patient care through research, continuing education, training and demonstration projects.



A WOULD-BE couturiere, Mrs. Arline Rininger became an automobile test designer instead. Here she stands atop one of two turnabout loops she created for each end of a straightaway at General Motors Milford, Mich., proving ground. The loops can safely handle cars at 100 miles per hour and permit a 2½ mile length of the straightaway to be used for high speed testing. (UPI Telephoto)

Martino-Bradley Vows Said

Janice Bradley became the bride of Phil Martino in a Saturday afternoon ceremony at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Mill Valley. A reception at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Bradley of San Rafael are the bride's parents, and she is the sister of Phil, Patrick and Richard Bradley.

Sally Morehouse of Berkeley was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mary Mills of San Rafael, Susan Cichy of Larkspur and the bridegroom's sister, Margie Martino.

Best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Ora Martino of San Rafael, was John Kowski of Sausalito. Ken Johnston and Steve Berringer, both of San Rafael, ushered guests to their seats.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and attended College of Marin. She is employed in the Circulation Department of the Independent Journal. Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Bradley of San Rafael and Mrs. Mary Tenconi of Mill Valley are her grandparents.

Also a graduate of San Rafael High School, Phil attends College of Marin. He is employed at the Cottage Book Shop in San Rafael. Mrs. Mary Robbins of Sausalito is the bridegroom's grandmother.

The couple will live in Fairfax when they return from a wedding trip to Mendocino County.

Instead Of Fashions She Designs Test Roads For Auto Performance

By DAVID W. CHUTE

HIGHLAND, Mich. (UPI)—Mrs. Arline Rininger wanted to be a fashion designer, but instead she designs roads.

Some of them are among the finest roads in the country, and some are among the worst. In both cases it's intentional, for car testing purposes.

Mrs. Rininger works at the General Motors Proving Ground in Milford, Mich., a far cry from her Rhode Island girlhood when she hoped fashion would be her field.

Her talent with a different kind of figures led her to become a mathematics major at Pembroke College, the women's branch of Brown University in Providence, R.I. Upon graduation she was hired by GM to work on their proving grounds recording test data on military vehicles being developed for the Army during World War II.

MRS. RINGINGER recalls that she arrived in Michigan before her baggage did, and she spent the first week on the job climbing in and out of tanks in high heeled shoes and fur coats.

She was doing drafting work on vehicular designs after the war ended, when one day her boss dropped a three-inch thick volume on her desk. It was an intellectual exercise by Robert McNeal, of GM's technical data department, on something called "Cornu's Spiral," full of fundamental equations on requirements for building a high speed car track.

Mrs. Rininger spent two months figuring out "Cornu's Spiral" and filling in the intermediate steps not included in the original treatise.

Her next assignment was to put "Cornu's Spiral" formulas to work in helping design GM's circular test track near Mesa, Ariz., to be used for high speed tire tests. She did, designing a track with "neutral" banks that would allow a car traveling 100 miles per hour to navigate the track with no "steering" necessary. It was the first such track in the world.

SHE WENT ON to design other test tracks with a variety of turns for testing cars under various conditions, including a two-and-a-half mile highway at Milford with elevated turnaround loops at either end for high severity testing.

She also designed a curving turn into the crest of a road at the proving grounds to test the power of automobiles to accelerate uphill. Cars can go into the turn safely at 90 miles an hour.

ASIDE FROM test roads, she also set up the procedure and mathematical tables for calculating the banks of the Daytona International Speedway in Florida. Other race tracks, including the new one in the Irish Hills of Michigan, have been built with the tables she developed.

One of her most unusual assignments was to build a road with all the wrong bankings. She created a four-mile nightmare of incorrectly canted curves, chatter bumps, potholes and a hundred other hazards found on rural highways. It's use was to test the handling qualities of cars under the worst possible conditions.

The GM proving ground also has another Rininger-designed test road—a four-and-a-half mile closed circuit four-lane "highway." Each lane is designed for different speeds up to 85 miles per hour. A driver in any lane, if maintaining that lane's speed, can travel completely around the loop without once having to turn the wheel.

MRS. RININGER'S roads must be designed on paper before being poured in concrete. Asked if she worried whether they would perform properly, she said: "During the construction period I have had some qualms, but I knew, mathematically, that it had to work and it did."

Off the track, Mrs. Rininger has another commercial interest—the successful gift store in Highland, Mich., that she and her husband, Jack own. He operates the store. Mrs. Rininger, as mathematician, handles the income tax reports.

A Warning To Husbands

LONDON (WMNS) — The Gaslight Treatment really exists.

Two British doctors have described two almost-successful plots to get rid of unwanted husbands by confining them to mental hospitals.

In one case, a wife's attempt to convince doctors that her husband was irrationally violent was foiled when her lover was overheared describing their plot in a local bar.

In the other case, the wife insisted that her husband, a pubkeeper, was a dangerous alcoholic and succeeded in having him confined to the alcoholic unit of a psychiatric hospital. Again, a lucky coincidence brought to the doctor's attention the wife's boast to a relative that she had fooled the doctors, got rid of her husband and planned to take over his pub.

The moral is that doctors should beware of accepting a relative's unsubstantiated accusations.

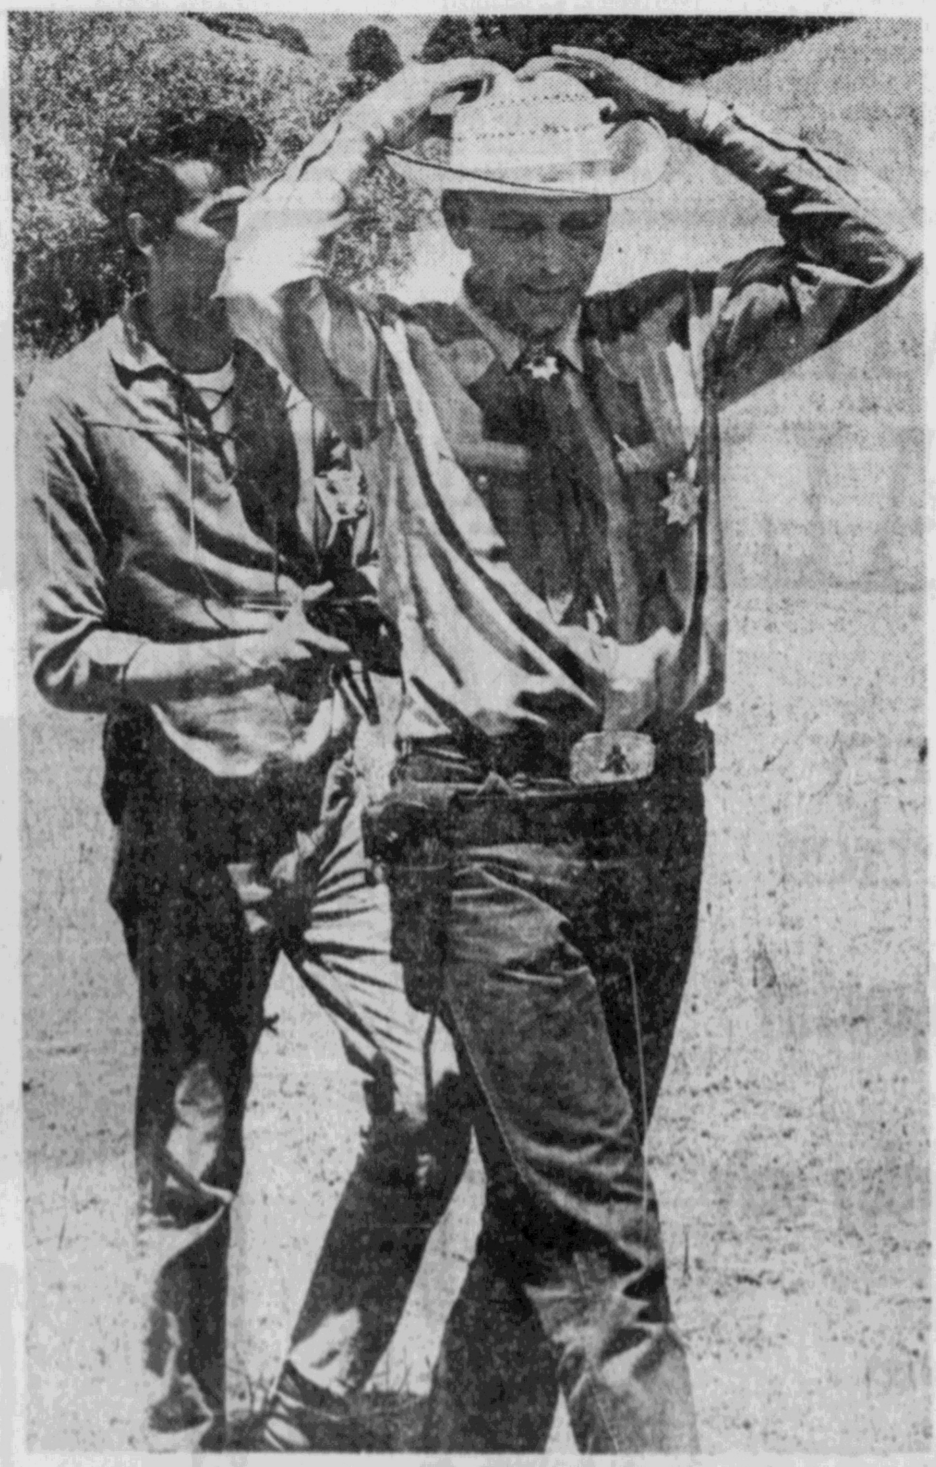
SHERIFF

NOW HEAR THIS, COWBOYS—Sgt. George Ruess, sheriff's department training officer, tells members of the sheriff's posse that six armed and dangerous suspected narcotics peddlers—played by other deputies—are hiding in the steep hills east of Nicasio. The valley was sealed off for the recent simulated manhunt so the make-believe desperados couldn't escape.

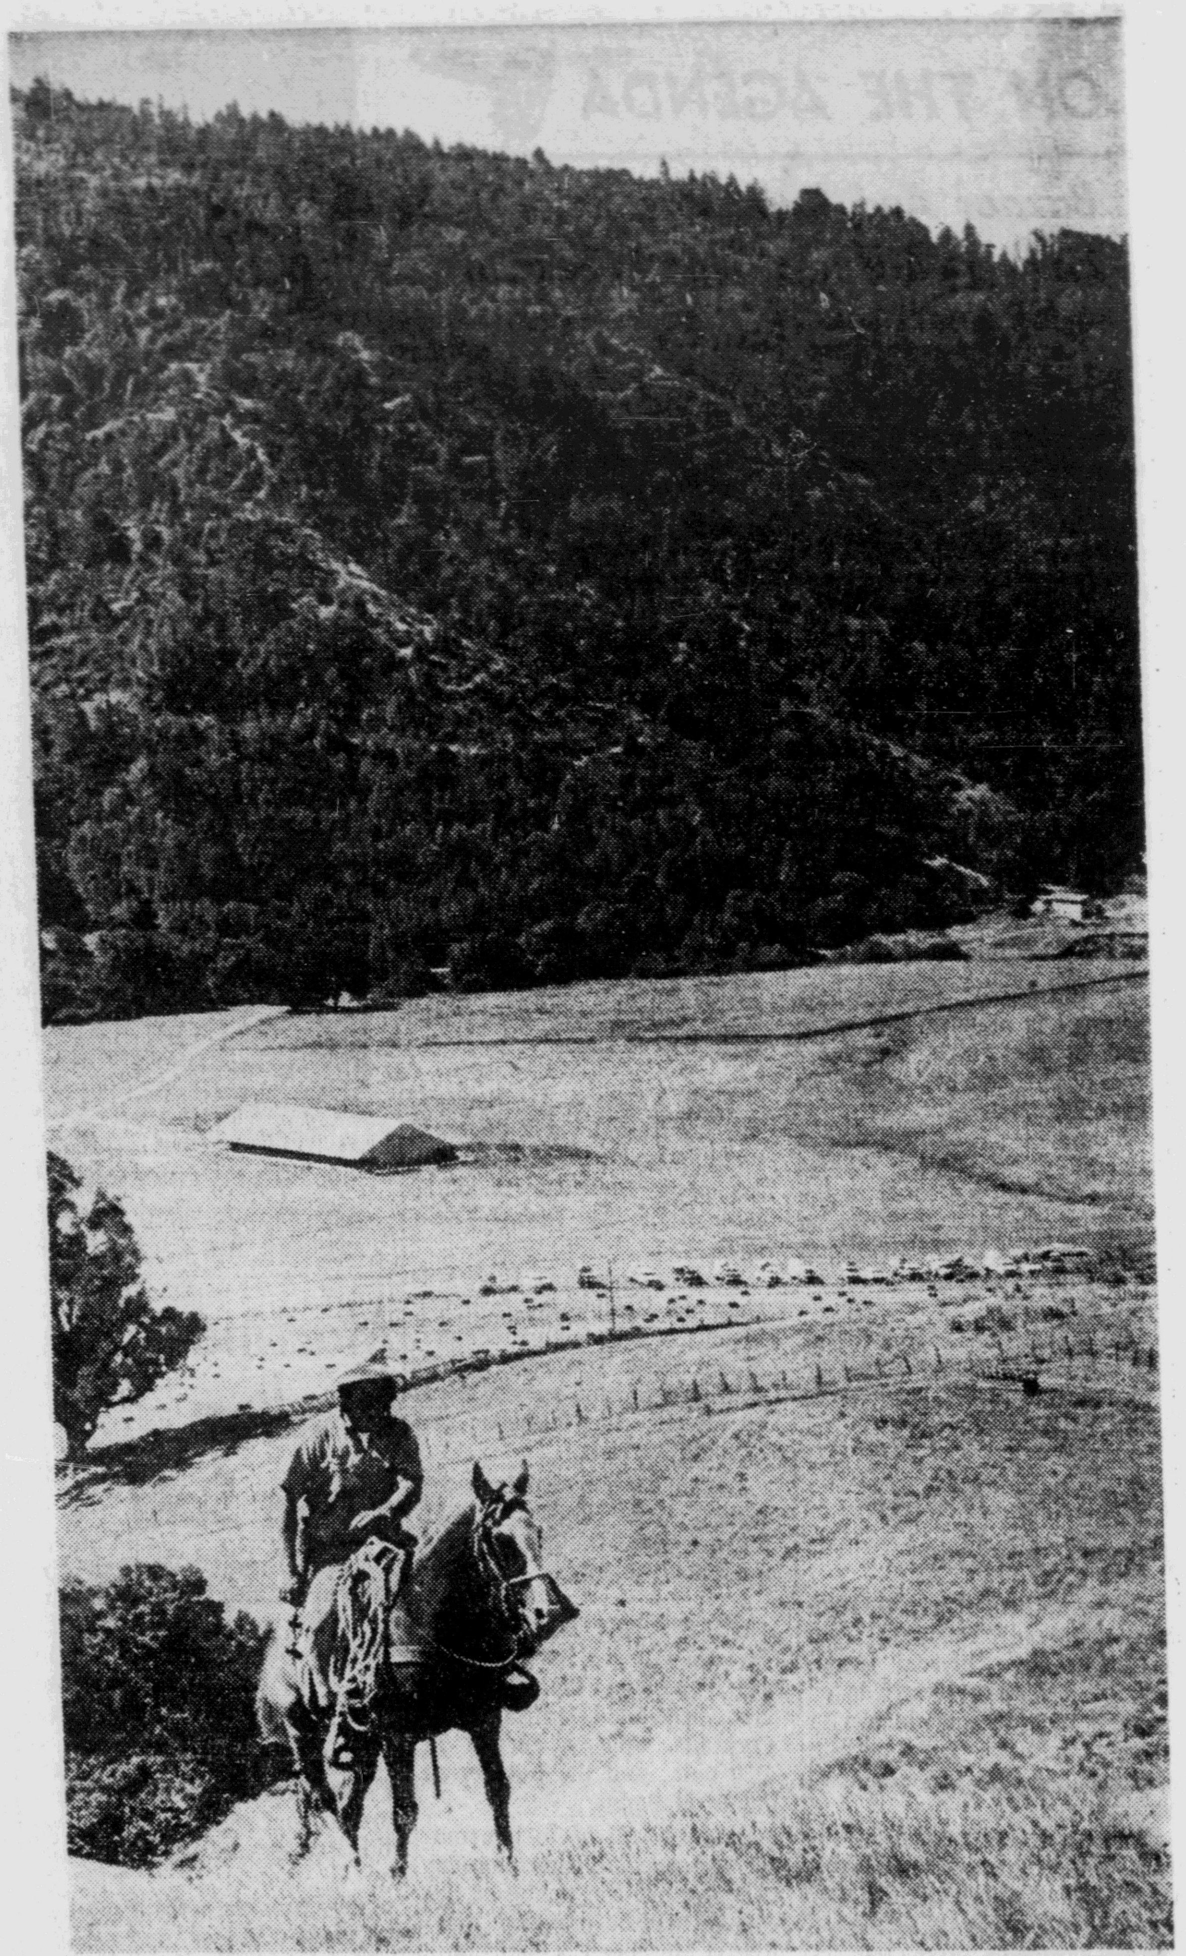
The 'Bad Guys' Don't Escape

A BASHFUL DESPERADO—The same way real bad guys do, fugitive Hilary Lannen tries to shield his face from the camera as he is marched down the hill by deputy "Tex" Chillson. Lannen managed to shoot four possemen before his capture.

ESCAPE FOILED—Slippery Hilary Lannen is handcuffed by posseman Herman Deitch after Lannen almost bluffed his way into an escape. He was almost clear of the exercise area when Deitch wouldn't buy his story of being released, a suspicion that won Deitch points from exercise umpires.



TABLES TURNED—Posseman Bernard Todman—you can tell he's a good guy because he wears a white hat—was temporarily out of action when this unidentified fugitive got the drop on him. Todman, however, was clever enough to divert his captor's attention and other deputies shot the make-believe criminal.



THE SEARCH IS ON — Mounted posseman Carl Mead heads up from the valley floor on the Rogers Ranch near Nicasio in search of the fugitives. Two planes from the sheriff's air patrol and a two-way radio network aided in the search.

New Legislation On Handguns Is Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Presidential commission has recommended a state-federal attack on gun ownership that could take as many as 21 million handguns away from persons who presently own them.

The suggestion was made yesterday by the President's Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, a panel established to investigate the background of assassinations and urban violence.

The commission recommended that states be given four years to pass laws deciding which of their citizens should be allowed to possess handguns. At the end of four years, a federal law would take over requiring all pistol owners not so protected by state laws to surrender their arms, for compensation.

There are an estimated 24 million handguns —such as revolvers and automatic pistols —owned by Americans, the commission said. The combined state-federal attack could take 90 per cent of those out of circulation, the panel said. Owners would be compensated at an average of $20 per gun, about a half-billion dollars total.

Police, security guards, small businessmen in high crime areas and those with a "special need for self-protection" would be allowed to keep handguns. The commission estimated that most of the handguns now possessed by private citizens are kept for household protection.

The panel specifically recommended, however, that household protection would not constitute a sufficient cause for pistol ownership under the federal statute. Long guns, such as rifles and shotguns, would also be affected in that owners would be required to have an identification card and anyone under the age of 18, as well as certain types of criminals or others ajudicated as incompetent, would be barred from ownership.

The National Rifle Association attacked the proposal as "amounting to gradual strangulation of private handgun ownership. Only those who can show 'their need' would be permitted to retain handguns, and we know from localized experience in New York City and elsewhere that this means precious few."

It added that there were "some millions of respectable, law-abiding Americans" who use handguns for sport and recreation purposes.

Plumbing Union Returns To Work

MARTINA (AP) — About 450 Contra Costa County plumbers were back at their jobs yesterday after settlement of a strike that began July 1.

The agreement gives them wage and fringe benefit increases totaling $2.55 an hour, spread over a three-year contract.

Before the strike against the 60-member Plumbing, Heating and Piping Employers Council of Northern California, plumbers had been earning $8.65 an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

The strike at first halted almost all construction, but some smaller firms signed interim agreements with the union.

Edward Thomas Chorovsky, 23, of San Francisco, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Superior Court on charges of possessing marijuana and benzedrine June 15 on Highway 101 near Ignacio. He was ordered to appear Aug. 11 for entry of plea and setting of a trial date.

Frank Loesser, 59, Succumbs To Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Frank Loesser, who gave America 1,500 songs to sing, died yesterday of lung cancer. His body will be cremated today and the ashes scattered over the Atlantic Ocean.

There will be no funeral service. "He didn't believe in things like that," a family spokesman said.

Loesser, 59, who wrote the Broadway shows, "Guys and Dolls," "Where's Charley," "Most Happy Fella," and the Pulitzer Prize winning "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," was admitted to Mount Sinai Hospital four weeks ago.

Te was working on a new song or show at the time, a family spokesman said. "He was always working."

Loesser's songs included "Once In Love With Amy," which dancer Ray Bolger used almost as a signature, "Baby It's Cold Outside," which won the Academy Award in 1949, and "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," which he wrote as a private in World War II and it became an instant hit.

"Most Happy Fella" was a folk opera but Loesser shunned the word opera and billed it simply as a "musical."

Loesser, dark, suave and terse with his words in conversation, was born in New York City in 1910 to a family of musical highbrows whose members felt, "Frank writes nice songs but they aren't music."

After flunking out of the City College of New York at age 15 because he failed everything but English and gym, Loesser went to work as a newspaper reporter and in the depression years held a variety jobs, including screwing caps on bottles of insecticides.

He began writing songs in 1931 and his first published song was "In Love With a Memory of You." It was not a success but in 1937 he wrote "Moon of Manakoora" for the movie "The Hurricane" which became a hit and although Loesser himself "sang like an auctioneer" and never studied music, his career became a 30-year almost unbroken string of successes.

Loesser's chief collaborators during his career were Hoagy Carmichael, Jimmy McHugh, Burton Lane, Jule Styne, Arthur Schwartz, and Abe Burrows, who wrote the book for "How to Succeed." But in many cases, Loesser wrote both the words and music for his songs.

Loesser was described by friends as a "complicated man," full of nervous energy. He slept four hours a night and smoked three packs of cigarettes a day.

Lagunitas School Pay Undecided

The Lagunitas School District board last night again postponed action on salary adjustments because of inadequate information about the amount of funds available for the fall semester.

Superintendent Marshall J. McCunniff reported the board has offered contracts this year based on last year's salary schedule with the understanding that salaries would be adjusted if sufficient funds from Sacramento are available.

McCuniff also said the board will decide later whether it can afford one or two kindergarten teachers and teachers for the handicapped. A budget hearing is scheduled for Monday.

The Lagunitas School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Awarded contracts to the Thornton Paving Co. of San Rafael for $2,233 to pave the playground area at San Geronimo Elementary School and $1,563 for repairing the driveway entrance at Lagunitas Elementary School.

ENROLLMENT — Reported that first term summer school enrollment was 76 for Lagunitas District youngsters at the Oak Manor School in Fairfax.

LANDSCAPING — Reported that landscaping work at the new San Geronimo School is underway and summer maintenance work is progressing.

GI Charged In Slaying Of Singer

SAIGON (UPI) — An American soldier was charged today with the "premeditated murder" of Australian singer Catherine Anne Warnes, shot on the night of July 20 while entertaining American Marines.

An official military report said Sgt. James Killen was charged today and that there was "strong circumstantial evidence which linked Killen to the proven murder weapon, a .22-caliber weapon equipped with a silencer."

The report also said "there is no motive established for the murder at this time." However reliable civilian sources in Da Nang and Saigon said they understood the fatal bullet was meant for one of the other entertainers on stage who had an argument with a GI before the show.

Miss Warnes was singing her last song with the whole troupe on stage at a non-commissioned officers club at about 9:30 p.m. on the night of the July 20 when she was shot. She fell to the floor and was dead on arrival at a nearby American military hospital.

Escaped Convict Kidnaps Woman

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP)—A convict at the Colorado Penitentiary who escaped last night took a farm woman as a hostage today and forced her to go with him in her husband's automobile.

Officers said the prisoner, David O'Niel, 28, from Denver, appeared about 7 a.m. at the home of Ludwig Ferriancek on a farm five miles south of Canon City.

He took a .22-caliber rifle belonging to the farmer, then forced the man's wife, Ruth, to get into the family car. Ferriancek told officers the car left in the direction of Canon City.

'No Contract'

Westbay Community Associates, in its denial yesterday that it had pushed a weak bill to extend the life of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, said it had "no contact" with the author of the bill branded weak by conservationists, Sen. John A. Nejedly. The Independent-Journal, because of a typographical error, incorrectly reported that Westbay said it had "no contract" with Nejedly.

Pedestrian Dies; Victim Of Hit-Run

An elderly Cotati pedestrian was struck and killed by a hit-and-run driver at 7:30 p.m. yesterday on Old Redwood Highway near Minnesota Avenue, two miles south of Cotati.

Jack Jackson, 81 of 118 Highland Avenue, was pronounced dead on arrival at Petaluma General Hospital.

The California Highway Patrol said that Jackson was walking north on the south shoulder of the road when a speeding southbound car struck him. Police said the car spun around the fled north.

Two witnesses in a nearby home described the car as a white 1959 Chevrolet driven by a dark-haired young man who was alone. The car was damaged in the center of the hood.

Jackson is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Betty Lesh of Cotati, and a son, Sam Jackson of Houston, Tex.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Abbey of the Chimes, Vallejo.

The Pacific Ocean, which covers one-third of the globe, is so huge that it could swallow the seven continents.

A Conditional Nod For Marinview Unit

Marinview Unit 2, a 41-lot subdivision on the west side of Tennessee Valley Road near Bell Lane, won a conditional go-ahead from the Marin County Planning Commission by 5 to 0 vote yesterday.

(Another county planning commission story, page 19)

Planner Raymond Smith recommended a lower density because the 16 acres is hilly, but the planning commissioners approved a density of 2.5 units per acre.

However, other conditions are still subject to a review by a one-man committee (Niels Schultz Jr.) appointed by acting Chairman Hugh Dougherty. These include the proposed pavement width of 22 feet, grades up to 18 per cent, and location of sidewalks.

Allan-Marin Company, headed by Allen Allan of Los Angeles, will build 41 single family homes, with access from Bell Lane. Minimum lot size will be 7,500 square feet.

Leslie Smith of Muir Beach, consultant on the project, and engineer Kenneth A. Frost of Belvedere presented plans which show a loop road, with 22 feet of paving and two feet of shoulder on each side to serve the 41 lots.

Residents in the area, including a spokesman for the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club, backed the proposal, calling the plan "excellent in design."

Allan-Marin Company also owns more than 300 additional acres in the area. The commissioners set Aug. 25 as the date for hearing to consider master planning the rest of the property.

Plead Innocent

Two cousins, Robert B. Deem, 26, and Richard B. Deem, 21, both of Santa Venetia, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burgling Painters Union hall in San Rafael June 29. Jury trial was set for the week of Sept. 15.

U.S., Latins To Confer On Fishing Boats

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—The United States and three Latin American nations meet tomorrow in an effort to halt the capture of North American fishing boats in disputed territorial waters off the west coast of South America.

The United States, which claims a 12-mile limit for fishing, will confer jointly with Chile, Ecuador and Peru, which recognize a 200-mile offshore jurisdiction. The latter two nations have seized and fined more than 60 U.S. fishing boats since 1953.

The three South American nations agreed to participate in the conference—which the United States has been seeking for two years—on condition that their claim to the 200-mile limit would not be discussed.

Although the agenda has not yet been set, diplomatic sources suggested today the delegates would discuss regulation of fishing and licensing procedures that would prevent further seizures of U.S. craft.

Assault Count Against Youth Is Dismissed

A charge of assault was dismissed against one of three youths yesterday in Marin Municipal Court after a preliminary hearing, and Judge Peter Allen Smith said he will rule Monday on the other two defendants.

The charge was dismissed against James McKenna, 18, of Kent Woodlands. Other defendants are Terrance R. Rilla, 18, of Kentfield, and Robert L. Davis, 20, of Kentfield.

The three were accused of beating two youths July 19 in Corte Madera.

McKenna was represented by private counsel but Rilla had the public defender's office. Judge Smith asked for an inquiry Wednesday to learn why their families had not hired an attorney for McKenna and Rilla.

Strawberry Cove Apartments Approved

A master plan for 112 marina apartment units in Strawberry Cove on seven acres owned by Leonard B. Fleischman of Belvedere won the approval of the Marin County Planning Commission by 4 to 1 vote yesterday.

Acting Chairman High Dougherty cast the lone dissenting vote. He and Commissioner Margaret Azevedo wanted at least a 30-foot strip in the center of the elongated lot dedicated for public access from Seminary Drive into the waters of the Cove.

Commissioner Niels Schultz Jr. moved to delete that 30-foot dedication on grounds that public access would be provided by another condition imposed — a 400-foot strip along the waterfront on Seminary Drive to be dedicated for public access.

Another condition attached to the approval is that Fleischman will install a conduit to carry into the bay the drainage waters that run between his property and De Silva Island.

Architect Allan Steinau and attorney Albert Bianchi, representing Fleischman, presented plans for 12 studio apartments, 80 one-bedroom units, and 20 two-bedroom units to be built in clusters on the bay side of Seminary Drive east of Ricardo Road. About half the waterfront will be left open for visual view of the bay.

Chairman Michael Praszker and Commissioner Walter F. Freitas were absent.

The County Planning Commission Also:

TARRANT APARTMENT — Continued until Aug. 11 a hearing on P. J. Tarrant's plan to build a 48-unit apartment at North San Pedro Road and La Brea Way, Santa Venetia. Tarrant asked for the contiiuance.

RICHARDSON BAY — Continued until 10 a.m. Aug. 11 the hearing on a specific development plan for Richardson Bay. Property owners criticized as too restrictive the specific plan which calls for a complicated formula to decide the ratio of open water to developed areas.

PRESERVE — Granted agricultural preserve status to 15 acres owned by Marco M. Porobich at the corner of Gage Lane and Indian Valley Road, Novato.

WEST MARIN ZONE — Asked the planning director to notify all landowners in West Marin that the planning commission intends to rezone agricultural land, tying in the allowable density to the county slope policy.

Closed Session

There will be a closed meeting of the fire commission on Aug. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the city manager's conference room to hear charges brought against an employee, according to Thomas Goodale, administrative assistant.

Salary Hikes For Tiburon Employees Win Split Vote

By ANNE BARDWELL

Salary increases for Tiburon city employees, including City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose, were approved last night by the Tibu- 3-1 with Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood dissenting and Councilman Thomas E. Drohan absent.

Rose's new salary was set at $1,550 a month, an increase of $125 over the objections of Miss Ellinwood who said Rose's "ability to expand his contribution to the administration of the city has reached its limit."

Salary hikes for other city employees ranged from nothing to 12.5 per cent with the highest increase given to public works department maintenance men.

Percentage increases for individual employees were not indicated on the salary schedule presented to the council. The schedule only listed range and step proposed for each employee without comparison to salaries paid last year.

Following the meeting, city staff was unable to indicate general percentage increases except in a broad range of up to 12.5 per cent. Staff representatives also were unable to indicate who had not been given raises. Nor was the staff able to say what the increases would cost the city.

Miss Ellinwood supported an even greater increase in maintenance men salaries noting that even with the 12.5 per cent increase, the Tiburon employees were starting at a lower salary than offered by comparable cities.

Of Rose, she said his duties had "decreased with time" and was itemizing examples of this when she was ruled out of order by Mayor Branwell D. Fanning.

Pounding the gavel loudly, Fanning sternly lectured Miss Ellinwood on the Ralph M. Brown Act which allows public bodies to meet in closed session to duscuss charges brought against an employee.

"I refuse to have statements made for or against an employee except in executive session," Fanning said. "We are not here to hear your recommendations for the management of the city."

Before being ruled out of order, Miss Ellinwood said increased job responsibility of the assistant to the city manager and more work performed by the council's own subcommittees had contributed to the "diminished responsibility" she had mentioned earlier.

In particular, she said, the council has asked for job descriptions for all city employees in July, 1968, and had receiced them only last Friday, one year later.

Other councilmen supported the salary increase after Councilman William R. Bremer said Rose should receive at least $150 a month raise.

Bremer said as mayor last year had asked Rose not to take a raise because of the current status of city finances and Rose's willingness to do so "shows us the kind of man that money wasn't everything from his point of view . . . We'll lose him if we don't pay him more this year."

Fanning noted the $125 raise was a compromise since Drohan had also asked that Rose receive a larger increase.

Miss Ellinwood also objected to a change of job title for Russell L. Melquist from assistant to the city manager to assistant city manager, noting that the post had begun as a temporary six-month internship in 1966 and had grown to a permanent position without council authorization.

She also opposed salary increases for the deputy and agenda clerks on the basis the salaries are excessive for the job functions but did ask consideration of increases for the city attorney and minute clerk.

The council took no action on any of her suggestions.

New Deputy Counsel Is Appointed

San Rafael attorney George J. Silvestri, 27, will join the county counsel's staff as deputy next week at $959 per month.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who announced the appointment, said Silvestri was selected from a field of 40 applicants for the position. This was the first opening in the office of county counsel in four years.

Maloney now has an assistant and three deputies including Silvestri.

Silvestri was born in San Francisco but has lived most of his life in Marin County. He graduated from St. Mary's College and Hastings College of Law.

He lives at 190 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, with his wife, Valerie, and three children.

Tiburon Begins New Bid On Rail Property

The first step in what appears will be a lengthy legal battle to obtain city ownership of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way along Richardson Bay for a bicycle and hiking trail was authorized last night by the Tiburon City Council.

The council agreed to retain attorney Richard A. Clarke of San Rafael, a condemnation expert, to represent the city in negotiations with the railroad.

The action was authorized after Wayne E. Moody, planning director, said there was no way 36 single family homes could be constructed on the right-of-way which runs from San Rafael Avenue to the north city limits.

This now leaves the way open for us to proceed with condemnation, which, I believe, is the next step for the city," Councilman William R. Bremer said.

In June, railroad representatives offered to sell the strip of land for $458,000 based on an estimate of $10,000 for each of the 36 useable lots plus 45 cents a square foot for the remaining unusable land.

That offer, rejected by the council June 18, was again termed unreasonable last night by Bremer. He said the city should be prepared to pay up to $50,000, a figure he said he based on rough estimates and the sale last year of reversionary rights to the railroad for $35,000.

Bremer also asked that Clark be directed to obtain appraisals of the property "so we'll have a better idea of what we're talking about" and that the city staff be directed to apply for federal funds to aid in the purchase.

In the meantime, he said, he would continue to "keep the lines of communication open" to the railroad in case it decides to lower the asking price.

All of Bremer's requests were unanimously approved by the council. Councilman Thomas E. Drohan was absent.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

REZONING — Introduced ordinances to rezone portions of lots at 2326 Mar East Street, owned by John C. McGuire, and 2344 Mar East Street, owned by Victor C. Banks, from public to duplex zones.

SETBACKS — Approved a variance granting 11 and 12 foot sideyard setbacks for lot 45 in Reedland Woods Unit No. 1, requested by Lawrence C. Olin, and referred to committee for study other setback variances also requested by Olin.

CONSTRUCTION — Adopted uniform construction tandards to bring the city in line with the County of Marin.

AYALA DAY — Allocated $1,400 for Ayala Day festivities scheduled for Sept. 6.

APPOINTMENT — Approved Fanning's appointment of Albert Sennett to a full term on the commission. Sennett had been appointed to fill a vacancy earlier this year.

CONTINUANCES — Continued consideration of the proposed city budget for fiscal 1969-70, a variance denial appeal by Lawrence H. Stotter for 2244 Vistazo East Street, and application for a use permit renewal by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad for a parking lot in downtown Tiburon, to Aug. 11 because of the late hour.

Cycle Mishap In Home Yard

A 16-year-old Novato motorcyclist received facial and arm cuts and bruises at 9:10 a.m. today when his motorcycle overturned in a yard at 20 Washington Street, Novato, police reported.

The youth, Gary Towne of 171 San Andreas Drive, was greated at Novato General Hospital.

Police said Towne and a companion on another motorcycle, Daniel Williams, 17, of 14 Stasia Drive, Novato, rode through the yard of Robert Paine at 28 Washington Street, with Towne spilling. Williams' motorcycle broke off a tree and damaged a bush, police said.

Tam High District Salary Talks End

Teacher representatives and trustees of the Tamalpais High School District last night concluded special negotiations on a proposal by teachers to add a fifth scale to their salary schedule.

The trustees said they would announce their decision on the proposal late this afternoon. The district is the last in the county to finish salary negotiations with teachers.

After last night's 90-minute session at district offices at Redwood High School, indications were the board would turn down the proposal this year.

District officials estimated the additional scale, with raises ranging from 3.1 to 4.9 per cent over the top scale approved in June, would cost about $45,000. It would affect about 90-100 teachers and boost the top pay to $14,950.

William D. Wilkinson, chairman of the negotiating council of the Tamalpais District Teachers Association, would not speculate on what action the teachers might take if the proposal is rejected.

The atmosphere of the session, attended by about 25 teachers and other onlookers, was cordial and remarkably lacking in heavy strategic maneuvers.

Teacher representatives urged the board to adopt a new "E" scale for teachers with a Bachelor of Arts degree and 75 additional units of college credit. And they pushed for adoption of a policy that would give teachers unit credit for activities judged equivalent to college work, such as special seminars and workshops.

A 5 per cent increase for teachers, already approved by the trustees, would set the top salary at $14,500.

The A.B. plus 75 units proposal would offer "fewer difficulties" than other ways of hiking top pay, Wilkinson said.

He indicated teacher morale hinged on the trustees decision and said the salary talks were "symbolic" and "quite crucial" in the teachers relationship with the board.

At least two trustees indicated they would not support the new scale this year.

"I thought we agreed in closed session this was a matter for next year," said David D. Ring. In no sense of the word would Tamalpais district teachers be at the bottom of the list of Marin districts in regards to a pay increase this year if only the five per cent boost goes into effect, he added.

Trustee Gloria Melbostad told the teachers' negotiators: "Why should the board go one step further?" she said, "I have to be quite blunt . . . I think we are backing down publicly if we do go ahead with it (the new scale)."

Salary discussions were reopened in June at teachers' request after the board approved the 5 per cent hike and an additional 1 per cent in fringe benefits. Teachers had originally asked a 10 per cent across-the-board hike in the salary schedule plus fringe benefits.

Woman Dies From Fire In Kentfield

Fire that destroyed a Kentfield home last week claimed the life yesterday of Stella Panteleakos, 42, a Garden Grove, Orange County, woman who had been visiting there.

Miss Panteleakos died at 11:30 p.m. in the intensive care unit of Marin General Hospital, from burns that covered 70 per cent of her body.

She was trapped in a flaming bedroom of the 22 Stetson Avenue home when fire swept through the two story wood frame building July 23.

Miss Panteleakos, a cook with the King Manor Convalescent Home in Santa Ana, is curvived by a sister, Susan Phillips, also of Garden Grove.

She was born in Massachusettes and had lived in California for 11 years.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Tourism And Business Board Sets Meeting

The first meeting of the tourism and economic development sub-committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin will be held at 8 p.m. Aug. 7 in the Civic Center Administration Building.

The subcommittee is composed of 12 representatives of the business and professional community, three members of the planning council and four ex officio members. It will study ways of improving Marin's economic base with the help of a federal grant recently awarded to the county.

SALARY HIKES PLUS RESERVES

Rosy Outlook For Fairfax Budget

With a flick of its magic wand, Fairfax has come up with a budget containing a cushiony reserve, 7.5 per cent salary increases and an additional policeman — at little or no increase in the tax rate.

The proposed budget, with a similar reserve, 5 per cent salary hikes and no new employees, would have added 11 cents to the tax rate.

The city council, which had made no substantial changes in the budget in a series of study sessions, was surprised. "Every week we're in better shape," said Councilman Frank J. Egger with a note of incredulity.

The improved budget outlook is the result of overestimating expenditures, underestimating revenue and mathematical errors.

City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet had estimated the general fund balance at the end of the fiscal year at $148,966. The financial report for the fiscal year ending June 30 shows the balance at $170,941.

The council last night approved 7.5 per cent salary increases, 2.5 per cent more than Mrs. Lestanguet had recommended and 2.5 per cent less than employees had asked. There was no discussion.

The council also authorized hiring one additional police officer accompanied by a cut in the police department's request for overtime and vacation relief funds.

Working up to the action, the council unanimously approved a motion by Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet to defer hiring two new officers as requested by Police Chief James R. Orr.

Then, Egger moved to hire one extra officer but it died for lack of a second.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson moved to increase the overtime fund from Mrs. Lestanguet's recommended $11,000 to $14,000, maintaining it was unrealistic to budget less than the $12,500 spent this year. Orr had asked $16,530, claiming there is currently 1,171 hours of overtime on the books.

No one liked that motion either, so Egger made another, to hire another policeman and cut overtime to $9,000. Councilman Robert R. Souza amended the figure to $5,000 and the vote was unanimous.

"You've been talking about utilization of manpower," Fire Chief Charles Thornton said angrily. "I ask for a change of one of my men for utilization of manpower and get turned down," he declared. "I don't understand it."

(His reference to "utilization of manpower" was on Souza's repeated use of the phrase in the police discussion.)

Earlier in the meeting, the council had appointed Fireman George Hettema as a captain despite the recommendation of Thornton that Jean Lestanguet, husband of the city administrator, be named captain. Mrs. Wilson voted no.

Thornton maintained Hettema, trained as a fire prevention officer, should continue in that post, but with captain's rank and pay and Lestanguet should be the shift captain.

The council appointed Hettema because he had finished first on the examination for the post and because, councilmen said, four administrators man department.

Finishing up other budget items, the council agreed to spend $2,500 for implementation of park plans. The parks and recreation commission had asked for $5,000.

The council ended with about $405,000 in expenditures and $395,000 in receipts, with the difference to come from the $171,000 general fund.

The council started trying to figure out a tax rate but decided instead to think about it until the next regular meeting, 8 p.m. Aug. 11 in the Fairfax Women's Club.

The current tax rate is $1.74 per $100 assessed valuation.

Marin City Development To Be Aired

A special town meeting to take the pulse of Marin City residents on future development of the community will be held with commissioners of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

The special meeting was called earlier this month when angry Marin Citians opposed giving the Marin Development Co. (formerly the California Development Corp.) any more time to come up with development plans for Marin City.

The development company, which holds an exclusive contract with the redevelopment agency for developing Marin City, repeatedly has asked for delays. It has held the contract for more than six years without coming up with a firm plan for development.

At the redevelopment agency board meeting July 16, the company asked for another 30-day extension. Tomorrow night's town meeting was called after several residents demanded that Marin Development be declared in default of its contract and the future development of Marin City be opened up to other sources of financial help.

Service Station Expansion Passes

Expansion of a Shell service station at 5639 Paradise Drive was approved last night by the Corte Madera Board of Design, a spokesman reported.

Also approved was an application By Robert J. Dewitz to add a deck enclosure to his home at 144 Mariner Green Court.

Construction Worker Killed By Equipment

A 41-year-old heavy equipment operator working at the new Marin County Hall of Justice was crushed to death yesterday when the loader he was driving rolled over him.

Kenneth Lonzo King, 41, of 23 Carlson Avenue, San Anselmo, suffered multiple injuries to his head, left foot and right leg at 11:15 a.m. and died in the emergency room of Marin General Hospital at 12:35 p.m., the coroner's office reported.

A witness to the accident, Leslie Wider, maintenance superintendent, said he heard the loader come up the hill at the southwest corner of the Hall of Justice.

"A few minutes later, I heard the motor rev up to much higher than normal. I dashed out to the balcony and saw the loader going down the hill backwards," Wider said.

"About two-thirds of the way down, he tried to make a turn. The equipment rolled over him completely and landed right side up. His head and feet were crushed," Wider reported.

King was an operating engineer with Maggiora and Ghilotti and had been with the firm for 10 years.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Warning To San Rafael From Water Quality Board

The hard line taken by the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board with the City of San Francisco last week should serve as warning to San Rafael.

The water quality control board's patience is not yet worn so thin with San Rafael as it is with San Francisco, which has been procrastinating about doing anything about its pollution of the bay for years and years. But if San Rafael officials fail to start moving, the board's temper could rise rapidly.

And the board now has all the power it needs to force action. A new state law, which will take effect 60 days after adjournment of the legislature, imposes a $6,000 per day fine on any jurisdiction that ignores the board's order to cease and desist from practices which pollute the bay.

THIS IS BY FAR the toughest anti-pollution law yet put on the books, at least in this part of the country. It was passed by the legislature and signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan with little fanfare. But it may go farther toward cleaning up our environment than all the regulations of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District and Bay Conservation and Development Commission put together.

San Francisco has for over a century been dumping raw sewage in the bay. It has never installed a sewer system as such. It uses storm drains to carry the sewage. When it rains, this means the treatment plants must be by-passed. The result: raw sewage flows into the bay from San Francisco at 41 points.

San Rafael has nothing so bad as that. It has a well-designed sanitary sewer system — which includes areas outside the city and is operated by the San Rafael Sanitation District — in addition to its storm drain system. The trouble here is that storm drains on private property have been connected into the sanitary sewer system in many instances, leaks in pipelines have caused intrusion of storm water into the sanitary sewers, and as a result the treatment plant is overloaded during heavy rains.

The water quality control board has had harsh words about this in the past, and has put San Rafael on notice to do something about it. But — as in the case of San Francisco — it has not been able to put a great deal of muscle behind its demands. Now, thanks to the new law, it has the muscle.

THE IMPLICATION seems pretty clear: The board intends to crack down first on San Francisco, the biggest offender. But San Rafael can expect to feel its wrath, too, unless it takes action to make corrections such as recommended in the Dan Coleman Associates report in June of this year.

Incidentally, there is an interesting sidelight regarding the water quality control board's raking over of San Francisco at its meeting last week in Hayward: Neither the San Francisco Chronicle nor the San Francisco Examiner carried a word about it the following day. San Francisco residents presumably had to learn about it from their fellow workers who commute from Marin County or Alameda County and read about in the Independent-Journal or the Oakland Tribune.

Little's $45,000 Ferry Report —And What It Didn't Include

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The consulting firm which concluded earlier this month that ferries should be revived between Marin and San Francisco hung its hat pretty hard on the hope that a practical hydrofoil could be developed for the system.

The consultants, Arthur D. Little Inc., almost completely dismissed conventional displacement ferries. "The top speeds that can be produced by most displacement vessels fall only slightly above the minimum speeds required to make water transport systems operating from middle to north Marin competitive with the present work trip times of driving an automoblile," was the way the report put it.

THE REPORT, bought with $45,000 in taxes from Marin and San Francisco, mentioned fleetingly that the naval architectural firm of Morris Guralnick Associates Inc. had recommended the conventional displacement vessel over more exotic types. This firm, not the Little firm, presumably was the expert on water transportation, but the naval architects rated only one brief mention in the Little report.

When our curiosity led us to ask the Little people if a separate report had been done by Guralnick, we were told "no." Then, when we found one indeed existed, the Little people refused to release a copy of it.

Shortly afer we pointed out that their refusal to release it probably violated California's public record laws, the Little people telephoned back to explain they meant only that they could not release a copy of Guralnick's report because they had only one, but that we could get one from Guralnick. Which we did.

AFTER ALL THIS hocus-pocus we were disappointed to find Guralnick's report less a real thriller than a thoroughly documented report on why the naval architects strongly doubted hydrofoils would work on the bay.

Because hydrofoils are limited in the number of passengers they can carry, they said, "the number of units required to accommodate the peak commuter loads without serious delays make this approach undesirable for the main San Francisco-Marin service. It is doubtful whether they could maintain high speed schedules on the bay during periods of low visibility."

The largest hydrofoil in the world was made last year in Norway with a capacity of 240 passengers, or "less than one-sixth the number which can be comfortably carried in a medium sized displacement hull," the Guralnick reported noted.

According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, Guralnick said, the best use of hydrofoils would be in the 30 to 200 mile range — far longer runs than needed here.

GURALNICK DID NOT estimate the cost of the hydrofoils envisioned by the Little consultants, a pity in light of the extremely low estimate of $600,000 apiece in the Little report.

As for the other exotic vessel, the air cushion vehicle, Guralnick declared it to be "expensive, noisy, uncomfortable and undependable. '

Meanwhile, of course, the traffic just gets even worse.

Water District Playing Favorites

It was with sincere regret that I read in the I-J that the Marin Municipal Water District is going to asks for $57.5 million to spend on improvements in the coming years. Before the public should be asked to pay for this very substantial increases in costs it would be well to inquire as to how the district is managing the money and income that it is getting. Also, whether it is keeping the interests of the subscribers to the system at heart, or whether it is favoring a few wealthy and influential individuals.

This would not ordinarily be apparent except for the fact that in the same issue of the I-J is a report of the management that is so glaring an example of favoring the influential few at the expense of the rest of us, that I am appalled. I believe that the I-J should verify or retract a report that the Meadow Club of Tamalpais is paying a measly $500 a year rent for this very valuable land which it uses for club and golf course.

This land, at a very conservative estimate, is worth $2,000 an acre and is far more attractive than other land being considered by the City of San Rafael for a potential golf course site, at a price similar to this. The club would have to use at least 125 acres for its layout, and this would indicate that it is using public land for its exclusive advantage which is valued at a minimum of $250,000. At a conservative rent of 5 per cent of the valuation per year for rent (a figure well established in practice) this club should be charged at least $12,500 per year . . .

We may well inquire whether there are any other sweetheart contracts in existence, and who is being benefited? This sort of a situation makes me boiling mad. I hope that other like-minded people will inquire about how their money is being spent.

He Also Serves Who Orbits And Waits

I am writing in regards to an article about the Apollo XI astronauts which appeared in the July 24 issue of the I-J.

Pictures of Aldrin and Armstrong appeared on the front page with a caption under their pictures reading, "Space Heroes". Also appearing on the front page, under those of Aldrin and Armstrong was a picture of astronaut Michael Collins. Under his picture was his name and a mere statement, "He waited in space".

Isn't Collins a space here too?

Armstrong and Aldrin would not have been able to complete their mission and come home without the work and help of Collins. The Apollo XI crew is a crew and it works together in the same way a team works together. If team has a victory, it is a victory the whole team shares. The same is true with the Apollo XI crew. The success of the mission was a result of the work of the crew as a whole, along with the hard work of the ground crew.

Even though Collins did not land or walk on the moon, he was a member of the crew and had to face many dangers while fulfilling his part of the mission.

Now, I ask again, isn't Collins a space hero too?

Of course astronaut Michael Collins is a hero, too. The caption writer was merely trying to avoid repetition. — Editor.

The Other Arms Race— And Our Share In It

Reprinted from
New York Times

Leaders of developing nations, who are rarely reticent about criticizing the big powers for diverting resources needed for development into an extravagant and self-defeating arms race, drew a pertinent rebuke the other day from the secretary general of the United Nations. U Thant pointed out that some developing countries themselves are wasting their meager national resources on arms, creating a "vicious circle of greater violence, which leads to aggravated poverty, leading in turn to new violence."

The Middle East today is certainly a case in point. So is the Indian subcontinent where India and Pakistan feed their persisting military rivalry with funds which would be better employed in mutual development for the benefit of their impoverished and increasingly restive peoples.

THE PRIMARY responsibility for this deplorable state of affairs lies with the developing countries themselves who so often fail to practice the principles of peaceful coexistence they so piously preach. But some of the blame must fall on the big powers who are all too ready to peddle or dump their surplus arms without adequate regard for the possible military, economic and political consequences.

Secretary of Defense Laird has taken note of the Russian role in feeding the mini arms race. But in doing so, Mr. Laird made a strong plea for continuing United States participation in this shortsighted competition. He assured the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that American arms sales are authorized "only after careful consideration is given to the potential impact on social and economic development and on arms races."

THE COMMITTEE knows better. Ralph A. Dungan, a former ambassador to Chile, testified recently that there has been "willing collaboration of U.S. military personnel to expand major weapons procurement" for Latin countries. He said one United States military mission was dispatched to "drum up sales" of the $5 million C-130 troop transport and he suspected the only reason for this was "to keep the production line going in Georgia."

"If there is a problem of 'Militarism' in the Latin-American countries," Mr. Dungan concluded, "we bear a heavy burden for its existence." The same can be said for other areas of the world.

It is time all countries, large and small, made a concerted effort to stop the arms race at all levels. This urgent goal could be accomplished if they would cooperate in strengthening the peace-making and peace-keeping machinery of the United Nations to provide an effective alternative to war for the settlement of international disputes.

Oil Import Control Program Needs Reform, Not Abandonment

Tax reform proposals, and a special cabinet-level task force study of the oil import control program, are focusing attention on the economic and political importance of oil. Consumers want oil import controls relaxed and ordinary taxpayers want oil depletion allowances cut. Domestic petroleum industry representatives want both retained.

There is substantial evidence that the depletion allowance, which applies to a number of mineral resources, has been stretched beyond its original intent as an incentive for development of domestic resources. For example, the allowance now applies to overseas petroleum operations. Reform of the depletion allowance should be one of the priority items in this year's tax reform legislation.

THE OIL IMPORT program also needs reform. President Eisenhower imposed the controls in 1959, in the aftermath of the first Suez crisis. As originally set up it covered crude oil, petroleum products and residual fuel oil. Under the program, importers of record (as of 1957), refiners and deep-water terminal operators receive licenses to import given quantities of crude oil, products or residual fuel. The effect of the system is to maintain higher prices for domestic crude oil and petroleum products and to funnel additional profits to holders of licenses.

Consumers in New England won a major victory when the system was modified to permit importation of residual fuel oil to meet domestic demand. Contrary to predictions by some oil industry spokesmen, the change in the residual fuel import program did not cause ill effects in the domestic industry, but it did lower consumer costs.

I believe similar changes should be made in the crude oil import program. Consumers are paying more than they should for petroleum products, and a major cause of those high prices is the import control program. Secy. of Labor George P. Schultz, who heads the oil import task force, has an opportunity to recommend such changes to the President by early this fall.

I DO NOT think it is feasible, or necessarily desirable, to remove oil import controls completely at this time. A sudden end to the program could cause havoc among independent producers, refiners and marketers. That, in turn, would add to the domination of the petroleum market by a few major companies, a domination which the oil import program has fostered.

The national interest will not be served by continuing the oil import control program in its present form. Neither will it be served by ending the program so quickly that smaller operators are drowned in a flood of oil brought in by major international companies.

Therefore, I have recommended that fuel and petroleum product deficit areas, such as the northwest, be given additional import allocations and that licenses be issued on the basis of actual sales. This is a system which has worked for residual imports. I think it could work to the consumer's interest, without undermining the domestic petroleum industry.

U.S. Gesture Can Mean Little To Red China

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States has given a nice little bonus to the businessmen of Hong Kong, but after that, one wonders.

A July 21 State Department announcement declared that henceforth American tourists may bring back with them $100 worth of goods made in Red China and that a ban on travel to Red China will be lifted for scholars, students, scientists, physicians and newsmen.

The announcement declared the action to be in the interests of "the development of peaceful contacts between the peoples of the United States and Communist China."

THE WONDERMENT springs from the fact that for some years State Department permission for the above listed categories to travel in Red China has been not much more than a formality anyway.

The catch has been that in most cases the Red Chinese do not want them.

Nor will permission for U.S. travelers to buy $100 worth of Chinese Communist-manufactured goods do much for Red coffers.

The enterprising merchants of Hong Kong, chief outlets for relics, silks, jewelry, etc., the items dearest to the hearts of tourists, have always been willing to swear the goods did not come from the Chinese mainland, regardless of whether they did or not.

THE CHANGES, then, are at the most symbolic, some slight sign that the United States finally is easing its 20-year total ban on trade with the Chinese Communists.

The Red Chinese reply can be expected to be a nose-thumbing gesture of derision at imperialist double-talk, based on earlier Nixon administration statements.

Early in his administration the President expressed his opposition to Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

On May 28, his opposition to an easing of trade curbs against the Communists also was disclosed.

Both were pegged on "present circumstances."

OPPONENTS to the President's position argue that the United States cannot much longer ignore the fact of Red China's existence and that it is shutting U. S. industry out of a market containing 750 million people.

Britain recognized the Red Chinese regime partly to protect Hong Kong. France did it because President Charles de Gaulle sought to re-establish French influence in Asia. Japan sought business advantage. None has been particularly successful.

Official Japan-Red Chinese trade ties come to less than $70 million annually.

Against these precedents, then, the U.S. action must be taken first as a step to enhance its bargaining position in future talks with the Soviet Union and second to assure the Red Chinese that in their quarrel with the Russians the United States is neutral.

Facts, Figures About Novato And Its Splendid Isolation

The other day we happened to attend a meeting in Central Marin and heard a few snide remarks made about Novato. Ever since we've been in Novato, we have felt isolated from the rest of Marin County, and apparently the central and southern part of the county feels much the same way. Many other Marinites look at Novato as the old time Israelites looked at Nazareth — could any good come out of it?

Unlike other cities in Marin County, Novato is a city within an area with many component parts. For example, the Novato Fire District has 75 square miles in it; the Novato Unified School District has 50 square miles in it, and the city has 20 square miles in it.

In this area are approximately 40,000 people or about 1/5th of the population of Marin County — a pretty big tail for a dog to wag.

THE CITY OF NOVATO is the largest in area in the county, going eight miles in one direction and one and one-half in the other.

Parts of the city are below sea level where it is diked. Novato also has the highest city limits —the summit of Big Rock Ridge which is 1,905 feet elevation, or less than 600 feet lower than Mount Tamalpais. Big Rock Ridge offers a route for the most scenic highway in the county. It is now a fire trail that starts at Highway 101 on St. Vincent's Hill and follows the ridge over eight peaks that go from 1,305 feet upward to the one just under 2,000 feet. The ridge has a bulk about twice that of Mount Tamalpais and the road goes fairly straight. If made open to the public, it would give a view of a big share of Marin County, San Pablo Bay, the East Bay cities, and east to Vallejo.

Novato borders on San Pablo Bay where barges bring in fuel to Hamilton Air Force Base. It also borders on the Petaluma River.

The city also has in it several miles of man-made lagoons, probably more than any other city in the county. These make the city a boaters' haven.

Two golf courses serve its residents, the Marin Country Club and Indian Valley Golf Club, which is the only one in the United States with an elevator between holes.

It also has the largest airport in the area — Hamilton Air Force base, which unfortunately is unavailable for private planes. Bordering the city on the north is Gnoss Field, the only lighted airport with a 3,300-foot runway within 45 miles.

FOR THE PAST 10 years Novato has been the fastest growing city both in population and area, and is second only to San Rafael in population.

Isolated as it is, Novato has not pushed itself forward as much as many citizens and officials would like. For example, the city limits signs on Highway 101 is nearly two miles inside the city limits. The state Dvision of Highways should erect a sign on the southern city limits, which touch St. Vincent's School for Boys. This sign should read: "Novato, Next 11 exits."

Novato has a space and the master plan studies predict that eventually it will contain a larger population than there is now within the entire county.

The Novato City Hall is the old Presbyterian Church converted into a city hall. The church bell still hangs in the belfry. So when the Apollo astronauts landed, the city employees went into the belfry to ring the bell.

They report that there were no bats in the belfry.

Drug Sentence

Carl Lonas King, 21, of Fairfax, was sentenced yesterday in Marin Superior Court to 60 days in jail and two years' probation for selling methedrine Feb. 3, 1968. King was given credit for 60 days already served in jail and was released.

ART BUCHWALD

Once There Were Two Martians Who Landed In A Park, And . . .

WASHINGTON — As I watched the two American astronauts on television go through their paces on the moon, I couldn't help thinking:

Suppose two Martians named Neil and Buzz made a space trip to this world and by accident landed in one of our city's parks.

A COP drives up. "Hey, you guys. Get that piece of junk out of here."

"It's not a piece of junk," says Neil. "It's an earth module."

"Yeah, well I don't care what you call it. You're not supposed to put up nutty sculpture in the park."

"We're only going to be here two hours and 40 minutes," Buzz says. "It's very important that we get earth samples for our scientists to study."

COP ASKS suspiciously, "What kind of samples?"

"Earth samples," Neil says. "You see, I take this little scoop with the plastic bag on the end and dig it into the surface like this, and I put the bag in the pocket of my space suit."

"You're pushing pot!" the cop yells.

"We don't know what pot is," Buzz says. "But we're supposed to pick up rocks and put them in a box."

"And then," the cop says, "after you put the rocks in the box, you're going to take off in that crazy piece of sculpture?"

"AFFIRMATIVE," says Neil. "But first we have to put the plaque up."

"What kind of plaque?" the cop asks as he takes out his notebook.

"It's a plaque which says, 'We came in peace for all Marskind.' "

"I get it. You're a bunch of anti-Vietnam peaceniks. Where are the rest of the creeps?"

"There's only Mike, and he's flying around 100 miles above us, waiting for us to come back."

THE COP looks up. "Mike is flying around 100 miles up there? Oh, yeah. There he is."

"You can't see him," Buzz says. "He's way out in space."

"Well, Mike ain't the only one. Let me ask you a question, and I wish to precede it with a warning that you may have the service of an attorney and that I am apprising you of your constitutional rights. Are you guys on a trip?"

"Of course we are," says Neil. "Why else would we be here?"

"Wait a minute, wait a minute," the cop says. "What kind of flag is that you're sticking up?"

"It's our national flag."

"NO FLAG flies in this park but the American flag. Now you take down that flag this minute or I'll knock those crazy motorcycle helmets off your heads."

"But we have to put the flag up or our parliament won't give us any future monies for our space program."

The cop wipes his face with a handkerchief.

"What are you doing with the camera?"

"We have to take pictures of the earth's surface, so we can pinpoint where we've been."

"OF COURSE," the cop says. "There's no sense taking a trip if you can't remember where you've been. Now listen to me, you blankety blanks. Don't either one of you move until I tell you to. Stay right where you are."

"But we have to set up the sun experiments."

The cop gets out his gun. "I said stay where you are." He picks up the microphone in his car. "Hello, gimme the chief . car. "Hello, gimme the chief. . . . Hello, chief. This is Pulan- if I told you I've got two hippies dressed in silver motorcycle suits and goggles with packs on their backs, picking up rocks and dirt in the park and sticking them in their pockets? . . . That's what I thought you'd say . . . No, no, everything's fine . . . It's just a quiet Monday morning . . . Yeah, I'll speak to you later.

"All right, you two weirdos," the cop says, "I'm going to drive around the park and then I'm coming back; and if you and that piece of junky sculpture ain't out of the park when I return you'll be picking up the rest of your rock samples in the yard of the county jail."

If You Could Have Seen

the joy in our eyes, then, these words could go unsaid. This is one of the most charming, sturdily built, Bavarian chalet-styled modified "A"-frame homes that we have seen (3 bdrms., 2 bas. plus den). From the quality carpeted liv. rm. a styled staircase rises with a flair to a railinged study-den & to a most generous sized mstr. bdrm. w/adj. large walk-in closet & bath. The view windows are like picture frames encasing the beauty of natural wooded privacy accented by Yosemite-sized boulders and gay splashes of colorful fruit & flowers. The csutomized all-elec. kitchen is unusual and warm with rdwd. paneling & surprise quality extras. About 12 min. to G.G. toll. Want charming living (?), then please phone now; you'll be glad you did!

Trio Appears To Hear Charge

Three Marin City residents charged with interfering with sheriff's deputies who tried to arrest one of them Wednesday were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

David Townsell Jr., 22, Brian Beard, 24, and Peggy Bullock, 20, were released on their own recognizance to appear Aug. 11 with counsel.

Deputies reported they tried to arrest Townsell on traffic warrant when they saw him on a commuter bus, and that Miss Bullock and Beard tried to prevent the arrest.

Deputies said the incident occurred in Marin City, but Beard and Miss Bullock said yesterday the bus was well inside the Sausalito city limits at the time.

Pleads Innocent

Jeffrey Lynn Evans, 20, of San Anselmo, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of selling marijuana Oct. 1 in San Anselmo. A jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 24.

Oregon Attorney General Indicted On Corruption

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—The attorney general of Oregon has been indicted by the Marion County grand jury for alleged violations of the state's Corrupt Practices Act.

Yesterday's indictment charged that Lee Johnson failed to report his election expenses as required within 15 days after the November general election and with making a false oath when notarizing his expenses.

Dist. Atty. Gary Gortmaker said the former Portland attorney signed a blank statement of expenses, leaving it for his lawyer to fill in the amounts. Gortmaker alleged Johnson was out of the state on the day his campaign expense statement was notorized.

"This matter will have to be resolved in the courts," Johnson said. "I do not believe I have committed a crime or any other wrongdoing."

TV REVIEW

Gleason Building Big Shows

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The word from the camp of CBS-TV's Jackie Gleason is that the great one will be going all out to fend off the new competition of NBC-TV's Andy Williams this fall.

Gleason has been a rock of ratings consistency and power for CBS-TV for years, and the NBC-TV move of confronting him head-on with Williams' variety hour will be watched closely by the trade as well as the public.

A Gleason spokesman says the comedian will offer at least 10 new one-hour musicals based on "The Honeymooners" characters that are the anchor of the series.

CARNEY BACK

This means clearly, says the spokesman, that Art Carney, Sheila MacRae and Jane Kean will be back with Gleason. The Carney confirmation, which seems solid at this point, according to the spokesman, is pivotal to the success of the series.

For there is little doubt that without Carney the series would be severely weakened, and that the Williams competition would become even more formidable.

In addition to "The Honeymooners' musicals, says the spokesman, there will be at least 10 other programs, original, in the musical-comedy style, in which Gleason will offer some of his other characters—such as Reggie Van Gleason.

BROADWAY NAMES

The spokesman also notes that the Gleason series will bring a number of Broadway names to the Miami Beach production point to play supporting roles in the various musical hours.

Merv Griffin's late-night CBS-TV show, opposite Johnny Carson and Joey Bishop, has its debut Aug. 18, and his announcer-sidekick will continue to be the amazingly youthful and wholly charming actor who served the same function on his syndicated series, Arthur Treacher, 75 years old.

CBS-TV notes that Treacher, who was famous as a snobbish movie butler, first met Griffin eight years ago.

Four years later, Griffin signed the deal for his syndicated series, and, he says, "I immediately stated that I wanted Arthur as the sidekick and announcer. I absolutely insisted on it. When Arthur's agent called to tell him he had been offered a rather 'different' sort of job, Treacher knew before being told that it was for my show. And he accepted on the spot."

Year's Probation

William Norman Roberts of San Geronimo was given a suspended 30-day jail sentence yesterday in Marin Superior Court and placed on a year's probation for having marijuana in his home May 5, 1968.

Eldridge Cleaver Now A Father

ALGIERS (AP) — Mrs. Eldridge Cleaver, wife of the Black Panther leader who skipped bail in San Francisco and has been living abroad for about eight months, gave birth to a son in an Algiers clinic today.

Cleaver and his wife have been in Algiers for the Pan-African Cultural Festival as guests of the Algierian government.

Cleaver was not available but friends said that the baby would be named Eldridge Jr.

Santa Cruz Fires Lifeguards

SANTA CRUZ (UPI)—The Santa Cruz City Council has fired 13 striking lifeguards after the strikers picketed city beaches for three straight days in a demand for higher wages.

The lifeguards said they would probably appeal the firing and were in contact with an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union.

The strike began Saturday when the city refused to meet the lifeguards' wage demand of $3 an hour, offering instead $2.48.

The striking city guards contended their scale should be higher because they work right next door to state lifeguards who receive $3.40 an hour.

Swimmers were warned to bathe at their own risk since only four replacement lifeguards were on duty at the city beaches.

Arraigned On Marijuana Count

James David Jensen, 32, who reportedly was found by highway patrolmen July 20 beside a wrecked hearse clutching a paper bag full of narcotics and jewelry, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Jensen was ordered to appear Aug. 11 with counsel.

Deputies estimated the 1958 hearse contained $5,000 worth of jewels and a large quantity of drugs and narcotics paraphernalia. Jensen was committed to Napa State Hospital for psychiatric observation after he was found by the wreck at White's Hill.

Lower Tax Rate Now Likely In Sausalito School Budget

A preliminary 1969-70 budget of $1,429,927 which will require a tax rate increase of 25 cents instead of the 35-cent hike anticipated earlier was approved last night by the Sausalito School District board, Supt. Phillip W. Schneider said today.

School district trustees also approved a survey of parents to see if they want a breakfast program, currently sponsored by the Black Panthers, continued.

The budget, on which final action will be taken Aug. 4, is down from last fiscal year's budget of $1,625,830.

The reason the tax increase is needed despite the lower budget, according to Asst. Supt. Joseph Amato, is that the last budger included funds for the San Francisco State College-sponsored Step Program in the district and a $112,000 school facilities planning grant from the state which will not be in the new budget.

The anticipated tax rate to meet the new budget will be $3.29 per $100 assessed valuation, Schneider said. Previously, the board had figured a tax levy of $3.39 — 35 cents higher than last year — would be necessary.

Schneider said the lower tax rate was made possible as a result of the district's income being higher than expected.

The budget carries a 7.5 per cent salary increase for district teachers, administrators and classified employees.

Schneider said the survey of the breakfast program will be done "as soon as possible." If parents decide they want the program continued, he said, it would be taken over by the school district with some help from federal funds and some financial support from private organizations.

The survey and decision on whether the program will be continued will be made before school starts on Sept. 10, he said.

The Sausalito School District board also:

READING — At the request of a group of parents agreed to put special emphasis on reading at the Martin Luther King School. The program, with particular focus on youngsters who are two or more years behind their grade level in reading, would include coordinated programs from first through eighth grades, in-service training for teachers and whatever consultant and specialist help is needed, Schneider said.

CALENDAR — Approved the school calendar for the coming school year with school running from Sept. 10 to June 12, the same calendar adopted by Tamalpais High School.

FIRE — Decided to consider contracting with the Sausalito Fire Department for fire protection for the Manzanita Kindergarten School in addition to protection already furnished by the county fire department.

PAVING — Held over a discussion on a paving project for a driveway at the Martin Luther King School.

Pleads Innocent To LSD Possession

David Brian Denison, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of possessing LSD. Trial was set for August 25.

Sheriff's deputies reportedly found the drug on Denison June 14 when he was returning from a doctor's appointment. He was serving a burglary sentence.

Thefts Reported In San Rafael

San Rafael police today reported three bicycle thefts and a car theft.

A car beloning to Gail Lynn Sivori of 16 Hillcrest Court, San Anselmo was stolen from 111 Clayton where the owner had parked it.

A bicycle belonging to Dean J. Dinellis of San Francisco, valued at $40, was stolen yesterday from the parking lot at Lucky Market at Northgate Shopping Center. Robin Jones of 2542 Las Gallinas reported a bicycle stolen from his home July 18.

Pair Posts $5,000 Bond In Drug Case

Two men arrested Sunday with $10,055 in their possession managed to scrape up another $2,500 bail apiece yesterday after being arraigned on charges of possessing marijuana.

Lawrence Victor Harrison, 28, of Soquel, Santa Cruz County, and Kevin Richard Stein, 21, of San Francisco, were arrested in 1954 Bentley. The surprised highway patrolman found $8,600 in small bills in a paper bag along with $1,495 in Stein's pockets.

Also found, the California Highway Patrol said, were two marijuana cigarettes and several marijuana butts. The car was initially stopped because it had a British license plate on the rear.

The men knew nothing of the marijuana in the borrowed car, defense attorney Terrence Hallinan told Marin Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith yesterday.

As for the cash, he said, "it's not a crime in this country to have a lot of money — not yet." Smith reduced bail from the original $18,000 apiece and the pair bailed out later in the afternoon.

Hallinan said later the money was intended as a payment on a house Harrison is buying in Mill Valley. Both the car and the money were impounded by officials.

When arrested, the men gave no explanation for the money. Hallinan told the court the men wanted to say as little as possible until they got an attorney.

The car is registered to Ronald Stevenson of Jenner who, Harrison and Stein said, lent them the car and is now in Hawaii or Japan.

A preliminary hearing was set for 2 p.m. Sept. 11.

Durocher In, Out Of Hot Water; Admits 'Stupidity'

CHICAGO (AP)—Leo Durocher manager of the Chicago Cubs, is not above making mistakes. Sometimes he admits them and sometimes he doesn't.

"It wasn't Hands' fault," said Durocher yesterday after the Cubs threw away certain victory and then snatched it back from Juan Marichal and the San Francisco Giants 4-3 in 10 innings.

"It was stupidity on my part," admitted Durocher when Bill Hands' sailing along with a 2-0 shutout, threw a home run pitch to Willie McCovey in the eighth to tie the game.

The Giants took the lead in the top of the 10th on Willie Mays' run-scoring single, but the Cubs pulled it out in the bottom of the 10th after two were out on a walk and singles by Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert and Billy Williams.

It marked the first time the Cubs have whipped Marichal since September of 1966 and their first victory over the Dominican righthander in Wrigley Field since 1964.

Durocher confessed to stupidity in not ordering Hands to walk McCovey in the eighth with a man on second and first base open.

"I must be second guessing myself," he said. "I walked him in the first inning with a man on second and first base open. In fact, I long ago decided to handle him like I used to handle Stan Musial. Anytime Musial could tie me or beat me, I ordered him walked. That's all.

"I should have done the same thing to McCovey. Then if Dietz (Dick) hit a homer to win the game and you guys came down to ask me why I walked McCovey, I would have told you it's my decision.

"But my boys took me off the hook," added Durocher, "they never quit or give up."

While the Cubs took Leo off the hook on the field, it remained to be seen what would happen today when he meets with club owner P. K. Wrigley about his disappearing act off the field.

Durocher left in the third inning of last Saturday's game, complaining of stomach pains. He also missed Sunday's game.

Later it was learned he appeared at Camp Ojibwa, Eagle River, Wis., Saturday night at a parents' reception. Mrs. Durocher's young son is attending the camp. Durocher and Lynne Walker Goldblatt were married last month.

When Wrigley learned what had happened, he said Durocher owed the players, the coaches and management an apology.

Durocher refused to comment when he came to the ball park yesterday morning saying, "It's a private matter and I don't discuss my private life with anyone. If I have anything to say, I'll tell it to Mr. Wrigley."

"Leo can do anything he wants," said Wrigley, "but the way he did it, it seems to have left everyone hanging. If he had told the club what it was, everything would have been fine. The players are busting a boiler to win. I don't like to see these upsetting things at this stage of the game."

JIM GILMARTIN

Novato An Incubator Of Baseball Champs

The younger males of the City of Novato look like other boys in the country. I mean, they all have two arms, two legs, one head, etc.

But there is something strangely different about Novatans. Maybe it's the weather, although it doesn't seem much different in Northern Marin than in San Anselmo, Fairfax or San Rafael. They eat the same type of groceries as other kids. Maybe it's the water, although the North Marin Water District insists its product is essentially the same as the MMWD's

Anyway, what I'm getting at, is how in the world does the city the size of Novato consistently produce such outstanding baseball talent? I think newborns up that way are draped in striped, numbered flannels instead of conventional diapers. While the infants in the poverty pocket of the Ross area, for example, are born with silver spoons in their mouths, Novato tykes spurn rattles for horsehides, tinker toys for Louisville sluggers, pacifiers for webbed mitts.

Young Man's Fancy . . . Bats, Balls

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to birds and bees. In Novato, it's bats and balls. Batter up.

It's been that way for some years and 1969 is no different.

Briefly, here is what has transpired in the Bounty County's northernmost community:

To start the ball rolling, Novato High School won the Marin County Athletic League championship with Russell King Dillon being named Player of the Year.

Then, on the collegiate scene, Novatan John Dolinsek led Arizona State University to the NCAA World Series, earning most valuable player award and a bonus professional contract with the Houston Astros Organization.

Most Valuable In Conference

Another collegian from the Baseball Capital of Marin, shortstop Tom Corder of San Jose State, was named MVP in the West Coast Athletic Conference with brilliant play at shortstop and at bat. Corder has another season at SJS after which he is a cinch to be selected high in the major league draft.

Annex-Motors-sponsored team of Novato kept the streak intact by easily winning the Northern Division title of the Marin Joe DiMaggio League for high school age players and could go on to further honors this month. Don't bet against it.

Not to be outdone, younger players in Novato are going great guns. The Babe Ruth Leaguers have won six consecutive tournament games and are in Auburn for the Northern California championships; and the Novato American All-Stars have captured the Marin title and will go to Santa Rosa this weekend for the Sectional Little League championships.

Only One Regulation Diamond

There seems no end in sight to this parade of championship talent. What makes it seem more remarkable is that the city has only one regulation baseball diamond at Novato High School and that one does not have lights.

Maybe they have bigger backyards in Novato.

Anyway, next time you're in Novato, don't dare holler "Play Ball!" or "Hi, champ." You're liable to be stampeded.

OOPS — that was Lon (not Lou) McEachern and not Alan McIntosh of the Twin Cities All-Stars who hit two home runs in last week's Marin District Little League Tournament. Saturday's I-J erroneously credited McIntosh with two blasts instead of one and McEachern with one instead of two.

Anyway, Mac hit two. And Mac hit one. Follow me?

Pinson Continues Streak As Cards Nip Padres

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vada Pinson and Billy Williams attended to their private business in plenty of time to become good company men when the chips were down.

Pinson ran his hitting streak to 19 games with a fourth inning single last night, then came up with the deciding hit and saving defensive play in the St. Louis Cardinals' 2-1 victory over San Diego.

Williams also singled in the fourth, for a 17-game hitting skein, before stroking the winning single in a two-run 10th inning rally that sent the Chicago Cubs past San Francisco 4-3 in the day's only other game.

Pinson matched the N.L.'s season-high hitting streaks, shared by Pittsburgh's Matty Alou and Willie Stargell, with his fourth inning single, then doubled to score Julian Javier in the sixth and give St. Louis a 2-0 lead.

Cardinals' rookie Chuck Taylor blanked the Padres until the eighth, when they scored on an error by Javier, an infield hit by Ed Spiezio and a double by Roberto Pena.

An intentional walk filled the bases with one out, but Pinson gloved Nate Colbert's foul fly down the right field line and fired to the plate to nail pinch runner John Sipin, completing a rally-killing double play.

YACHT SERIES TIED

Australian yacht Toogooloowoo IV (background) defeated The Goose of Seattle on a protest yesterday to tie their best-of-seven race series at three-all on San Francisco Bay. The six-meter sloops will clash tomorrow in the deciding race at 10 a.m. Story on page 32.

HALL OF FAME

The Sentimental Stars

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Four new plaques hang on the walls of the Baseball Hall of Fame today. Two honor pitchers from the dim past, while the other two are for a couple of sluggers known even to the younger generation of fans.

Officially enshrined yesterday in this village where baseball Coveleski and Waite Hoyt and slugging stars Roy Campanella and Stan "The Man" Musial.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn introduced the new Hall of Fame members at the ceremony and read the inscriptions on their plaques.

Campanella, In a wheelchair since an auto crash in 1958 ended his catching career with the Brooklyn Dodgers, said, "Regardless of my being here today in a wheelchair this is one of the greatest days in my life. Today means so much to me."

Musial, who played 22 years for the St. Louis Cardinals and still holds a host of batting records, almost broke up when he recalled his boyhood in the steel town of Donora, Pa.

"My father," he said, "was a Polish immigrant and a great baseball fan. I always remember him talking about Baby Ruth. The Musials were poor then, and my first toy was a baseball,"

His favorite ball players in ers Carl Hubbell and Lefty Grove and hitting stars Mel Ott and Lloyd Waner.

He also reminisced about playing against Campanella and the Dodgers. "Campy was always trying to distract me," he said. "It wasn't the Brooklyn pitchers who got me. It was Campy."

Coveleski, now white haired and bent with age, won 216 games in a 14-season career in the majors in the early 1900s. He choked up, too, when it was his turn to be officially inducted, but he managed to go on.

He told of working for $3.75 a week in the coal mines around his native Shamokin, Pa., and of chunking stones at a tin can dangling from a tree—a past-

Raiders Release Several Players

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who must drop five players to trim their roster to 60 by Saturday night, made several cuts yesterday.

However, officials said they won't say how many were cut or who they were until tomorrow.

'Also-Ran' Aaron Now Belongs To Establishment

MONTREAL (AP) — Tommy Aaron has joined golf's establishment.

He's finally shed the stigma of the perennial also-ran by winning a tournament.

The tall, 32-year-old from Callaway Gardens, Ga., made it to the winner's circle yesterday after a nine-year wait, capturing the Canadian Open Championship by twos trokes in an 18-hole playoff round with veteran Sam Snead—25 years his senior.

"I guess you won't talk about the fact I've never won one now," Aaron gently chided newsmen. "You'll probably quit writing about me because there's nothing unique about me now. I've become one of the guys. I've won one."

Aaron shot a two-under-par 70 over the Pinegrove Golf Club layout while Snead had to settle for a par 72.

His victory was a big one financially as well as psychologically. He won $25,000 to Snead's $14,300 and added $4,500 as his share of the gate.

PLAYOFF LOOT

Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., also picked up $4,500 additional money from gate receipts of $18,000 from the estimated 3,000-strong gallery. Fifty per cent of playoff gates are assigned to the golfers involved, with the Royal Canadian Golf Association and he host club equally splitting the other 50 per cent.

The pair had finished the regulation 72-hole route Sunday with identical 13-under-par 275 scores, with Aaron setting a course record with a eight-under 64 in the fourth round to catch Snead.

The veteran had held a six-stroke lead over Aaron entering Sunday's round.

EIGHT SECONDS

Aaron had registered eight second-place finishes since turning pro in 1960, but had never been able to better those performances.

However, he did his first victory up in style. Leading by one stroke going into the 18th, Aaron guided in a 25-foot putt for an eagle 3, while Snead had his eagle attempt from 40 feet miss by less than an inch and slide four feet beyond the cup.

Snead birdied the hole, but only after the excitement caused by Aaron's efforts had died down.

Novato To Meet Concord

The Novato American All-Stars, champions of the Marin County District Tournament, will try to climb a little bit higher on the Little League tournament ladder Thursday when they open play in the divisional tournament at Santa Rosa.

The Novatans will meet Concord at 6 p.m. at the Santa Rosa National Little League field in the southeast corner of the Sonoma County Fairgrounds. Radio KTIM will broadcast the game with Bob Dinsmore and Aldo Pasquinelli at the microphone.

Three other teams will be in the single elimination tournament. The two Sacramento entries will square off at 6 p.m. tomorrow. That will be followed by the Novato-Concord game Thursday. Santa Rosa will meet the Sacramento survivor at 6 p.m. Friday. The winners of the Thursday and Friday contests will battle it out at 6 p.m. Saturday for the right to advance to the State tournament at Chico Aug. 7-8.

POND TO START

Lanky lefthander Jeff Pond, who propelled the Novato American to the district title on the mound and with his bat, will get the starting pitching call Thursday.

Pond won two games in district competition, stopping Sausalito, 1-0, on a three-hitter and San Rafael National, 3-1, on a one-hitter. He's struck out 25 batters and allowed only one earned run. He also tops Novato .500 with two home runs.

Backing Pond up on the mound are Mike Race, who's won the other two games, and Jim Chakos.

The Novato infield will consist of first baseman Dana McCune, second baseman Jack McGovern, shortstop Mike Brunner and Chakos at third base. Catching will be Mike Moraski. In the outfield will be Glen Dunbar, Race and either Jim Lawrence or Mike Moreno Bob Douglass is manager of the Novato American All-Stars.

SECOND GAME FOR NOVATO TEAM TONIGHT

Jeff deRecat will probably get the starting call for Novato's Babe Ruth All-Stars when they meet Yuba City in second-round play of the Northern California Babe Tournament at Auburn at 6 p.m. today.

DeRecat spun a seven-hitter in his last outing, downing Sonoma, 5-2, in a game that clinched the District 7 crown and a ticket to Auburn for the Novato squad.

Novato won its opener Sunday in the double-elimination tournament, downing Menlo Park, 1-0, behind Dave Judnick's no-hitter.

A Summer Of Discontent For Rick Monday Of A's

OAKLAND—This is the summer of Rick Monday's discontent, a surprising fact because his performance is almost on par with the so-called "good" year he enjoyed with the Athletics in 1968.

But Rick seems discouraged and worried. His cool facade hides much of this concern, but his teammates know it's there and yet are stumped as to exactly why. An amateur psychiatrist might find analyzing the Monday "slump" a tantalizing exercise.

THE PRIME consideration is Rick's status as Charlie Finley's first big bonus boy. All that money forced upon Rick the need to excel, and quickly. And for some reason, although he's still but 23, Monday was pegged by those in charge here as a "leader" type. Then there was the arrival of Arizona State classmates Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson, both of whom received smaller bonuses and less fanfare.

Monday arrived at the Coliseum in the spring of 1968 heralded by the local press as the team's obvious superstar. There was talk of him hitting as many as 20 home runs in this ball park.

THAT HE ended up with eight is not as important as the rest of his work at the plate. For several mid-summer weeks the slender blond the ballplayers call "Twiggy" was leading the league in batting. He ended in the top 10 at .274 and was a member of the American League All-Star team.

In the final weeks of the season, Rick slumped and began striking out more, finishing with 142 whiffs.

THIS SEASON he's striking out at a stepped-up rate (77 through 95 games) and hitting in the .260s, not an appreciable dip. His runs batted in total is definitely admirable by comparison: a year ago he had 49 total, and in less than 100 games in '69 he has 43. Already he has 10 homers (two of them grand-slammers) as compared to last year's tepid total of eight.

But as reasonably encouraging as these statistics may be, they don't reveal Monday's true anguish. The batting average points, RBIs and most of the home runs came in two brief hot streaks. In fact, in the first torrid stretch, from April 19 to 30, Rick batted in at least one run in 10 consecutive games.

THE SPAN since his last batting assault, however, has now stretched to several weeks, and Rick shows no sign of snapping out of it, despite extra batting practice.

Monday, who lives in Tiburon, is not necessarily the forgotten idol here, but other names — particularly those of other Arizona Staters — are more frequently mentioned.

"RICK HAS to snap out of this slump," says a friend on the club. "He's truly — I mean truly —got more potential than anyone on this team. And he's a very smart fellow. Kids like Reggie learn after making the same mistake two or three times. But not Rick. He knows."

ANOTHER CLOSE observer theorizes that Monday simply hasn't matured as fast physically as, let's say, Bando and Jackson.

"When he does," the man says, "nothing will hold him back." And that may be worth waiting for.

Unsung Men Behind Raider Grid Machine

By GARY TISCHLER

SANTA ROSA — Hey, Raider rooter.

Remember Daryle Lamonica?

Oh yeah, big flashy white teeth, great passer, hell of a quarterback.

Right. How about Blanda?

The old man? Yeah, he seems to go on forever, doesn't he? Sure comes through with his toe. Great guy.

Right. And Big Ben?

Davidson? That big lug. Gee, he sure creamed Namath that one time, didn't he? Saw it on instant replay 10 times.

How about George Anderson?

Who?

You know, the fellow with the towels, the tapes, the bag and pills.

Can't say that I place him.

No, I don't think so. How about Dick Romanski?

Come again?

PAD SPECIALIST

Romanski. Glasses, white-haired crewcut, ties a hell of a shoelace, specializes in shoulder pads, insteps, things like that.

You sure he isn't a Polish movie director?

Exclusive of maybe places like Vallejo, Pinole and San Leandro and maybe St. Norbert's College, Dick Romanski and George Anderson are not exactly household names.

The happy thousands who root the Oakland Raiders on to whatever proud desserts they achieve probably know more about the usherette on the seventh row of the upper deck than they do about Messers. Anderson and Romanski.

Which is probably the way it should be. The proud practitioners of such special arts as fitting behemoth helmets on the skulls of famous skullcrackers or listening to and sometimes diagnosing the moans of high priced backs and linemen don't make the sports section of Time magazine too often.

TAPES, LISTENS

Anderson, the taper and listener, is the Oakland Raider trainer and Romanski is the equipment manager, men with gray titles in what has become a victory machine.

The run of the swill-mill fan may or may not have heard of George or Dick but the Raiders know them rather well, almost as well as their mothers. The feeling is not quite the same, but it is close.

To use the old cliche, these men are unsung. They appear on page nine of the lower quarter of the Raider Press and Television guide, in side-by-side pictures and one-paragraph capsule portraits.

Romanski, a rooter deep in his specialized heart, is a 41-year-old ex-hero, ex-athlete and ex-teacher.

A former Little All-American quarterback at St. Norbert's (Wisconsin) College, he was teaching architectural drawing in a Wisconsin High School when Raider boss Al Davis gave him the call to join the Raiders as equipment manager.

BEATS TEACHING

"It beats teaching," Romanski says laconically of his job.

His is a nitty-gritty job, full of masses of equipment, some of it used, most of it new, a lot of it special.

He is watchdog, organizer, fitter and orderer. He watches out for thieves, orders helmets for extra-large heads, gives a lockerroom that look of functional neatness, ready for use so that when the teams get together for pre-game preparedness sessions, the linebakcers are all together in a neat, package corner and the quarterback can talk to a receiver face to face instead of across the room.

In the course of talking to him, at the team training camp here the other day, some interesting facts come to the surface. Such as that the Raiders are one of the few teams in either the AFL or NFL to order a complete set of new uniforms every year.

Of course, there are superstitious exceptions.

"Billy Cannon will not change his helmet," Romanski reported.

LUCK CHARMS

There are players who hang onto favored equipment like a treasured good luck charm.

The old, hulking, huge shoulder pads are on the way out, being replaced by smaller, more comfortable and functional ones.

"The accent is on comfort and speed," Romanski said. "They're lighter today. Everything is faster."

Romanski's favorite lockerroom is, of course, the one in the Oakland Coliseum. Buffalo occupies the bottom of the list.

"It's unbelievable," he said.

Irish Hold Key In All-Star Attack

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars will send a Notre Dame flavored offense and a highly regarded defense against the New York Jets Friday night in the 36th annual All-Star football game in Soldier Field.

Notre Dame quarterback Terry Hanratty and Irish tackle George Kunz yesterday, were named co-captains on offense, while cornerback Jim Marsalis of Tennessee State and linebacker Bob Babich of Miami of Ohio will co-captain the defense.

Head Coach Otto Graham, who had requested the players not to make the voting a popularity contest, was pleased with the selections.

"The results prove they took this seriously," said Graham. "These four men not only are outstanding athletes, they have been the hardest workers in our training camp."

Hanratty could be the key of the All-Stars' hope to win the Jets and Joe Namath. In three years at Notre Dame, Hanratty piled up 4,738 total yards to break the offense record of George Gipp and set 15 school records.

One of his targets will be Jim Seymour, the rangy split end who helped Hanratty compile his records at Notre Dame.

Hanratty is from Butler, Pa., which is only 20 miles from Beaver Falls, home of Broadway Joe Namath, and the two could turn the midsummer classic into a neighborhood aereal brawl.

Graham is not concerned about his offense as much as he is the defense. He is fully aware that the pros' pass patterns usually baffle the collegians in the All-Star game.

Although he will be without the services of LeRoy Keyes of Purdue, who like O.J. Simpson of Southern California and Ron Johnson of Michigan, will be missing because of contract squabbles with their respective clubs, Graham is high on his defensive secondary.

"All the way along in training camp I have been impressed with our defensive secondary," said Graham. "As a group I think it has the speed and quickness to do the job. I'll be disappointed if the Jets get any cheap, quick touchdowns."

Nevertheless, the All-Stars figure to be somewhere around 13 points underdogs against the Jets, who defeated the Baltimore Colts 16-7 in the Super Bowl to become the first American Football League team to qualify for the All-Star game.

TITLE FIGHT

Press Rips Pep For Score Goof

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The biggest furore in Australian boxing in 20 years has fallen on Willie Pep, former world featherweight champion.

Pep refereed yesterday's Fighting Harada-Johnny Famechon world featherweight title fight which ended in a shambles when he awarded a draw, but a check on his scoreboard showed Famechon, the champion, had won by one point.

Pep said, "I am not infallible. I made a mistake."

Newspapers and observers ripped into Pep.

"Fighting Harada should be basking in the glory of his third world title but in my opinion there was a miscarriage of justice at Sydney Stadium last night."

Rod Humphries, boxing writer for The Sydney Morning Herald, said this in his comment on the world featherweight title fight between Harada and the Australian champion.

"I wonder whether referee Willie Pep, had he known that his points at the start of the 15th round were incorrect, would have scored the last round differently to make it a draw?

ALL THE FIGHT

"Harada made all the fight, and I mean all the fight.

"I wanted Famechon to win but I cannot help feeling sorry for the likeable Harada, who came close to etching his name in history."

Phil Tresider, writing in The Daily Telegraph, Sydney, said Pep had angered fans long before his calamitous final round error.

"He allowed persistent kidney punching by the little Japanese and much illegal punching in the clinches by both boxers. The score card shambles dampened an otherwise eventful and tense world title fight," he wrote.

Keith Robbins also writing in The Telegraph, said, "I thought Harada won clearly. His non-stop aggression won a lot of points."

WELL PLACED

Mike Gibson in his column, "Calling the Shots," in The Telegraph, said:

"I have never been to Hartford, Connecticut, Willie Pep's home town. But I did a bit of checking up on the place last night.

"It is the home of the American School for the Deaf, The Connecticut Institute for the Blind and the Institute of Living (For the mentally unwell).

"I will make no further comment, other than to say Willie is extremely well placed. He ought to run for mayor!

Pep said in an early morning interview:

"I made an honest mistake. I just added it up wrong, that's all. I don't know how it happened, but someone pointed out that in one round I gave Famechon four points but added five to his total."

time that sharpened his pitching skills.

Hoyt spent 21 years in the majors and won a total of 237 games, many of them for the New York Yankees.

"This arrival at the Hall of Fame," he said, "is not arrival through one man's talents and abilities. Everybody I ever came in contact with helped me."

"This," he said, "is the achievement of all that I have ever dreamed of."

Clippers Sue Pro Soccer For Monopoly

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Clippers are dead and their former owners think somebody should pay $750,000 for the funeral.

Yesterday, the Clippers' management sued much of the organizational structure of soccer in the United States and California, claiming those groups have a monopoly on the sport.

An antitrust suit was filed in the U. S. District Court here by William M. Brinton, Joseph I. O'Neill Jr. and H. T. Hilliard, principal stockholders of the Clippers.

Cited as defendants were the North American Soccer League, the U. S. Soccer Football Association, the California Soccer Football Association, the Southern California Soccer Football Association and a number of individuals.

OBLIGATION

"We believe that we are not only entitled to the damages which are being sought,' says the suit. "But that there exists an obligation on our part to the future of this sport to compel organized soccer to discontinue policies and practices that are hampering the growth and development of the game in this country."

The Clippers were members of the North American Soccer League until last year when it went independent and played an international schedule.

When that failed to draw many customers, the team was disbanded in June.

Yacht Showdown Tomorrow; Indy Turbine Ban Upheld

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — A protested victory in favor of Australia's Toogooloowoo will send the Challenge Cup Yacht Series into a seventh race.

The "Toogoo" evened the best-of-seven series Monday protest of a non-maneuver by the American entry, The Goose.

The Goose, sailing out of Seattle, was the apparent winner of the race by one-minute 53-seconds but, after a two-hour meeting, officials declared the "Toogoo" the winner.

The "Toogoo" protested saying The Goose failed to follow through with her request for "sea room" during the race.

"We tacked for her but she continued on her original course so we protested," said a crewman of the Australian six-meter.

The deciding race will be held tomorrow over the 12.9-mile San Francisco Bay course.

AUTO RACING

INDIANAPOLIS — The U.S. Auto Club rules committee voted last night to increase the size restriction on "stock block" engines in Indianapolis-type cars from 320 cubic inches to 335 cubic inches in 1970.

The committee also reconsidered, and upheld, the earlier decisions to ban four-wheel-drive and turbine engines from championship racing next year. It recommended that all engine limits but the stock block specifications remain the same.

BOXING

SAN CARLOS — A pair of promising young Argentinians, Roberto Amaya and Enrique Jana, will headline a double main event card Aug. 18 at the Circle Star Theatre.

Amaya has been particularly impressive, registering 21 knockouts in 23 victories.

OAKLAND — The Oakland Seals will host the Los Angeles Kings Oct. 17 in their 1969 National Hockey League home opener.

The Seals, who will open the season on the road, will play 38 home games with 15 of them scheduled for Friday nights, 11 Wednesdays, six Tuesdays, one Thursday and one Saturday. Four Sunday afternoon games are also scheduled.

ALORTON, Ill. — A stable fire killed 32 race horses at Cahokio Downs race track.

CHARLES TOWN, W.Va. (AP) —One fan collected $24,820 for a $2 bet Monday night at the Charles Town Race Track as a muddy track upset the form and four outsiders figured in the Big Exacta.

Friendly Count, $28.40, won the seventh race with Torino, $7.80, finishing second.

The first half of the Big Exacta was easier as 125 players correctly named Weather Mist, $14.20, as winner in the fifth with Linsey—Jan, $11.60, finishing second.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Bass And Salmon Slow; Get Ready For Deer

From most reports bass fishing was slow most of this past week. Some fish were taken at Racoon Straits, drifting anchovies. The tides were slow with not much of a runoff, and I think this slows things. This week we have some good minus tides; good enough for abalones, too.

FRANK SUE just called and said he got a $5. tagged fish. He was pretty close mouthed about the place. He said he limited, but the area was top secret. You'd be surprised how these guys clam up when you write about their hot spots. It has to be somewhere by the Golden Gate Bridge as the fish were all big. That's not much help now, is it?

I PUT the skiff in the water at Point Reyes where I had read the salmon fishing was hot. I caught only one six and one-half pound salmon, but as it was the first of this summer from the skiff, it looked good.

The commercial boats out there didn't do very good, and most of them came in by noon. I watched a couple of party boats and, at times, they were over the rockfish beds, probably trying to satisfy their customers with something.

The ocean was calm and using the skiff was great. I used two rods, one with a one pound weight and a herring, the other, a flyrod with an Andy Reeker spoon and a four ounce trolling weight. I caught the fish on the bait rod with 50 feet of line out.

ONE DAY last year, using the same two rigs, I caught nine salmon in two hours all on the flyrod-spoon combination fishing close to the surface. If they are on top, I take the bait rod in, and fish strictly with the flyrod. It's a ball. The fish are mouth hooked and easy to release. One other day at Tomales last year I nailed a 28-pounder on the flyrod and the fight was great. One of the mechanics, Dale Tallant, from J&B Ford, was with me and he hasn't gotten over that yet!

YOU KNOW, this coming Saturday the coastal buck season opens. With good feed conditions, the bucks are in good shape. Better get your guns out, clean them, check the sights and sight them in. Our family uses a 30-0-6, a .257 Roberts and a 243, all bolt actions with identical safeties, etc.

Oftentimes we exchange guns back and forth, depending on the type of hunt or the stand we take. The scopes are 2½, 4 and 8 power.

We have had excellent luck using the 25-yard sighting in distance for best results for all three guns. Sighting in these guns, and I mean right on at 25 yards shooting prone and with a rest, assures accuracy at ranges up to 250 yards. On at 25 yards and on at 250 yards with a midrange trajectory about three inches high is ideal and so simple to achieve. It really pays off. I know last year, the family brought home four or five bucks, all with clean neck shots.

The big event of last year was when my daughter, Marylu, aged 15, after taking two hunter-safety courses, and practicing all the actions of the 243 rifle time and time again, finally got a shot and made a beautiful neck shot. And that's where she aimed, because the gun was accurately sighted in.

Where does one sight in a rifle? There's a range at Petaluma open from 4 to 6 p.m. daily, and through the day on weekends. The price for the range use is $1. Call the Petaluma Police Department for details.

The Dept. of Fish and Game points out that each of the 114 hunting accidents last year was caused by somebody's failure to observe common sense safety practices. Safety in the field is everybody's job.

HERE'S QUITE a day for you! Ropey Clark of Larkspur went out to Tomales Bay Sunday in a skiff with a friend to try for salmon or halibut.

The first thing Clark caught was a hat drifting by. Then he hooked a shark with a two-foot dorsal fin. He said it just took off and there was no way to stop it. (I suppose it was in the area looking for those skindivers who spear halibut). Clark also caught eight flounders and one red tailed perch. No salmon or halibut.

THE GIRL who checks the fish at Nick's Cove on Tomales Bay sent me a note that 45 persons in 21 boats took 5 halibut, 10 sole, 20 flounders and 11 salmon along with some rays, sharks, perch, lingcod and rockfish.

RAIDERS

$200 worth of clothes and protective gear.

Specialized as his job is, it comes down to quick thinking.

"We're just like comedians," Romanski says. "We're always ad libbing."

Romanski is the outfitter of the Raider machine, Anderson is its nursemaid, the aunt with the castor oil.

NO WHIP

As trainer, he is in charge of diets, putting on weight, losing it, an art that he doesn't practice with a whip.

"I set the diet for the meals," he said. "I can get weight off them, or put it on. That's easy. We have a certain control over that. But they're adults. They know what to eat and what not to eat."

A former trainer at Southern Cal, Anderson is the oldest Raider around in term of longevity, having been with Oakland since the formation of the team. A San Jose State graduate, he now lives in Pinole.

Anderson is one man who is close to the players, literally. Got an ache, a pain, a sore this or that, or a problem, and Anderson is the man.

"Most of the time, the gripes are legitimate," he said. "There's hardly any malingering on a professional team. I mean, this is a business, this isn't college. They're all pointing for the superbowl."

SPOTS INJURIES

It is usually Anderson who will spot a serious injury, and may have to tell the coach that a certain player has had it.

As trainer, in addition to the more mundane task of taping, applying linament and ointment, pills and pain-easers, Anderson has to be something of a psychologist.

"You treat each player differently," he said. "If one comes with an ache or pain, you might sympathize. Sometimes you just have to turn your back, that's all there is to it."

What is immediately apparent about both these men, is their pride not just in their job, but as Raiders. These aren't just men who know how to do a certain thing well. They are yellers and rooters who die a little on Sunday, out of joy or disappointment.

They are certainly unsung, maybe not even heroes but somebody, up in the distant bleachers, behind the usherette, ought to give them at least one roar.

49ers Drop Four Men

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Four players were missing from the San Francisco 49ers' training camp today after being put on waivers.

Among them was running back Don Street, a 6-foot-1, 197-pound former Mississippi star who was carried last year on the 49ers' reserve, or taxi, squad.

The others dropped yesterday were free agent punter Hank Collins of Miami, free agent place kicker Al MacFarlane from Louisville, and cornerback Gary Golden of Texas Tech.

Still out were holdouts Clifton McNeil, Howard Mudd and top draft choice Ted Kwalick of Penn State. Gene Washington, former flanker from Stanford, is in Chicago training for the all-star game.

CAIN'S TIRE

Marin County's Exclusive No-Nonsense Tire Dealer

We're moving our SAN RAFAEL STORE in September! We were going to move into a huge retail emporium in Northgate, but I decided against that for a lot of reasons. What we are going to do is move into our other two retail locations in San Anselmo & Novato. We will open up San Anselmo considerably and will have plenty of parking & working space. All this is a preface to telling tire buyers we have got to sell lots of products 'cause we just don't have that much room for all of our inventory. We are dumping all the stock we can on the greatest quality lines in the area.

Distributor

The only tire that carries a 40,000 mile tread wear guarantee. Some others talk 40,000 miles and others give a Mickey Mouse phoney guarantee up to 50,000 miles to suck in the customers . . . BUT the fact remains that only MICHELIN guarantees and delivers 40,000 miles and up . . . because MICHELIN is the only tire that can live up to a test like that. A few MICHELIN pluses: MICHELIN X Steel Radial Tire is a much smoother riding tire than its competition because it is designed and engineered for American cars. The smoother ride plus the long wear is the reason it was chosen to be original equipment on the 1970 Lincoln Mark III over the presently used glass tire that just was too rough riding for that fine car.

"After you show us your flowers, Grandma, then can you show us your 'frigerator?"

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, July 29th, the 210th day of 1969 with 155 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1914, the first transcontinental telephone linkup was completed with a conversation between New York and San Francisco.

In 1945, B29 bombers dropped 3,500 tons of fire bombs on six Japanese cities which had been warned earlier that week.

In 1967, 129 men were killed when fire swept the aircaft carrier USS Forrestall off the coast of Vietnam.

In 1968, Pope Paul upheld the prohibition of all artificial means of birth control for Roman Catholics.

A thought for the day: Novelist Booth Tarkington said, "It really is the land of nowadays that we never discover."

Airplane Job For Car Washer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Larry Neal, who operates a car wash business, had a promotional gimmick going with a sign that advertised "Airplanes Washed Free."

Then Neal Loving drove up with an airplane in tow.

After the shock wore off, operator Neal called out his crew of car washers and they turned to plane washing.

"It's on the house," Neal called as Loving drove away towing the plane. "Happy Landings!"

Always Keep On The Alert At The Table For Extra 'Cookies'

When I was a young man of 7, my mother would sometimes send me to buy a loaf of bread. One of the nearby grocers would sell me the bread and send me home with a kind word, but another grocer would sell me the same loaf for the same price and would sometimes give me a cooky all for myself. That was many years ago, but I still look for the extra cooky — especially at the bridge table.

IN DUMMY

South took the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps and led dummy's low diamond toward the king. West took two high diamonds and then led another club.

The defenders eventually got a heart trick as well, and South was down one. South got his loaf of bread, but he forgot to look for the extra cooky.

South should begin the diamonds by leading low from his own hand toward dummy's jack. This play does not cost South his loaf of bread: he will still make the contract if East has the ace of diamonds.

SWITCH DIAMONDS

Imagine that the diamonds are switched, so that East has the A-Q-10-6. South leads a low diamond, losing dummy's jack to the queen. Back comes a heart to dummy's king, and declarer leads dummy's low diamond. East can take the ace, but then South has time to discard dummy's losing heart on the king of diamonds.

South gets his extra cooky whenever West has the queen of diamonds. When South leads the low diamond from his own hand, West must step up with the queen.

CASH A CLUB

The defenders cash a club trick and then lead a heart to dummy's king. South leads dummy's jack of diamonds and now he doesn't have to worry about the location of the ace of diamonds. The jack forces out the ace of diamonds, and South wins the heart return and cashes the king of diamonds to discard dummy's heart loser.

Declarer's actual line of play would work only when East has the ace of diamonds. The right line of play works not only when East has the ace of diamonds but also when West has both the ace and the queen.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K Q 8 4
♥ K 7 2
♦ J 5
♣ A 8 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

The hand is just barely worth an opening bid. If you start with one club you can rebid one spade over a red response; you can raise one spade to two; and you can pass a response of one no-trump.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Speculations Evaluated By Their Earning Trends

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Are Railweight and Flying Tiger worth holding? If not, what are suitable switches? — B. G.

A. Both stocks are identified with freight transportation — a basic segment of the national economy — yet their speculative characteristics are totally different.

Railweight, a small outfit with grows revenues of $515,000 in fiscal 1968, is largely dependent on the struggling railroad industry to buy its freight-weighing systems. Recognition of their value is gradually building up here and abroad but progress is slow.

Flying Tiger's revenues of $16.7 million in 1968 were about 60 per cent generated from military contracts. The company is striving to increase its commercial business; hence its new transpacific route award is a significant development. Earnings are moving up again this year whereas Railweight is likely to report another deficit.

I'd sell Railweight and hold Flying Tiger for price recovery. If you would like a lower-priced speculative issue, I suggest Livingston Oil, recently recommended for its growing stake in cable-TV. As a more conservative selection I like Tenneco, which is trading on a somewhat higher level.

Q. Last April you pointed up the strong growth prospects in the country's Southwest. But in selecting utilities likely to benefit therefrom you omitted El Paso Natural Gas. We've been told it would be a "good thing." — G. S.

A. I agree and had already recommended purchase of EIG in an early March column which you must have missed. The company's nonregulated speculative operations are promising: participation in Gasbuggy's nuclear blasting tests, and important stake in a major copper discovery in Arizona and production of petrochemicals, plastics and man-made fibers.

The $1.00 annual dividend provides an attractive yield and estimated earnings of $1.50 for 1969 produce a P/E multiple of 13x, the low end of the stock's 10-year range. The bulk of 1968 revenues (64.2 per cent) came from natural gas production and distribution.

Currently the company is involved in working out a plan acceptable to the U. S. Supreme Court for divestiture of its Pacific Northwest Pipeline properties.

Market In Decline Once Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—An impressive rally early today failed to hold and prices on the New York Stock Exchange declined for the seventh day in a row in fairly active trading.

Shortly before the close the UPI marketwide indicator was off 1.07 per cent on 1,562 issues traded. Declines outnumbered advances, 912 to 386. The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than 6 points at its best, lost more than 3 points on the day. Volume topped 13,000,000,000 shares.

Electronics and chemicals were firm, oils, steels, motors and airlines narrowly mixed.

IBM posted one of the biggest gains in the electronics. Up more than 6 points at its best, it backed off later. Motorola and General Electric improved. Control Data was strong on a higher earnings report. Texas Instruments retreated.

Most oils were near Monday's close. Natomas jumped more than 4 points early in the day and then backed off. Jersey Standard traded in a narrow range most of the day. Most other issues were up fractions.

Dow and Eastman Kodak were the best performers among the chemicals. Du Pont moved higher during the midmorning surge fell back later.

Unveiling Tomorrow For First Store In Petaluma Shop Center

Petaluma's new Lucky Store, nucleus of the Town and Country Center under construction at Petaluma Boulevard North and West Payran Street, will open tomorrow morning.

This is the first store to be opened in the center. Ribbon cutting ceremonies will be held at 9:45 a.m. Architecture, covering some 27,000 square feet in the store, is traditionaly town and country styling, with tile roof and wide overhang.

Still to be constructed is an L-shaped wing of about 12,000 square feet for satellite shops.

Town and Country Center, which has been more than four years in the planning and construction stages is a project of Barstone Corp., headed by G. M. Stonitsch of Petaluma.

NEW OFFICES have been opened by Laurentide Finance Corp. at 227 Third Street, in the Montecito Shopping Center, San Rafael, moving away from 1403 Fourth Street — and closer to the Peacock Gap home of Laurentide president Roy L. Cook, who says he intends to keep a close watch on this branch's new open style format without the usual customers' booths. If it proves to be popular, other Laurentide offices will be similarly designed.

Manager of the San Rafael office is Charles Roof of San Anselmo. Other staff members are William Petigoe, assistant manager, and Patricia McIntyre, cashier.

Adams

Waltz

R. MICHAEL WALTZ of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant manager of Wells Fargo Bank's Sausalito office. Formerly credit officer at the Mill Valley office, he succeeds William Robeck, who has been assigned to San Rafael. Waltz joined Wells Fargo in 1966 and was named credit officer in 1967.

WILLIAM J. ADAMS of Novato, vice president and general counsel for Pacific National Life Assurance Co., San Francisco, has been elected president of Pace Securities, a wholly-owned subisidary which will be active in mutual funds. He has been with Pacific National since 1961.

SAM AND ROSE JANKO, who opened Janko Upholstery Shop at 570 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, last March, have already started to expand.

They have opened a second shop, primarily a workshop, at 1501 San Anselmo Avenue at Center Boulevard. The Jankos started with two employees and now have four between the two locations.

OUR RECENT ARTICLE on the removal of painting contractor Robert V. Kunst's headquarters from 32 Lisbon Street, San Rafael, to a new office, warehouse and retail store at 4184 Redwood Highway seems to have caused some confusion.

He has no connection with the painting contracting firm of Kunst Bros., Inc., whose principals are John R. and Charles T. Kunst. This is still located at 76 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. Same family — but another business entirely.

POTLATCH FORESTS, INC., in a headquarters reorganization at San Francisco, has promoted two Marin residents:

William D. Chandler of Mill Valley, formerly a planning analyst, is now director of corporate planning and reports to the office of the president.

George E. Pfautsch of Terra Linda, formerly a financial analyst, is now acting as assistant treasurer. Reporting to him are the general credit manager, insurance manager, cashier, financial analyst and international financial specialist.

BUY WORD

The regular editor of this column is on vacation so we thought you might be interested in these words from one of our home economists.

ABOUT CHICKENS . . .

Buy whole and baked . . . stuffed or not. Baste with wine, butter, mushroom sauce, Italian herbs, tomato sauce or whatever. Buy whole and save by cutting up your own way. Chicken meat makes good sandwiches. Bones make good broth. Bone the breasts, roll and collect in the freezer for a special gourmet dinner in good sauce or stuffed. And all the rest, which is quite a bit, can be used in many delicious recipes from all over the world. Browse through our CO-OP LOW COST COOKBOOK.

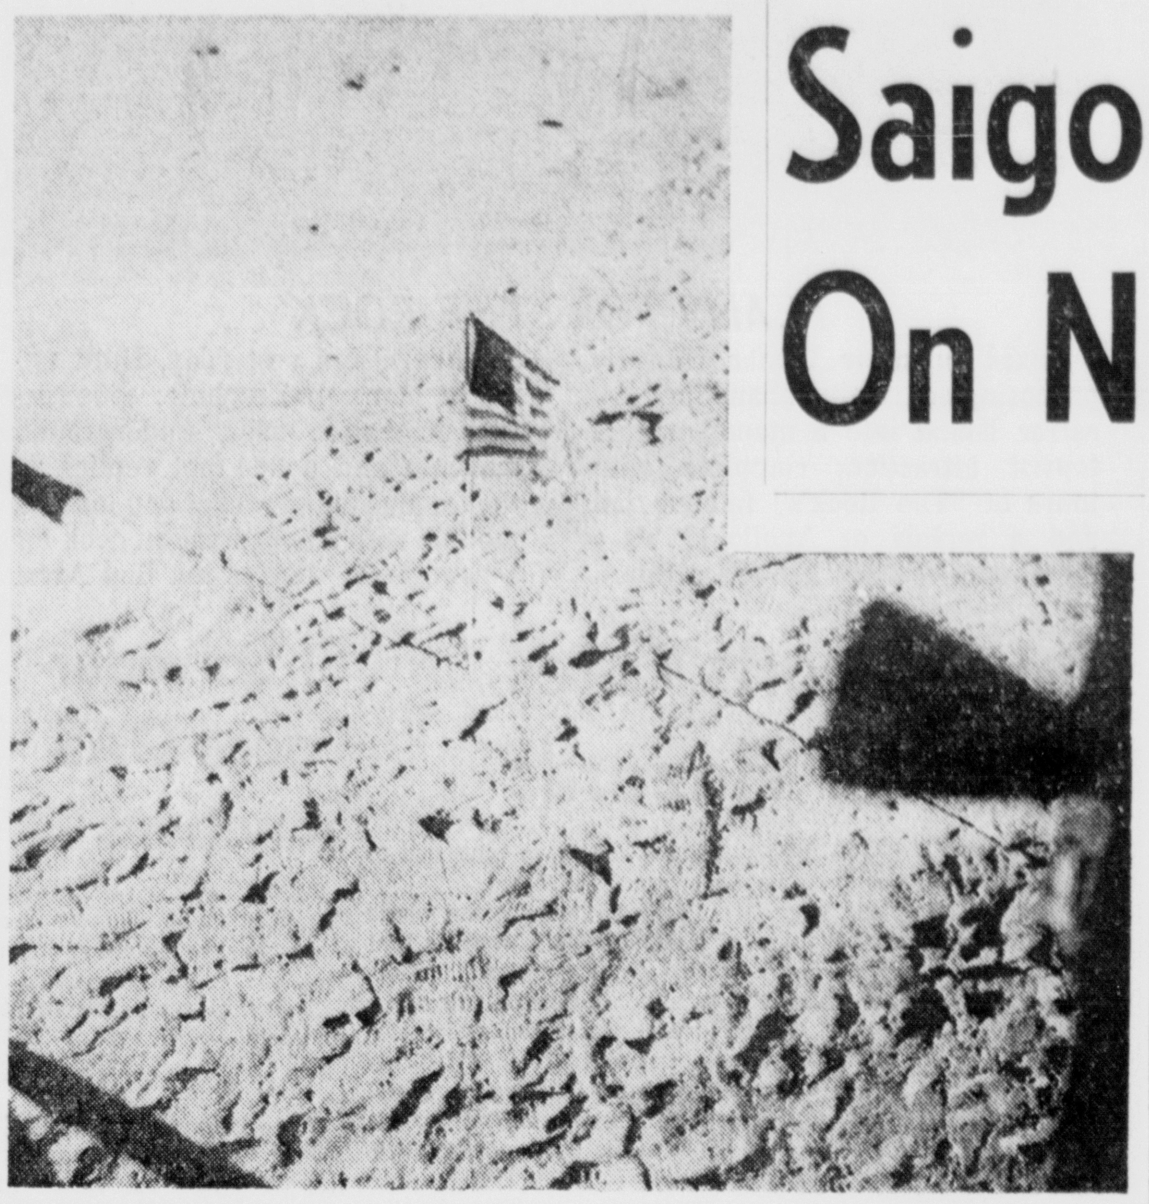
FIRST FOOTPRINTS — The slanting rays of the just-rising sun clearly show the ridged bootprints made by Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin Jr. in their historic July 20 landing on the moon. NASA technicians today finished decontaminating and printing the first of many photos taken by the two men on the moon. Part of the Eagle lunar module is silhouetted in foreground. (AP Wirephoto)



STARS AND STRIPES—Appearing to flutter in the breeze on the airless moon is the U.S. flag planted by the astronauts during their historic July 20 visit. The flag is extended by a fine wire. Saigon Next Stop On Nixon's Trip?

Visit To Troops Is Expected Tomorrow

BANGKOK (UPI)—White House sources said today President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon will fly to Saigon tomorrow.

The sources said Nixon would go there to "visit the troops" and that Mrs. Nixon would spend her time visiting military hospitals in the South Vietnamese capital.

There had been speculation on such a visit since Nixon set out on his seven-nation tour of Asia and Communist Romania, but the White House has refused to comment for security reasons.

Today, White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler would not confirm or deny the reports, saying only, "I don't have any information at all to give you."

FLIGHT PLANS

But other sources on the President's staff said they would leave here tomorrow, probably before noon (1 a.m. EDT) aboard Nixon's plane, Air Force One. He had kept his schedule free tomorrow for such a trip, as had Mrs. Nixon.

Nixon conferred today with Thai Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn and Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and then with U.S. Far Eastern envoys, including Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to Saigon.

Khoman said Nixon told them the United States would begin the gradual withdrawal of the 47,000 American troops in Thailand as the war in Vietnam tapers off.

ABRAMS' VISIT

Saigon dispatches said Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, chief of U.S. forces in Vietnam, flew here today to talk with Nixon and discuss the possibility of

Reagan Denies Employee Cut Is Political

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State government embarked today on a new economy drive ordered by Gov. Ronald Reagan to drastically cut back costs during the 1970 election year.

Most Democrats cautiously withheld comment, but one leader termed the plan "ridiculous" and said it was inspired to boost the Republican Governor's expected re-election bid. Reagan denied it.

The program calls for a reduction in the work force below the level of 1967 when Reagan took office and envisions the abandonment of some state services deemed not of the highest priority.

"This is the only way we will ever be able to secure significant tax reduction," the economy-minded chief executive told a special news conference yesterday.

Under the new procedure, a sum less than the funds now appropriated under the current budget will be earmarked for

Bolinas Harbor Takeover Bill Gains Ground

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to carry out the dissolution of the Bolinas Harbor District last night cleared its last legislative committee with a unanimous "do pass" recommendation by the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill (AB) 2295), by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, went to the upper house floor for a vote that will send it to the governor's desk for signature into law after Assembly concurrence with minor amendments.

The committee vote apparently was the final defeat for several directors of the district who promoted a campaign against the bill. There was no opposition voiced at the night hearing on the bill, and it won support from the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association.

The association opposed the bill before it was amended to provide for the possibility of a harbor refuge in the lagoon.

Bagley introduced his bill at the request of the Marin County Board of Supervisors after voters in the harbor district balloted in March to dissolve the district.

Bagley's bill will transfer ju-

Moon Pictures Released; Rocks Excite Scientists

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts early today viewed spectacular films of their moon landing journey, including Neil A. Armstrong's first step on the surface and clear footprints in the lunar dust.

Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins stayed up after midnight in their quarantine quarters to look at 16mm movie and 70mm still photos.

Some of the film was released to news media today. It has been undergoing decontamination for three days to destroy possible lunar bacteria.

John McLeaish, space agency public affairs officer quarantined with the astronauts, reported the spacemen showed extreme interest in the pictures, which he described as excellent.

"During the descent," McLeaish said, "you can see the landmarks they flew over and the blowing dust kicked up. You see Neil proceeding down the ladder to the surface.

"The American flag they planted is very clear and gives the impression of waving in the wind," he added. "You can very

New Riches: U.S. Budget Has Surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government balanced its budget or the first time in nine years during the business year just concluded, possibly causing the Nixon administration an embarrassment of riches in its effort to extend the income tax surcharge.

Figures for the fiscal year that ended June 30 showed federal income exceeded spending by $3,073,988,000, the first time since 1960 the government's books had been in the black and the biggest surplus since 1957.

The surplus was a stark contrast to the $25.2 billion deficit recorded during the previous fiscal year. Both the Nixon and Johnson administrations had predicted a surplus but the size came as a surprise. As recently as July 8, Budget Director Robert P. Mayo told the Senate Finance Committee the surplus would be about $900 million. Income tax receipts provided most of the increase.

Mayo used the forecast of thin surplus as an argument in

Doctors Will Launch Health Care Checks

By PATRICK SULLIVAN

The Marin Medical Society plans late this fall to launch a program to police fees and services rendered by its members to patients covered by the Medicare and Medi-Cal programs.

And for persons not covered by government health plans, the society is preparing to step up publicity of its long standing grievance prodedure, the existence of which, a local official acknowledged, has been practically a well-kept secret.

The new thrust — especially in the area of Medicare and Medi-Cal — is a result of mounting pressure directed at the county level throughout the state by outraged legislators and government officials stirred by reports of abuses in

JUVENILE HALL

First Contact Is Sometimes Key To Youngster's Future

By JOANNE GRANT

(First of four articles)

Jimmy hung his head as his meager possessions were listed on an envelope and placed inside for safekeeping.

He responded lethargically to the gentle questions of the fatherly man leaning over him.

The questions concerned the child's health. Had he been drinking or taking drugs? Had he been to a doctor lately?

The simple process was the skinny, scared 12-year-old's introduction to Marin County Juvenile Hall one day recently.

Jimmy (not his real name) had been drinking wine. His parents could not be reached. He would stay, at least temporarily.

Edward N. Donald, supervisor of the junior boys unit, had been handling the situation just as he had outlined earlier it should be done. "The first contact with the child is important," he had said. "If it's not overly negative, we have a chance of rehabilitation."

He led Jimmy away for a shower and clean clothes — the uniform levis and tee shirt or sweatshirt that all boys at Juvenile Hall must wear—and generally hate.

As Jimmy was escorted down the walk, the wheels of the juvenile intake unit began spinning to decide whether Jimmy would be released or kept.

The initial investigation takes about 90 minutes with decisions made individually within state law which requires releasing a minor immediately to his parent guardian or responsible relative, unless release would be destructive to the minor or dangerous to the community, or if he has no place to go.

As Jimmy was led to bed to sleep off the wine, intake officer John David Rogers arrived with the news he would be there a while. A quick record check had revealed he'd been in trouble before. The wine was a violation of probation.

A deeper investigation would be made, with Jimmy's probation officer called in. (Probation officers are assigned within hours after a person first arrives at the hall.)

If the probation officer believed he should be detained he would get a court hearing within 72 hours.

Probably, though, he would go home.

"We have a real dedication to keeping kids in their own homes as much as possible," said Fredric M. Latty, supervisor of field services for the probation department.

"Real life is fought in a real arena. The institution is an ar-

Atom Peril Linked To Spy Ship Loss

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congressional investigators have warned that the same "serious deficiencies" which resulted in capture of the USS Pueblo and loss of the EC121 intelligence plane have impaired the nation's ability to meet a nuclear attack.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, responding to the criticism, said steps have been taken to correct intelligence deficiencies. He hinted that ships like the Pueblo now have orders on how to defend themselves against an attack such as the one which snared the intelligence ship.

The congressional criticism came in the form of a report from a special armed services subcommittee which conducted a five-month investigation into both the Pueblo capture and the downing of the EC121 by North Korean fighter planes. In general, the report said the military brass was more at fault than the Pueblo's crew for that incident.

"There exist serious deficiencies in the organizational and administrative military command structure of both the Department of the Navy and the Department of Defense," the report said. The deficiencies, it added, rest in the fact that while the military can gather intelligence, it was unable, in the case of the Pueblo and EC121, "to relay this information in a timely and comprehensible fashion to those charged with the responsibility for making decisions."

As a result, the report said, "our military command structure is now simply unable to meet the emergency criterion" of instant response to nuclear attack laid down by President Richard M. Nixon.

Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the investigating subcommittee, added: "We have never demonstrated any capability to get a message from a scene of crisis to the President, and a message back."

The report called for creation of a presidential study group, composed of both military and civilian officials, to make "a complete review of our military-civilian command structure and its capability to cope with emergency situations."

As the report was released yesterday, Laird disclosed a letter he had sent to Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Laird said the Defense Department had already taken steps "to correct a number of deficiencies...in the area of military intelligence.

Air Force Tries To Cut C5A Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has served notice it may hold up further purchases of the C5A supertransport in order to get major revisions in its multibillion dollar contract with the plane's manufacturer.

Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. said yesterday, "I am reserving judgment" on buying the remaining 39 of a proposed 120-model purchase pending negotiations with Lockheed-Georgia Corp.

Asked if the orders holdup isn't a negotiating weapon, he told reporters: "It certainly is."

Seamans met with newsmen as his assistant secretary for installations and logistics, Philip Whittaker, presented a 150-page report on the controversial C5A program requested last April 30 by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

The inquiry was ordered after Congress became increasingly critical of large cost overruns once purported to be as much as $2 billion in the program to build the world's largest air transport.

The Whittaker report said the over-all program cost has gone up 52 per cent, from an original $3.369 billion to $5.125 billion. Both he and Seamans contended this compares favorably with other aircraft programs.

Both made it clear the Air Force wants more C5As for rushing huge amounts of military equipment overseas and that they believe it is a good aircraft.

Average flyaway cost for each C5A is now $26.9 million and could go higher, the report stated. Further cost increases are possible, Whittaker said, and if they become significant the program might be jeopardized.

When pressed for amplification, he replied: "I'm not sure what I mean about significant."

The report found "no clear evidence" Lockheed had "bought" the C5A contract in 1965 with a phoney bid.

Whittaker said, however, Lockheed's cost estimate was too low and the company was "overly optimistic" about how it could handle expected technical problems. A sharp increase in inflation paralleling the Vietnam war also helped bloat the cost of building the plane.

The government's commitment to Lockheed now stands at buying 81 planes. This includes 58 under the initial production run and 23 under part of the second production run authorized last January. This will equip four squadrons.

PLANS FOR 'THE ROCK'

Texas financier Lamar Hunt is proposing converting abandoned Alcatraz Island into a money-making tourist attraction, complete with tours of "The Rock's" famous jail and a replica of Apollo 11. At a meeting of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors yesterday, Hunt unveiled plans that include: construction of a plaza area, underground museum and a 364-foot replica of the famous moon rocket and landing module with an observation deck for a panoramic view of the Bay Area.

New Reports Cites Cigarette Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Cigarette smoking continues to be confirmed as a serious health hazard to the people of this country, one which is the cause of much unnecessary disease and death."

That's how Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch introduced yesterday the Public Health Service's third report on smoking.

The 135-page document cited new links with disease, summarized previous findings, and added "no substantial negative evidence has appeared which refutes these judgments."

New evidence was uncovered connecting cigarette smoking and heart attacks, cancer of the throat, emphysema, non-cancerous mouth disorders, pregnancy troubles.

Cigars and pipes continued to be generally absolved.

Charcoal filters, in the words of a doctor who worked on that section of the report are ineffective and "not worth a damn."

In part, the report, which is a summary of more than 600 separate studies by physicians and scientists last year, added these points to the anti-smoking argument.

"Cigarette smoking is the most important agent in the development of pulmonary emphysema in man." Warning signs of possible emphysema were present in 97 of 100 cigarette smokers and six of 10 ex-smokers in one study group.

"It appears that maternal smoking during pregnancy may be associated with an increased incidence of spontaneous abortion, stillbirth, and neo-natal death."

El Salvador Faces OAS Sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States has prepared to impose economic sanctions against El Salvador in retaliation for the continuing presence of Salvadoran troops in Honduran territory.

A resolution placed yesterday before OAS foreign ministers charges El Salvador with aggression for refusing to withdraw troops it has stationed during the past two weeks over a four-state area of western Honduras.

A second resolution orders the suspension of exports or imports of oil, coffee, cotton and sugar unless El Salvador agrees to the immediate withdrawal of its troops.

It also provides for supplying Honduras with "all the material help necessary" for restoring its territorial integrity.

The terms of the resolutions were agreed to privately by the foreign ministers during lengthy sessions at the Colombian Embassy before their introduction at OAS headquarters here.

In an 11th hour bid for a reversal of the OAS stand, El Salvador charged Honduras with aggression. One foreign minister, who asked not to be identified, said the Salvadoran charge served only to solidify the inter-American alliance against El Salvador.

Thousands Packing Uganda City For Pontiff's Visit

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Thousands of African Roman Catholics crowded into Kampala today in anticipation of Pope Paul VI's arrival Thursday — the first visit to Africa by a modern pontiff.

The Pope will consecrate a shrine to 22 African martyrs put to death for their religious beliefs 84 years ago and see if he can do anything to help settle the civil war between Nigeria and the secessionist state of Biafra.

Uganda has invited both Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu of Biafra and Gen. Yakubu Gowon, Nigerian chief of state, to Kampala for the Papal visit. Both said they would send delegations. Biafra called for a cease-fire during the Pope's visit.

Hundreds of Africans set up camps near the shrine which the Pope will consecrate.

Tropical rainstorms slowed work on the 50-foot high altar at Kololo Hill where Pope Paul will concelebrate mass with Cardinals and Bishops. The torrents of rain washed away the freshly painted white and yellow Vatican colors on the stands around the alter.

The Ugandan government ordered extra police into the capital for crowd control duty.

The storm is moving westward over open water at about 15 miles per hour.

Anna became the season's first tropical storm yesterday and lacks only 15 miles an hour in wind intensity to qualify as a full-bodied hurricane.

Airlines Strike

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Western Airlines flights in 14 western states were canceled for today after 2,000 aircraft mechanics went on strike at midnight.

Negotiations between the Teamsters Union Local 2707 broke off last night following confirmation that mechanics voted against accepting a tentative contract agreement made July 18.

A decision was to be made later today on whether flights would resume tomorrow, the company spokesman said. The tentative agreement would have boosted wages and fringe benefits by 27 per cent over the three-year life of the pact, the company said.

Record Drownings

TOKYO (UPI) — Police said today 72 persons drowned and 13 were missing on the nation's beaches and rivers Sunday — a record for one day.

France Aids Biafra

PARIS (UPI) — France has been shipping to Biafra four tons of food supplies each day for more than a year, according to Agriculture Minister Jacques Dunamel. He said yesterday the supplies were being carried to Biafra aboard a private plane loaned by the French government.

U.N. Death Probe

CAIRO (UPI) — A U.N. observer mission has arrived in Cairo from Jerusalem to investigate the death of a Swedish U.N. observer, Maj. Roland Plane, who was killed Sunday when an artillery shell smashed into his observation post in Port Tewfik. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad yesterday telegramed U. N. Secretary General Thant and Swedish Foreign Minister Torsten Nilsson expressing "deep sorrow" for the incident.

Censure Rejected

LISBON (AP) — Portugal has rejected a U.N. Security Council censure charging that two persons in a Zambian village were killed June 30 in an air attack from the Portuguese territory of Mozambique.

Soviet Warships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The flotilla of Soviet ships that skirted the U.S. coastline and visited Cuba has left Havana and is headed westward, according to the Defense Department. The warships were 75 miles west-northwest of Havana when last sighted, the Pentagon said yesterday. A spokesman said the American destroyer Glennon was "in the general area."

Riot In Prison

MANILA (AP) — Violence between rival gangs broke out today at the national penitentiary, and a prison spokesman said nine inmates were killed and 22 wounded.

It was one of the worst riots in recent years at the penitentiary 15 miles south of Manila.

The spokesman said the two gangs armed themselves with improvised weapons and clashed near the control gate of the main building.

Another Homicide

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco man who died of stab wounds suffered last Friday became the city's 90th homicide victim of the year.

Ronald G. Imperial, 21, never regained consciousness after he was found lying on a sidewalk in the Fillmore District. He died yesterday.

Police said they found that Imperial had been arguing with a man dressed in a woman's coat and wig prior to the stabbing.

Meters Removed

OCEANSIDE (AP) — The City of Oceanside will remove its downtown parking meters in September in an effort to improve the volume of shopping. The city council decision is a one-year experiment.

In place of meters there will be limited parking, the limit depending upon the location. Enforcement will be effected by marking tires.

Revenue from the parking meters on streets last year amounted to $21,253, with an additional $5,769 from meters in city-owned parking lots.

Meters will continue in use on off-street parking lots and on parking lots on the Streand area of the beach.

Black Tax Collector

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thad Brown had been promoted to city tax collector, the highest San Francisco civil service position ever won by a Negro.

Brown, 43, was named yesterday as the winner of the civil service examinations to fill the vacant position.

The position has a salary range of from $17,964 to $21,828. The date he'll take office was not announced.

As an administrative analyst to the city's chief administrative officer he had held a position paying from $11,856 to $14,400.

Vatican Deserter

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Italian police are looking for a deserter from the Vatican's Swiss Guards.

Vatican officials wouldn't talk about it, desertion from the guard being a rarity. But police said the missing man was Kaspar Holzgang, and he disappeared a month ago after serving only a few months.

Should Holzgang be located, no disciplinary action can be brought against him. Service in the Swiss Guards is voluntary, and enlistment does not bind a man to an unbreakable contract. If the police track him down, all they can do is reoort him to the Swiss Guard headquarters and take away his Vatican identity card.

Democracy Begins

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan's military regime is going to allow limited political activity as a first step in the "smooth transfer of power to the elected representatives of the people," President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan announced last night.

"Our goals are clear, but we must not rush headlong toward them," said Yahya, the commander of the army until President Mohammed Ayub Khan resigned and turned the government over to him four months ago. Since then the country has been under martial law.

Yahya said his government, which will be host to President Richard M. Nixon on Friday was taking steps to prepare for a return to constitutional government.

Construction Plans Sliced For Middle School Due To High Costs

Construction plans for the new middle school were temporarily cut back last night when Mill Valley School District trustees heard that cost estimates will exceed available funds by more than $350,000.

School architects said an independent cost estimate of plans for the new school at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue came in at $2,350,000, while school bonds currently available for sale can only produce $2 million, according to Supt. James A. Collins.

Trustees agreed to submit existing plans for bidding, to be opened about Sept. 12, but to amend the contract later to cut costs down to the $2 million limit, Collins said.

Trustees tentatively agreed to build only the outer shell of one of the four classroom pods and to install a gymnasium floor and showers only in the multipurpose room. Architects were directed to make recommendations for specific cuts in the site preparation budget, estimated to cost $267,000.

Collins said the architects are also investigating ways to substitute less expensive materials in the building while still maintaining aesthetic and functional qualities.

Amenities cut out during the initial construction phase will be restored in April when an additional $400,000 in bonds will be available for sale, he said.

Mixed Housing Favored For Alto Bowl

Apartments and single family residences are a desirable development mixture for the Alto Bowl, the Mill Valley Planning Commission declared last night.

Commissioners reaffirmed their desire to see a mixture of housing, including low-cost housing units, in the 26-acre development proposed by Cal-Fong Associates, planning director Harvey E. Bragdon reported.

Bragdon said the commission noted "multifamily units are not evil and need not be ugly" but said development should not intrude onto a prominent hill in the development area. Instead, he said, development should be in the valley areas, clustered closer together, but not so close as to preclude use of open space.

Developers were instructed to return Aug. 11 with economic facts to justify their request for a density increase from 3 to 5.4 units per acre, Bragdon said.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also:

SHOPPING — Approved the Alto shopping area section of the proposed 701 plan.

CAMPERS — Agreed not to regulate the placement of campers, vacation and house trailers on private property but asked Bragdon and the police chief to see if trailers parked on city streets block safe visibility.

UNDERGROUNDING — Supported a request by the California Roadside Council to endorse a proposal by two state public utility commissioners that all new and replaced utility lines be placed underground.

Police Report

Three Burglaries

San Rafael police today reported three burglaries amounting to $706.

Two impact wrenches valued at $138 each were reported stolen from the Midas Muffler Shop, 615 Francisco Boulevard, sometime between Saturday and Monday.

Police also said a pool sweeper valued at $400 stolen Friday from the pool at the apartment building at 35 Fairfax Street.

Police reported $30 stolen yesterday from the cashier's window at the Safeway market at 700 B Street.

Two Fined For Drunken Driving

Two drivers were given fines and probation terms in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for drunken driving.

Edward Schofield Travers, 44, of 100 Scenic Drive, Fairfax, was fined $240, given a 60-day suspended jail term and placed on two years' probation for drunken driving April 26 on Bolinas Road in Fairfax.

Robert John Montemayor, 20, of San Francisco, was fined $200 and placed on a year's probation for drunken driving Sunday on Caledonia Street in Sausalito.

The State Tree of Massachusetts is the American Elm.

Mill Valley School District Board Also:

GRANT — Heard the district's application for $15,000 outdoor education planning grant in cooperation with the county schools office has been approved by the federal government.

KQED — Approved a contract for supplemental materials for education films from KQED-TV, estimated to cost $792.

BOYD MUSEUM — Approved a contract for nature study programs from the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science for 1969-70 school year, to cost $350.

AIR FORCE — Signed a contract to allow the Air Force to provide transportation for students coming from the 666th Radar Squardron station on Mount Tamalpais at a cost of $2,200.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations from Jean Patterson, speech therapist, who has accepted a job with the San Mateo County Schools office, and from Mary Williams, fifth grade teacher at Strawberry Point School, who is leaving on a tour of Europe.

HIRING — Hired Genevieve Poehlmann as math and science teacher at Edna Maguire School at an annual salary of $9,390; Vera Obermeyer as a part-time psychologist in the guidance office, annual salary $3,750, and David McKenzie, custodian at Marin Terrace School, monthly salary, $507.

CLOSED SESSION — Agreed to reopen negotiations with the Mill Valley Teachers Association on 1969-70 salaries and met in closed session to instruct Collins on negotiations.

Expanded Kindergarten In Mill Valley Will Be Kept

Mill Valley School District's expanded kindergarten program, started last year, will be continued in the 1969-70 school year, the Mill Valley School District board decided last night.

Supt. James A. Collins reported the board voted to spend $60,000 of its recent $230,000 windfall to assign six additional teachers to the program. The windfall resulted when the county schools office discovered it had been too conservative in estimating state aid for fiscal 1968-69.

Under the new program, kindergarten students attend school for 200 minutes each day, an increase from 10 minutes allowed in prior years, Collins explained.

Each teacher will handle only one class of 25-30 students each day and have the other half of the day for program preparation, he said.

The board also voted to hire an additional music teacher for Edna Maguire School, replacing one cut earlier in the year because of budget stress. The additional teacher will cost $10,000, Collins said.

An addition request by persons in the audience to have the library program, also cut at budget time, restored, was delayed pending further study by Collins.

Collins told the board it will cost $20,000 if two additional librarians are hired to bring the library staff back up to six persons and said he is considering reassigning clerks to handle the two positions under the supervison of a trained librarian at a cost of only $8,000.

The library recommendation will be submitted to the board in September, Collins said.

Swim Team Fate Still Uncertain

Youngsters concerned with the fture of their swimming team met with the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission last night to see what plans are underway.

Chairman Ronald E. Rasmussen said he told the youngsters that a commission committee is studying the team, but has not yet made any recommendations.

The committee was established two weeks ago to study the possibility of setting up a second team and the operation of the current team, known as the Sting Rays. Rasmussen assured the youngsters that they would be consulted before any changes are made.

The commission also heard a report from recreation director Thomas West that four teams have been set up in the women's softball league with 18 women on each team. West predicted that six teams would be fielded next year.

Novato Porch Is Firebombed

A fire bomb was thrown today onto the porch of a Novato home, setting a blaze which caused about $200 damage, Fire Chief Jack Kidder said.

The bomb — an unidentified container probably containing gasoline — was tossed at the home of Ann T. Eastman at 707 Diablo Avenue at 3:19 a.m.

Police are investigating.

Four Counts Dropped After Guilty Plea

Four drug charges against Russell Michael Guidi, 21, of Fairfax, were dismissed in Marin Superior Court yesterday when Guidi pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing marijuana Sept. 10 in San Rafael.

Dropped were charges of possessing a narcotic-smoking device, being present where narcotics were used, possessing LSD and using marijuana. Guidi was ordered to appear Sept. 15 for sentencing.

Man Declared Guilty Of Forgery

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday found Anthony Mark Ramirez, 29, guilty of passing two forged checks last year in Tiburon and Novato.

Ramirez, of San Francisco, was identified as the mystery man who got a driver's license under a false name, then used it as identification in cashing checks stolen from United Associates Fork Lift Service of San Francisco.

It was the false license that led to Ramirez's undoing, Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry W. Herman said. An alert liquor store clerk seized the license when he tried to cash a check in Novato, and the suspect fled.

Officers compared the thumbprint on the license with that of a suspect — Ramirez — believed passing Fork Lift checks in the San Jose area.

The prints tallied and Marin authorities issued a warrant for Ramirez, but had to wait until he completed a 90-day jail sentence elsewhere before bringing him here for trial.

The jury yesterday agreed Ramirez had passed checks Sept. 23 at Embee Stores in Tiburon and Oct. 7 at Warden Liquors in Novato.

The jury could not decide on a third count charging Ramirez with passing a check Oct. 12 at D and L Market in Novato — ironically, the place where clerk John Dent seized the phony license from the bilker.

Judge Thomas F. Keating set sentencing for August 25. A new trial date for the third charge is also to be set then.

Governor's Pay Raise Bill Advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly Ways and Means Committee sent to the floor today a pay raise bill boosting the annual salary of the governor from $44,100 to $49,100.

The measure by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and a companion bill also would raise the salaries of other constitutional officers, state agency heads and members of the governor's staff. (Other Legislature stories, pages 1 and 8.)

The committee approved the bill with little debate — but Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, strongly objected to Gov. Reagan's refusal to disclose the number of members on his staff.

Crown asked: "How many persons does the governor have on his staff?"

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post replied: "We don't know . . . and we haven't been able to get it. We have been notified it's not public information."

Crown retorted: "You mean to say that we do not even know at this time whether Gov. Reagan's staff is bigger than (former) Gov. Brown's?"

Post said that was true, adding: "It's a new policy."

McCarthy Asks No BCDC River Control

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A proposal to bar the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission from expanding its jurisdiction up the Sacramento River was made today by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

A bill before the Senate to extend the life of BCDC would extend its jurisdiction about six miles up the river to include the huge industrial area at Collinsville in Solano County.

The BCDC asked for control over the area to insure that it would be used only for water-oriented industry. Use of the prime industrial site for other industry eventually would require more fill for industry that needs water access to the bay, the BCDC plan said.

The present limit of the commission's jurisdiction is a line between Stake Point in Contra Costa County and Simmons Point in Solano County. The Army Corps of Engineers has traditionally used this line as the dividing point between the bay and the delta.

A McCarthy aide said the amendment was asked by Solano County, which is part of the senator's district, to encourage plans by the National Steel Co. to build a mill at Collinsville. The company also is considering putting the plant in Texas, where there are no fill controls, the aide said.

McCarthy, who opposes giving BCDC any shoreline control, will push his amendment even if the Senate adopts the recommendation by its finance committee that shoreline controls be cut out of the bill, the aide said.

Arabs Term U.N. Agents 'Our Enemy'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops clashed with Jordanian forces today near the Sea of Galilee and two Israeli civilians died when their car struck an Arab mine. An Arab guerrilla organization said U.N. Middle East cease-fire observers would be treated as its enemy.

An Israeli military spokesman said Israelis and Jordanians battled with machineguns near Ashdod Yakov on the Jordan River cease-fire line. An Israeli soldier was wounded.

Two civilians were killed when their car hit a mine which Israel said was planted by Arab guerrillas in the Jordan Valley eight miles south of the Sea of Galilee.

Al-Fatah, the leading Arab guerrilla organization, in a broadcast from Cairo said U.N. observers stand in the way of Arab conquest of Palestine and Israeli-held territory.

"Anyone who bars the way to liberation is our enemy and will be declared as such," the broadcast said. U.N. observers are in the Middle East to protect Israel and "carry out the proposed political settlement the Arabs have already rejected," Al-Fatah said.

Accused Son Recalls Night Of Slaying

A 20-year-old Corte Madera youth, accused of fatally stabbing his father last December, took the stand in his own defense today and recounted, in a barely audible, sometimes quavering voice, the night his father died.

David Vaughn Busdieker recalled coming home and telling his parents, Larry Glenn and Violet Busdieker, he had lost the keys to the family car and would find them in the morning.

"My dad started swearing at me," and threatened to kill him, Busdieker said. "Then he came at me."

"I kept saying I didn't want any trouble and just leave me alone," the youth said quietly.

He said his father continued swinging and one blow connected, knocking him off balance. "I kinda crawled into the kitchen," the 1967 Redwood High School graduate said.

He said his father continued swearing at him and saying to him, "I'm going to kill you."

"I grabbed the knife," he said. And the swearing and threats continued.

"The next thing I remember he was on the floor."

"I told my mom I didn't mean to hurt Dad," the youth said.

He testified he had gotten the knife because "I wanted to scare him off so he would leave me alone." He said he had no intention of killing his father.

Busdieker also told of earlier occurrences when his father had sworn at him, threatened to kill him and beat him.

The night of his death, however, the father was different. "He talked a strange way, his eyes didn't look right. He just didn't seem like the same person," Busdieker said.

He also testified he had had a couple of drinks while he was working as a dishwasher earlier in the evening and at a friend's home before he returned to his own home.

He said he made no attempt to run after his father's death. "I was too stunned and scared."

Shortly after the trial opened today in Judge Harold J. Haley's courtroom in Marin Superior Court, Busdieker's attorney, Roger Garety, in vain asked for acquittal on the grounds there was insufficient evidence to prove intent. Busdieker is charged with manslaughter.

BUDGET

favor of the administration's proposal to extend the surtax at its present 10 per cent rate until Dec. 31 and then at 5 per cent until June 30, 1970.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who has vowed to delay a vote on the surtax extension until a comprehensive tax reform bill is ready for action, was asked if the budget report would change his strategy.

"The news is good," Mansfield said. "I'm delighted with it. But the situation is unchanged."

Mayo, in testimony to the House Ways and Means Committee May 20 and to the Senate Finance Committee July 8, said extension of the surtax would spell the difference between an inflation-dampening surplus for the present fiscal year or an inflationary deficit.

With the surtax, he said, the budget for this fiscal year would be $6.33 billion in the black. But, opponents of the surcharge now point out, if the surplus for this fiscal year is as much underestimated as the margin for the last one, the budget will balance even without the $7.6 billion the surtax would raise.

In a joint statement, the Treasury Department and the Budget Bureau yesterday said receipts were $187.8 billion for the 1969 fiscal year compared with expenditures of $184.8 billion.

The surplus was the first since $240 million in fiscal 1960 and was the biggest since $3.2 billion in fiscal 1957.

School Bussing Session Is Set

The Kentfield School District board will hold a special session Aug. 11 to award a contract for school bus service in the fall, a spokesman announced today.

The board will hold its next regular meeting Aug. 4 to adopt a preliminary budget.

The board did not meet last night. July is the only month in which the boards holds only one meeting, which was held this year on July 14.

NIXON

withdrawing more troops from Vietnam. A Saigon visit would give Nixon opportunity to discuss this further with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The visit to Saigon also would give him a chance to see for himself how the war was progressing. And it could give him a chance to say goodbye to 750 men of the U.S. Ninth Infantry Division who are leaving Bien Hoa, 15 miles north of Saigon, tomorrow for home.

The departing Ninth Infantrymen will bring to more than 7,000 the number of Americans withdrawn from Vietnam since he announced on Midway Island last month that 25,000 would be withdrawn by the end of August and more if the situation warranted.

President Lyndon B. Johnson visited Vietnam twice and each time he went to Cam Ranh Bay on the seacoast northeast of Saigon, one of the more secure areas in Vietnam. His visits were in October 1966 and at Christmas 1967.

Saigon is much less secure than Cam Ranh Bay but the sources said Nixon did not want to go to Cam Ranh Bay because he did not want to be identified with Johnson's role in the war at all.

Although Saigon has been hit by rockets and mortars in the past, there have been no attacks in recent weeks nor have there been any recent attacks against Tan Son Nhut, the big airbase on the fringes of Saigon where Nixon would be expected to land. Another base that could handle Air Force One is Bien Hoa, 13 miles north of Tan Son Nhut.

The disclosure that Nixon wanted to pull American troops out of Thailand was made by Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman.

Khoman answered newsmen's questions in writing after the end of more than four hours of meetings between Nixon and his top national security aide, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger on one side, and Thanat and Premier Thanom Kittikachorn on the other.

It is Thailand's problems with guerrillas—and the possibility of involving the United States in the current low-level insurgency—that has caused the concern among both Thai and American officials about the status of U.S. troops that came here originally to help fight the Vietnam War.

The Americans, operating from six airbases in Thailand, have bombed North Vietnam from here and carried out B52 strikes against Communist forces in South Vietnam. They also have struck against Communist forces in Laos in what some call "the secret war" there.

Thant said he and Kittikachorn had assured Nixon that Thailand was able to stand by itself against the enemy within the country, but that it would require substantial amounts of military equipment from the United States to help it do so.

San Rafael Man Sentenced For Armed Robbery

I-J Special Report

SAN LUIS OBISPO — A 36-year old man who said he lived in San Rafael was sentenced yesterday in San Luis Obispo County Superior Court to a state prison term for the armed robbery of a food market here on June 28.

Jerome William Jenks was sentenced by Judge Richard F. Harris.

Police said Jenks and a companion, Billy Ray Jackson, 34, who also identified himself as a San Rafael resident, took $895 in the robbery, then had a gunfight with officers when cornered.

Jackson, who gave an address on Stevens Place, has pleaded innocent to an armed robbery charge and will go on trial Aug. 6.

Jenks listed his address as De Luca Place.

Coast Guard Plans For Marin Eased

The Coast Guard reported yesterday that its local command has cut down the number of townhouses and may ask Washington to buy more acreage for its proposed housing site in Inverness.

The assurance came from Rear Adm. C. R. Bender, commander of the Twelfth Coast Guard District in San Francisco, in a letter to the Marin County Planning Commission. (Other county planning commission stories, page 18.)

Planning commissioners, obviously happy with the assurance, asked Planning Director Paul C. Zucker to send a letter to Admiral Bender, "concurring with the modifications proposed."

"We have just reduced the number of planned family housing units from 36 to 30," said Admiral Bender. "We are also giving serious consideration to recommending to our Washington headquarters that we acquire such additional acreage, so that coupled with the reduction in housing units, we can halve the density that was mentioned in our July 14 meeting with you."

That would reduce the 3.5 density thus far proposed by the Coast Guard to 1.75, much nearer the 1.15 limits set by the West Marin Master Plan.

The question of density was a major cause of objection to Coast Guard plans by some Inverness property owners and county planners.

The Coast Guard has planned to build four barracks for 41 men and 36 townhouses for 36 families on 22.5 acres. At a hearing on July 14, several planning commissioners and residents of Inverness Valley objected to the density and the possibility of sewage, school and police problems.

In addition to reduced density, Admiral Bender assured the county that the sewage treatment facility will meet requirements of the San Francisco Bay Area Water Quality Control Board, and a soils stability analysis of the spray irrigation field will be performed.

"We will continue to do everything possible to make our development compatible with the community," said the admiral.

Doctors Will Launch Health Care Checks

the tax-financed programs.

Some charges of abuse are more than 3 years old.

One example of such a charge occurred in 1967 when the state director of the Office of Health Care Services reported about 300 physicians in the state had received between $80,000 and $110,000 each from the Medi-Cal program during its first 16 months of existence.

Don. W. Sower, executive director of the Marin society, said the decision to police fees and services also stemmed from urgings by the California Medical Association.

Such programs, carried out by reviewing each bill to be submitted to the government, already are in operation in Sonoma, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, he said.

In Marin the plan has the backing of most of the more than 300 doctors who belong to the society and are anxious to "bring services into line," he said.

He acknowledged, however, there were a handful of doctors who would oppose the program.

But those "bad apples" will find that they simply won't get paid for treating Medi-Cal and Medicare patients unless they submit their bills for society approval, he said. The government has indicated it is more willing to cooperate with the reviewing procedure, Sower added.

This is how the reviewing program will work:

California Physician's Service (Blue Shield), which currently scans all bills submitted under the Medi-Cal and Medicare programs, will be asked to divert first a few, and then all bills to the society's claims division.

A span of about three months in putting the program in full gear will allow the claims division, yet to be organized, to iron out wrinkles in its operation. By December all bill s should be coming first to the society for review, Sower said.

In the screening process bills that seem inflated will be set aside, the physician contacted and efforts made for an adjustment. Reviewers also will watch for abuses by patients applying for excess care, Sower said.

Persons with private health insurance through Blue Shield or other organizations will not be protected by the reviewing function, Sower said.

Hence the society's decision to plug in its publicity machine and make the public aware that there is a place to take its grievances for review and remedial action.

It still leaves the decision on whether to pursue a complaint on the shoulders of the individual.

To spread information on the procedure, the society has chosen a modest, three-fold pamphlet with black lettering on mustard colored paper. Tentatively, plans are to make doctors' offices the distribution points for the pamphlet.

The publication sketches grievance plans here and in other California counties, and then offers the reassurance: "The medical society's grievance, mediation or review committee exists neither to 'protect' nor to 'defend' the physician if he is at fault. It exists to see that justice is done . . ."

Last year about 75 complaints regarding fees and services were made to Sower's office. He was unable to indicate what percentage that was of the total bills issued last year in Marin, but the total is in the thousands.

Eighteen of the 75 complaints required action by the society's public service committee of 10 specialists in surgery, pediatrics, obstetrics, internal medicine and other areas and two general practitioners.

Dr. Roger W. Hedin, one of the two GPs, is chairman.

He explained how the grievance appratus works, using the case of a Marin County woman.

She complained that a $180 bill for treatment of a leg gash was "twice as much" as it should have been, Hedin said.

She was asked by Sower during her telephone call to write a letter explaining her position. The physician involved was asked to do the same.

With the two accounts, and after investigation and a recommendation from the appropriate physician on the committee, it was determined the bill more equitably should have been $92.

The doctor acceded to the finding, even though the committee has no power to enforce compliance.

Why? "Peer pressure" is a lever doctors find hard to ignore, Hedin said.

The explanation: The doctor had arrived at the figure because he considered the case a complex one, citing the woman's other medical problems. The committee determined the case was more one of a simple laceration.

The woman went away satisfied, Hedin added.

Such disparities in bills are likely to continue to occur, at least until April of next year, Hedin and Sower said. Not until then will doctors be supplied with a new edition of a California Medical Association guidebook on fees.

The one currently in use is 5 years old and full of gaps, with no provisions for some types of care, the pair noted.

definitely see footprints on the surface."

Earlier McLeaish reported the moonmen have been reflecting on the significance of their momentous mission and the place they will take in history.

"As you know, they are not outspoken people," he said. "But they feel the significance of what they have done."

Fourteen persons, including doctors, technicians and a cook, are quarantined with the astronauts.

Researchers delayed until tomorrow the first treatment of germ-free mice with moon dust to determine if lunar organisms exist which could threaten life on earth.

They had hoped to start the process today, but officials reported more time was needed for preparation, including grinding the lunar soil samples into uniform size for the experiments.

The opening of a second box of rocks returned by the Apollo 11 astronauts was delayed by a rip in a glove that technicians use to reach into a glass-encased vacuum chamber.

The outer layer of the three-layer right hand glove was torn while removing samples from the first box. If cut all the way through, outside air could seep in and ruin the vacuum, or lunar organisms, if present, could leak out.

A new outer covering was being placed on the glove today and work in the chamber was expected to resume late in the day.

Meanwhile, scientists studying rocks gathered on the moon by the Apollo 11 astronauts say the evidence is overwhelming that the lunar plains were created by lava flows.

They also said mysterious black dust clinging to the outside of the rocks contains a high percentage of lustrous glass-like spheres that may have rained down on the moon after a meteor plowed into the surface.

The experiment with the mice called for scientists to inject moon dust into the animals' blood, spray it in the air they breathe and put it in their food.

If the mice come down with an illness which cannot be explained or controlled between now and the time the astronauts' quarantine period is to end Aug. 11, the spacemen and 14 other people with them will have to remain untouchables for a longer time.

Similar studies will be made later using plants, insects, human tissue cultures and sea creatures.

Excitement among researchers examining moon dust and rocks was focused on preliminary findings of the material's physical properties, including a real scientific surprise—that up to one-third of the moon dust is composed of the glass-like beads.

"They seem to be telling us something is going on on the moon that we haven't anticipated," said Dr. Paul Gast of Lamont-Doeherty Geological Observatory at Plalisades, N.Y.

The tiny spheres—which range in color from dark brown to yellow—probably resulted from "condensation of a gas or vapor created by the impact of a meteor," said Dr. Clifford Frondell of Harvard University.

"The gas turned into droplets, condensed and rained down on the lunar surface," he suggested,

Researchers probing around the moon dirt also turned up a pebble-sized rock which looked whitish, like a pearl.

Perhaps the most important find was that most of the rocks returned by Apollo 11 appear to be hardened lava.

Preliminary studies have produced "overwhelming evidence that the mare (dry lunar seas) are built up by lava flows," said Dr. Eugene Shoemaker, geologist at the California Institute of Technology.

While the scientists still say it is possible the lava was formed by meteors slamming into the surface rather than volcanos, a researcher who has supported a theory for 20 years that the moon is cold and hard said he may change his mind.

Mariner 6 Takes First Mars Shots

PASADENA (AP) — Mariner 6 snapped its first pictures of Mars last night and flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory later said its camera seemed to be working well.

Quality of the pictures—start of a week-long series which may show whether life in any form can exist on Mars—will not be determined until the space craft begins television tonight.

The start of picture taking came while the 850-pound Mariner 6 was still 771,500 miles from Mars and about 58 millions miles from Earth.

Signals from the space craft take five and one-half minutes to reach Earth.

A few minutes before picture taking started, a spokesman said signals indicated the camera platform was properly aimed at the center of Mars and that light was entering the lens.

Then came word that some sort of picture was being recorded on tape.

The first sequence of 33 long-range pictures, requiring about 20 hours, is to be stored on tape aboard the space craft and sent to Earth starting 6:35 p.m. today (PDT).

The first pictures are expected to show the full disc of the planet at a distance and may not be much more detailed than those made by earth telescopes.

They should show, however, virtually all faces of the planet as it revolves before the approaching space craft.

an agency or department drafting its 1970-71 budget. It will be up to the department to assign its highest priorities to fit that sum.

A department can submit a "supplemental list" of lesser priority services and programs. Reagan ultimately will approve or deny those items before submission to the Legislature.

He said his No. 1 goal is reducing the cost of state government. The second highest priority will be given to reduction of employees below the 114,403 civil servants on the payroll when he took office. There were 115,402 last January, but neither total included University of California or state college workers.

"I know you're all going to refuse to believe this," Reagan said. "This decision was not based on anything to do with campaigns or politics at all. It was on my continued screaming that we've got to do more on reducing the cost of government."

Later Assembly Democratic caucus chairman George Zenovich and the California State Employes Association criticized the move.

"It's ridiculous," said Zenovich referring to the department heads setting priorities. "I don't see any logic in a move like this."

Asked about the timing of the announcement, the Fresno Democrat said, "He's been looking at polls showing his popularity has dropped. The campuses have been quiet. The people are upset at the high taxes since he's been in office. He can't get his tax reform moving."

A spokesman for the employee organization said Reagan "is treating state government like it is his own personal toy. He seems to forget that government is providing services requested by the people."

Bids To Open For Sewage Repair Work

The Almonte Sanitary District board will consider construction bids for sewer repair work on Beryl Avenue at its 8 p.m. meeting tomorrow in the district office, chairman Herbert E. Davis reported.

Directors, who normally meet on the fourth Monday on the month, advanced the meeting to accommodate the bidders.

OBITUARIES

ALBERT LaMOTTE

Funeral for Albert E. LaMotte, 75, a 25-year resident of Sausalito, will be at 10:45 a.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

LaMotte died Sunday at a local hospital following a long illness.

He was a native of Brockton, Mass.

He was a boilermaker and had last worked for Fraser and Johnston Co. of San Francisco. LaMotte was a member of Boiler Makers Iron Ship Builders Welders and Helpers Local No. 6, San Francisco. He was also a member of Muir Lodge No. 136, Knights of Pythias and retired member of the Sausalito Volunteer Fire Department.

The family home is 524 Spring Street.

He is survived by his wife, Josie; two sons, Percy LaMotte of San Rafael and Gayle LaMotte of Novato; four brothers, Lector, Frank, Rolly and Raymond LaMotte and a sister, Dora Liska, all from the vicinity of Hamar, No. Dak.

The Knights of Pythias will hold a memorial service for LaMotte at Keaton's Mortuary at 8 p.m. today. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

HAZEL MONJE

Funeral for Hazel E. Monje of Novato was held yesterday at Crosby-N. Gray and Co. Mortuary in Burlingame. Burial was in Skylawn Memorial Park, San Mateo.

Mrs. Monje died Saturday in a Novato convalescent home. She was born in Michigan, where she was an apartment house manager for 50 years, and moved to Marin County over three years ago.

She lived at 1656 Novato Boulevard before entering the rest home.

Surviving are two sons, Henry E. Monje of Novato and William G. Monje of Phoenix, Ariz., and six grandchildren.

State May Lend Marin Youth Aide

A pilot project to staff Marin's new post of juvenile coordinator has been proposed by the state.

The coordinator was approved by the board of supervisors to work with the Marin County juvenile delinquency prevention and youth commissions.

The state Youth Authority and delinquent prevention officials have proposed lending Marin "a high-caliber person" for a year, Gary T. Giacomini, a commission member, reported.

However, he said, Marin may not be able to pay as much as that type of person would earn.

A meeting to discuss the proposal with a state representative has been set for 9 a.m. Aug. 6 in Room 33 of the Cheda Building, San Rafael, Giacomini said.

He reported the commission would investigate the possibility of the state making up the difference in the salaries.

He said it appears the coordinator could be hired within about a week if the state proposal works. Going through regular county personnel procedures would delay the hiring until November, he said.

Giacomini indicated the two commissions have so many plans and ideas members would like to begin work immediately.

The regular meeting of the juvenile delinquency prevention commission will be held at 8 a.m. Aug. 6, preceding the meeting with the state representative. It was postponed from the regular meeting time of the fourth Wednesday.

risdiction over the lagoon from the district to the County of Marin. It requires the county to submit its plans for the lagoon to the State Lands Commission within three years. If the commission rejected the plan, the lagoon would revert to state jurisdiction.

The bill also requires that the county carry out its plan within five years after approval by the commission. If a harbor of refuge were included by the county in its plan, according to the bill, it must be "consistent with the preservation of the natural features of the lagoon."

The committee also gave a unanimous recommendation to another Bagley bill. It would require that meetings of the Regents of the University of California be open to the public.

A BURNING ISSUE — Women opposing a divorce reform bill passed by the Senate yesterday burn a simulated marriage certificate during a demonstration yesterday outside the Long Beach office of a state Assemblyman. The bill needs only Gov. Ronald Reagan's promised signature to become law. (AP Wirephoto)

Attacks On Patient Bring Demo Charges

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Democrats are blaming budget cuts by Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration for making possible the repeated mistreatment, including homosexual rape, of a 14-year old boy at Napa State Hospital.

But the governor, while describing the case as "tragic," denied the Democratic charges that the abuses resulted from cutbacks in money and hospital staffing. He said an investigation of conditions at the hospital has been started.

The charges and denial were prompted yesterday by the release of a parent's letter reporting attacks on the youth. The letter was addressed to Reagan and a copy sent to Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, who made copies public at a news conference.

The boy reportedly was beaten and subjected to humiliating acts by other youths in the children's units and was tormented by hospital staff bers.

Assemblyman John Dunlap, D-Napa, said "any negligence or responsibility involved...rests with the department (of mental hygiene) headquarters in Sacramento and with the Reagan administration to whom it is responsible."

Dunlap said that the children's unit staff had been cut from 121 to 100 while the patient population remained at 183. He and Ryan said that while 19 additional persons have been authorized for the children's ward, the increase worked out to only one-third of a person to each ward at any one time.

Reagan's human relations secretary, Spencer Williams, told newsmen there had been no staff cuts at the children's unit but "some overadminsions" had reduced the staff-patient ratio.

But he said "there is no question that these events took place," referring to the abuses. However, he questioned the accuracy of a published report of a "gang attack."

"It is a case that obviously was not brought about by any curtailment or cut in personnel, Reagan said. "We are increasing our staffing and I think you'll find that in almost every institution there is now a higher ratio of help to patients than there was when we took over."

The parent said the boy, who has been at the institution since July 1, 1968, was knocked unconscious, his eyeglasses broken and teeth chipped when 10 other youths covered him with a blanket and beat him.

The parents said homosexual attacks in the children's ward "are viewed by all and many do occur often."

The letter charged that when the boy came home on visits "we could not walk toward him without his putting his arms up as if to protect himself.

"He is alive physically, who knows what emotional reprecussions this will have for my son now and-or for the rest of his life. Who's to blame, governor? Who's at fault?"

Date Corrected For Next Housing Talks

The next meeting of directors of Ecumenical Association for Housing will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 17 in the administration building of the Marin Civic Center.

A story in the Independent-Journal July 23 incorrectly reported the meeting date as Sept. 27.

Rail Changes Mind About Garbage Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Maybe San Francisco's garbage won't be hauled to a Lassen County desert after all.

S. Myron Tatarian, city public works director, told the board of supervisors yesterday that the Western Pacific Railroad had changed conditions of a proposed contract.

As a result, he urged that the city instead give consideration to a proposed disposal area at Mountain View, about 30 miles south on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Tatarian said that last Friday the railroad "summarily and unilaterally" advised that it would not consider a 20-year agreement, and was demanding a 10-year pact.

That action, he said, threw out cost figures the road had worked up in connection with the 20-year proposal and substituted new rates for a 10-year pact which were "substantially" higher.

Butternut trees are also known as white walnuts.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Only Reagan's Signature Is Needed For New Divorce Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Only Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature was needed today to overhaul laws.

And the governor, a divorced man himself, has assured drafters of the first major divorce reform bill since 1872 that he will sign it.

The state Senate gave final legislative passage to the compromise measure yesterday and sent it to Reagan's desk on a 25-8 vote. Not voting was Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael. The Assembly passed the same bill last week 55-10.

The key portion of the measure eliminates such traditional grounds for divorce as mental cruelty, adultery or habitual drunkenness and permits just two: incurable insanity or irreconciliable differences.

"Irreconciliable differences are those grounds which are determined by the court to be substantial reasons for not continuing the marriage and which make it appear that the marriage should be dissolved," the measure states.

Community property would be "substantially" equally divided except when one spouse squandered or misappropriated it. No private investigator reports could be introduced as evidence to prove one partner was at fault.

Alimony would be determined by considering a woman's earning ability and the duration of the marriage.

And the word divorce will be dropped from the law books. All decrees granted after the law goes into effect next Jan. 1 will be known as a "dissolution of marriage."

A provision making divorces final in six months instead of the current one year and reducing the residency requirement to six months drew criticism from those who thought it would make divorce too easy to obtain in California.

But Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watonsville, contended, "We are stemming with this bill the Nevada quickie-type divorces."

Differences of opinion were also evident in Nevada. In Reno, an official of the Nevada Bar Association disagreed with the Nevada Assembly Speaker who claimed the new California law would ruin the Nevada divorce business.

The Nevada divorce trade has been built around the short six-week residency requirement and the relatively simple grounds on which a divorce can be obtained.

Nevada Assembly Speaker Howard McKissick had been quoted as saying the new California law would "ruin our racket" and reduce Nevada's lucrative divorce trade to a "dribble."

But Bar Association Executive Secretary Robert Herz said that most Nevada lawyers center their business around "the general practice of law — they may or may not include divorces. The California law won't have much effect on law practice here."

Opponents of the new California measure argued it would make divorce too easy and also that the final compromise bill did not accomplish all it set out to do.

"We do not want to make California a divorce mill state," said Sen. Clark L. Bradley, R-San Jose. "This makes it far easier to get a divorce than has been the case before."

Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, said the two chief sponsors—Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, and Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R.Long Beach—were "on the right track" but missed their mark.

"The bill is better than existing law, but it is not reform," said Moscone. He said irreconcilable differences still leave it up to the judge to decide whether a marriage should be terminated.

Moscone said this will permit evidence to be introduced that could lead to the same bloody court battles that now take place. The measure was aimed at preventing courtroom fights.

He said he favored the approach originally recommended by the Governor's Commission on the Family. It would have granted a decree when "legitimate objects of matrimony had been destroyed," a concept Moscone said would allow "consent" divorces.

Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, opposed the measure because he said it abetted the gradual eroding of the family in American life.

"Instead of trying to preserve the family as a unit we're going in the opposite direction of making it easier to get a divorce," he said.

Sen. George Danielson, D-Los Angeles, disputed the contention that divorces would be easier to get. He said obtaining one will be the same only "the procedure will be less painful." Grunsky, who has been working on divorce revision for three years, agreed. He said the bill would reduce the number of Californians who flow over the border to Nevada to get a decree.

SEEKS HELP

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Sen. John A. Nejedly appealed today to the public for help in resurrecting his bill outlawing DDT in California by 1972.

The Assembly Agriculture Committee yesterday killed the measure which was opposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan's Department of Agriculture and the state's $4.5 billion agriculture industry.

A nearly unanimous vote sent the bill to gather dust in between-session study. As a substitute, the committee approved and sent to ways and means committee a combination of several other proposals dealing with economic poisons.

The bill that cleared the committee lays out specific guidelines for the agriculture department to follow in registering pesticides and herbicides, controlling their use and keeping records on the amounts sold and used.

Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, said he hadn't given up on an outright ban on DDT. He said he'd ask for reconsideration of the committee action.

"You can be sure the bill will come back again," he said of one of the major conservation bills before the Legislature this year.

He appealed for public support for the DDT ban.

"Now it's up to the people to express their interest and their concern," Nejedly said after the vote. "They should write every member of the Assembly and tell them of their views and set the stage for moving this bill again as early as we possibly can."

Personality clashes flashed between Nejedly and the committee members during the lengthy hearing.

Nejedly objected at one time that committee members were "badgering" his research scientist witnesses with their questions. The former Contra Costa County district attorney began his presentation standing and making his points as if talking to a jury.

"Sit down and be comfortable, Mrs. Nejedly," said Chairman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles.

Agriculture director Jerry Fielder repeated administration objections to the bill and said his department "intends to phase out the use of DDT but feels it can do so by (present) regulations."

A string of witnesses for the agriculture industry said it could not survive the cost-price squeeze without use of DDT.

BLOCKS BILLS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Robert Monagan yesterday blocked further action on Assembly bills still pending before the lower house, including Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform program.

Monagan caught Democratic leadership by surprise when he invoked a rule no further action can be taken on Assembly bills after 10 days before the day set for adjournment.

The Assembly earlier voted to adjourn Aug. 6, making the deadline for consideration of Assembly bills midnight last night.

The action left Reagan's tax reform program and rival tax reform plans all stalled in Assembly committees.

Also caught by the deadline were Republican-sponsored bills that would place a tax on publically owned electric companies and abolish the practice of appointing inheritance tax appraisers, both introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Monagan was asked why Democrats had not anticipated the deadline.

"The Democratic leadership isn't very smart," he replied.

Democrats could obtain another day to consider Assembly bills by agreeing to adjourn Aug. 8, the date set by the Senate.

PREEMPT

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill empowering cities to regulate topless and bottomless shows died yesterday in the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee.

The senate-passed bill by Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, was killed on a split voice vote after Richardson argued the measure would clarify the laws as to what areas were expressly preempted by the state.

Duane R. Baker, Glendale police chief and a strong proponent of the bill, listed several areas including entertainment, prostitution, loitering and trespass, that he said are unclear on whether the state or city have power to legislate.

"We need clarification," Baker told the committee.

Richard Carpenter, lobbyist for the League of California Cities, supported the measure but opposed a section which would have invalidated the San Francisco gun registration ordinance, upheld by the state Supreme Court.

The committee defeated the bill after rejecting a motion by Assemblyman Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, to strike all of the measure except the section declaring the state only could enact gun control laws.

Man Arraigned

Gerald A. Tucker, 24, of San Francisco, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing marijuana in his car Saturday on Shoreline Highway. Tucker was ordered to appear Aug. 7 to enter a plea.

MEADERS may have some of the fanciest equipment made (including an IBM-programmed cleaning machine), but they haven't thrown away the hand irons. In fact, all your cleaning is hand finished at Meaders. Meaders thinks that's the beauty of advanced equipment—it does its job better, and frees people for the careful hand work that no machine can do. Old-fashioned, maybe; but your clothes will show you what Meaders means.

Small things matter at Meaders.

More on weekends.

Why worry about a reservation when PSA has over 160 flights a day? Such an easy-to-remember schedule you can carry it around in your head. Why remember lowest fares? Or all jets? Or great service to Los Angeles, Ontario, and San Diego? Or that kids under 12 fly PSA (with their parents) for half fare? Still want a reservation? Just remember to call your travel agent or whatsitsname airlines. PSA gives you a lift.

It doesn't complicate your life.
Maverick is the simple machine—simple to own, simple to repair, simple to service, simple to drive.

It doesn't cost a lot.
With prices everywhere going sky-high, Maverick comes along with a down-to-earth price—$1995.*

It doesn't have a tiny trunk.
Maverick gives you 10.4 cu. ft. of trunk space—nearly twice as much as the leading import. Now the whole family's luggage can go along for the ride.

It doesn't squeeze you in.
Some big people live in this country. That's why we made Maverick bigger than the imports. Lots of legroom and shoulder room.

It doesn't squeeze you out.
It's great for parking, great for handling, great for zipping through traffic.

It doesn't cost a lot for maintenance.
You can do most maintenance jobs yourself, if you want. If your mechanic does it, he can do it in a lot less time. Great when time is money and the money is yours.

It doesn't need a lot of service.
Maverick oil changes and chassis lubrication come less often than in the leading import. (Isn't it time you started seeing less of your mechanic and more of your car?)

Cheaper by the doesn'ts.

It doesn't skimp on essentials.
Maverick gives you tough brakes, unitized body construction, rustproofing, and four coats of paint. Its 3-speed transmission is able to handle twice as much horsepower as the engine turns out.

It doesn't burn a lot of gas.
Maverick gives you the kind of mileage you'd expect from a little import—even with a powerful six-cylinder engine.

It doesn't hold back on power.
Turn on the engine and turn loose 105 horses—nearly twice as much as the leading import. This means highway power, passing power. The kind of power you need.

It doesn't handle like a kite.
The road might be wet and the wind strong but Maverick's tread is wider than the car is high—great for stability. (Most economy imports are higher than their tread is wide.)

It doesn't follow the herd.
Maverick's new, different. A bright idea with bold, new colors. See your Ford Dealer for the rest of the story. Find out why Maverick is the hottest selling new car to come along since Mustang.

JUNIOR BOYS — Chess playing is only one of many activities that keep the young boys busy at juvenile hall. They are usually a small group, easier to handle. Besides a variety of indoor activities the 8 to 13 year olds take field trips regularly. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

INSIDE THE HALL — Residents of juvenile hall spend a lot of time in their rooms, sometimes just sitting and thinking and sometimes, like this boy, messing around. Out of their rooms, the young people play pool, read, make things.

tificial environment — real stresses and strains are softened," he said. "The shock of real life after an institution is pretty hard for some kids to take."

The shock of the unreal life at juvenile hall is also hard to take. It feels like a different world.

Outside it 's attractive enough, nestled beneath the hills in Lucas Valley, two miles west of Highway 101. It's strangely, uncomfortably quiet for a place housing an average of 50 children from 8 to 18 — even when they play outside.

Inside, reached through a series of locked doors there are stresses and tensions barely imaginable to outsiders.

The girls' unit, a depressing old building, housed 21 girls the day we visited. There are nine tiny rooms equipped with bunk beds and, in some cases, an extra mattress on the floor to accommodate overflow population.

Girls of all ages are housed together, making it difficult for them and for the staff. "We have to try to meet some needs of each age group," said Milton P. Shimabukuro, acting supervisor of the unit.

Sole relief in the austere surroundings are the magazine pictures and posters some girls have hung.

Decorative grillwork serves to bar the windows and each heavy door has a small screened window.

Rooms are bugged, with a two-way communication system. Doors are locked most of the time, whether the girls are in or out.

There are two bathrooms for all the girls. The day we visited two of the four toilets were out of order.

There's a recreation room and kitchen, large enough for quiet activities but not especially inviting. A large room next door, the site of the first co-ed dance in a Juvenile Hall in the country a few years ago, stands empty.

The whole unit is dreadfully hot with a pressing, airless kind of heat.

Similar in makeup, but larger, is the senior boys unit, where, counselors say it takes just three minutes to break out through the bedroom windows.

There are 20 rooms for a population which averages in the 20s but climbs to 37 or 39 at times.

It's woefully lacking in simple conveniences such as chairs, much noiser than the girls unit, every bit as hot and airless.

Less depressing is the junior boys unit, a portable which isn't locked. The day we visited there were six residents, four of them detained for being beyond parental control "but you don't see that kind of behavior here," said a counslor.

The younger boys have occupied the unit since January and there hasn't been a single runaway. "We had more problems when they were locked up," said counselor Michael L. DiCerbo. "They've really developed a sense of trust and group unity," he added.

"The only thing that really keeps a child here is that they feel safe — emotional and physical safety," Donald explained.

All of the units are inside the high fence which surrounds Juvenile Hall. However, no one pretends the fence will stop a runaway if he really wants to go that way. Only about 5 per cent a year do, according to officials.

Petaluma Council Reviews Plans For Widening Three Streets

The Petaluma City Council in special session last night reviewed plans to widen East Washington Street, Payran Street and Caulfield Lane.

Reporting on the completion of months of study was B.C. Albritton of Whitlow, Hoffman and Albritton, civil engineers of San Rafael.

The recommended plan line to widen East Washington Street began at the area of reconstruction of the Washington Bridge, with the width of 69 feet being constructed there to be continued along the presently 42-foot-wide street to highway 101.

Albritton said the widening would permit four traffic lanes rather than two, with protected left turn lanes at most intersections and street parking in most blocks.

He said the plan lines were established to cause the minimum disruption of businesses and expensive properties. Under the plan, 64 parcels of land would be affected and 18 buildings disturbed. Construction cost was estimated at $323,000. Most of the right-of-way acquisition would be on the south side of the street, he said.

Albritton offered four other plans that included banning parking and widening to only 52 feet, to divide the right of way takes evenly on both side and a plan to take all right of way from the north side.

City engineer David A. Young said the five proposals varied in construction cost from $298,150 to $332,400 and recommendation that the right-of-way needed be most seriously considered in determining costs.

On the widening of Caulfield Lane, Albritton recommended that the street be widened or improved to four lanes, 52 feet wide from South McDowell Boulevard to the proposed new Highway 101 overcrossing.

Most of the needed right-of-way was purchased when subdivisions were built in the area several years ago. Albritton said that four parcels would be affected and three buildings disturbed.

Total construction cost for the Caulfield project was estimated at $556,787 but Young quickly added that most of the cost would be for the freeway overcrossing which would be paid by the State Division of Highways.

On the Payran Street plans, Albritton recommended it be widened to 64 feet from Petaluma Boulevard to Caulfield Lane.

He said the most problems would be met in the Linda Del Mar subdivision between Petaluma Boulevard North and East Washington Street where builders ignored easements and built homes in the right-of-way area.

The engineer said that many homes would lose garages and have steep grades for driveways. He said that 117 parcels would be affected and four homes disturbed.

In the plans for widening Washington Street between Keokuk and Kentucky streets, Albritton recommended the street be widened by 52 feet. He said that only the sign at the Showcase Theater would be disturbed. The widening of 10 feet would reduce sidewalks from 14 to 9 feet.

The council took the widening plans under consideration and said it would devote future study sessions, the council awarded the bid for construction of a boat launching ramp on the Petaluma River to the Cleverdon Co. of Layfayette at $121,336.

Young said some of the plans had been deleted to bring the project cost within the $121,000 grant from the State Division of Harbors and Watercraft. Deleted from the project were plans to put asphalt and concrete on the parking area. A double sealer coat was subsituted to bring down costs.

Young said the completion of the project is expected in late November or early December.

Integration Test For Richmond

MARTINEZ (AP)—The Richmond School Board's plan to achieve integration by voluntary busing will get a one-year trial, Superior Court Judge Robert J. Cooney ruled yesterday.

Cooney told the Contra Costa Legal Services Foundation that it may request further court hearings after May 31, 1970, if the plan fails to achieve racial balance in the schools.

The foundation had sought to revive a plan of forced busing adopted earlier by the school board.

On July 10 the board, with three newly elected members, substituted voluntary busing which will be paid for by the district if parents wish to send children to schools outside their normal attendance area.

Appears In Court

Richard Sheldon knowles, 18, of San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Superior Court on a charge of stealing a car June 28 in Stinson Beach and ordered to appear Aug. 11 to plead to the charge.

Parallel Parking Big Novato Item

Grant Avenue, west of Highway 101 in Novato may have only parallel parking in the future, according to Clifford Temps, public works director.

Last week, the Novato City Council awarded a contract to resurface 4.5 miles of city streets, among them, Grant Avenue from First to Seventh streets.

"When we remark the parking on the street, we would like to make it all uniform with parallel parking," Temps said.

At present, there is angle parking on the south side of Grant from Second to Fifth Street, and one-half block on the north side of Grant, west of Fifth, while the rest of the street has parallel parking.

Temps estimated the 83 angled parking spaces would provide 56 for parallel parking, a loss of 27 spaces.

By eliminating the angle parking, the street's travel lane would be widened enough to allow the creation of left turn lanes which would speed up the flow of traffic on the street, Temps said.

Temps had called a meeting for 8 p.m., Aug. 7 at the Novato Community House to explain it to the merchants.

Library Receives Scientific Journals

The Sonoma State College Library has received more than 275 volumes of scientific journals, according to librarian A.S. Pickett.

The librarian said the journals were a gift of a Nobel Prize winner at the University of California at Berkeley who remains anonymous.

Policeman Held In Wife-Beating

A San Francisco police officer was arrested in Petaluma last night on suspicion of assaulting his wife.

Police arrested John J. Cannon, 43, for allegedly beating his wife, Elizabeth, 37. Police said they were called at 9 p.m. to the Cannon home at 1169 Lombardi Street and found Mrs. Cannon handcuffed in the front yard and being struck by her husband. Mrs. Cannon was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts and scrapes of the face and wrists.

Cannon was held on $625 bail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Sculptor Earns Advanced Art Degree

'A SENTINEL' is an example of the body of work which Mrs. Harry Hofmann presented in the one-man show required for the M.A. degree in sculpture at San Francisco State College. The woman sculptor works in a studio adjacent to the Hofmann family home on the Strawberry Lagoon. The native birds which fly in and out of her unfinished studio often provide her with inspiration for studies of the ambiguity of space. (Independent-Journal photo by Roger Bockrath)

By BETTY FROST

"Art is a very personal kind of journey," said sculptor Ruth Hofmann in her Strawberry studio.

"In art you are dealing with things that have been around for centuries and to this material you bring your own awareness. It can be an occupation or a passion," she continued.

A relative newcomer to Marin County Mrs. Hofmann moved here four years ago when her husband, Harry Hofmann, a naval architect for the Standard Oil Company, was transferred to San Francisco from New York City. Accompanying them were the three Hofmann children, Peter, now 22, and twins, Catherine and Thomas, 20.

The move interrupted 15 years of activity in art for Ruth. She had studied and taught ceramics and sculpture, produced ceramics to order for decorators, and maintained a sculpture studio in New York City. Adjacent to the family home at Babylon, N. Y., she had a workshop.

THROUGH WHAT she calls "high powered decorators" in the New York area she had assignments to create such items as room dividers, lamps and planters for banks, a ship, a hotel, and private homes.

Of these busy years of juggling household responsibilities and an active career, she says, "If you want to work, you manage. I was a better mother because I wasn't home all the while. I always had my studio near my home, so I was available if the children needed me." She feels that her decision was a personal one and adds, "Some women need to work, others are completely involved with their families."

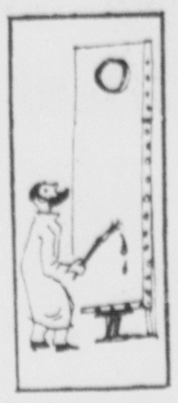
But, for a woman to undertake a demanding career, "an understanding husband is the first prerequisite. You can't ever have any conflict. You have to decide that in the beginning. My husband and family always came first, my work, second."

After her tough schedule, she suddenly found she had no more contract deadlines to meet, no more students, a complete break in the accustomed routine.

"The move west gave me an opportunity to reassess. I decided that going back to school would put me back in touch, and give me a chance to discover new things in the art world," Ruth said.

She enrolled in San Francisco State College. After two years of study and work, she was granted her M.A. in sculpture from the college in June. In her studio, surrounded by the body of work she had created for her master's thesis, she said that a knowledge and ability to use tools was invaluable. She was working in new materials, such as polyester resins, and learned to do expert welding.

"GOOD ART should ask questions," the sculptor said. The study of form and space preoccupied her in her research. "Sculpture covers more than objects," she explained, "art has broken down the boundary lines between painting, sculpture and movies. Working with this new point of view has been a very stimulating and rewarding experience."



She was granted her B.A. degree at the University of Michigan, with honors in literature. After her marriage she moved to England and studied and taught art there, before continuing her career in New York.

Her husband is interested in boats, and the family brought their fishing boat from the East. Since November they have been living on the Strawberry Lagoon, where their boat, now being overhauled, is usually docked. Ruth enjoys cruising and looks forward to more time on the water here.

Her sculpture has been exhibited in Europe and throughout the United States. Her work was chosen by the State Department for international shows. She has examples of her art at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the De Young Museum in San Francisco, the San Francisco Museum of Art, and the Richmond Art Center.

SINCE OBTAINING the advanced degree her friends are always asking Mrs. Hofmann, "Now what are you going to do?"

Enthusiastic about the idea of community art centers, she plans to assist the recently formed Sausalito Community Art Center, and will teach sculpture in the group's Bayside School headquarters in the fall.

What about Ruth Hofmann's own creative work — will she continue to produce?

"All good art teachers should be productive," she emphasized.

'WHAT IS REAL?' is the question sculptor Ruth Hofmann designed the black-lighted study in form and space to demand of the viewer. "Is reality the space you see or the space you know is there?" (Independent-Journal photo by Roger Bockrath)

Vernet Launches Tubular Fingertip Style In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Philippe Venet today launched a tubular fingertip cardigan silhouette as the Paris fall and winter fashion showings took over center stage after Rome and Madrid. All of the Paris openings will be crowded into one week.

The long cardigan look is shown with stovepipe pants, or softer slacks, or skinny pants. A sealing wax red outfit is one color from top to toe and is shown with a brief miniskirt and lacy matching tights.

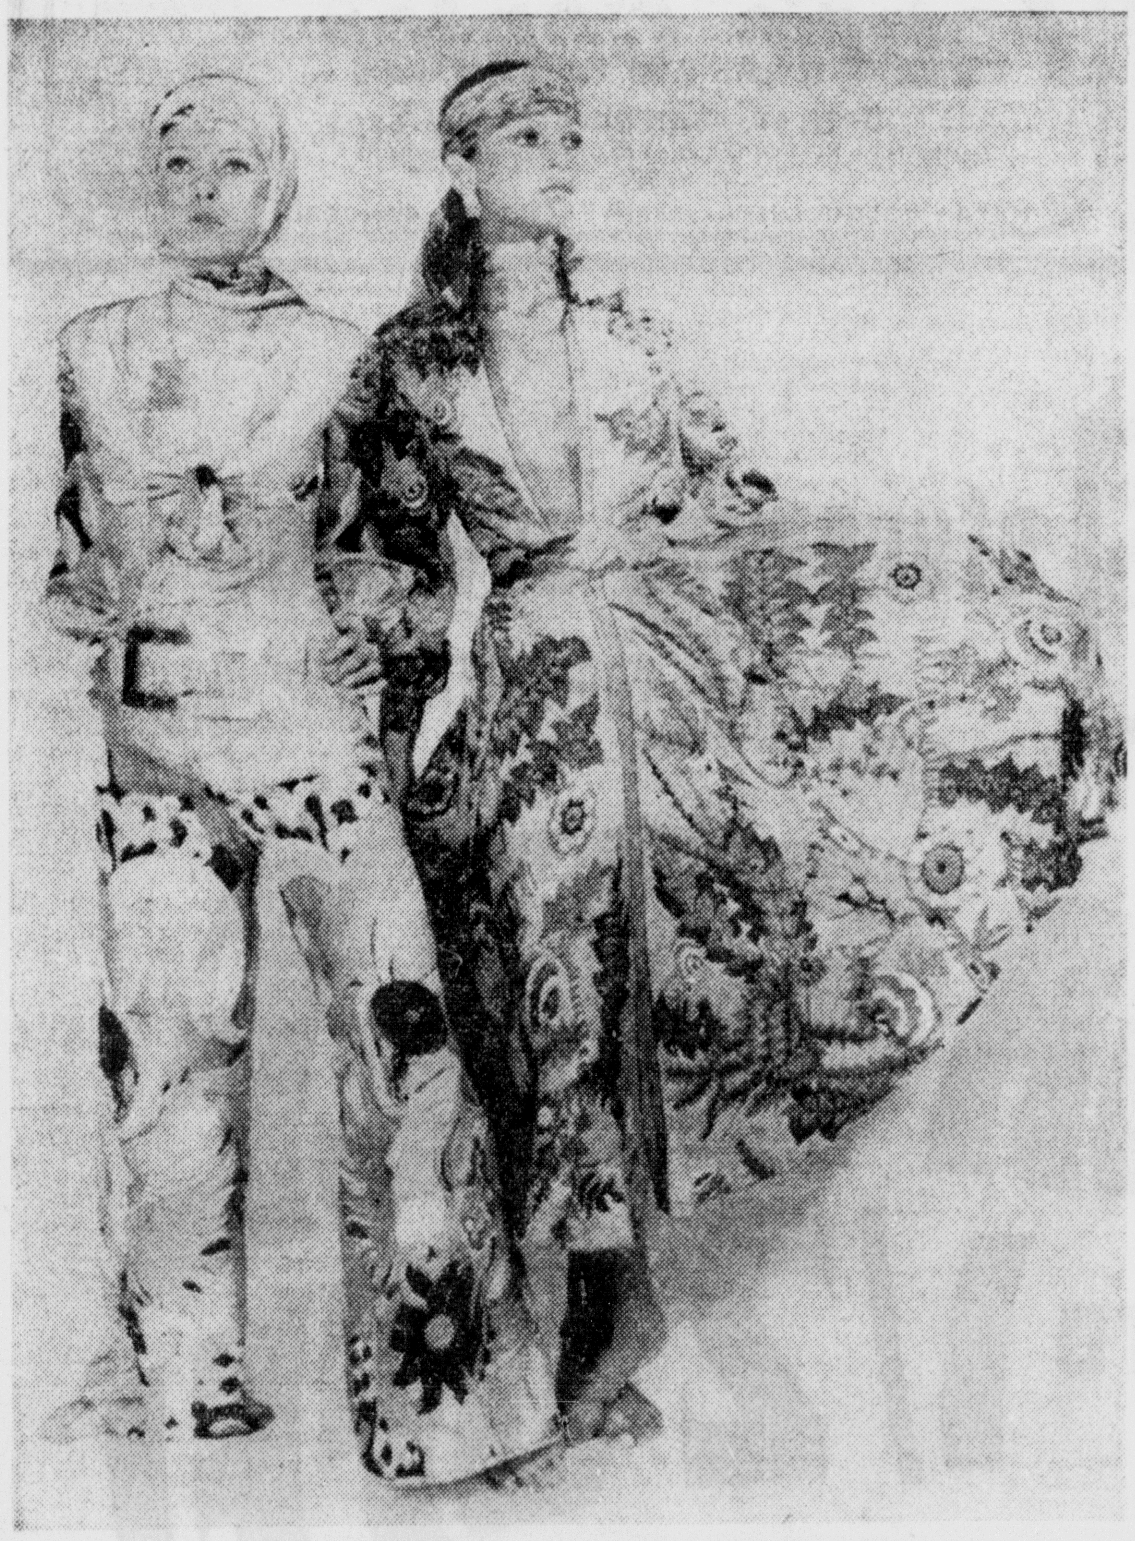
The miniskirts that often appear with slender belted tailored jackets have a low placed deep flounce, usually box pleated.

Venet's idea is varied for all occasions by fabrics and colors. A five-or six-inch band runs all the way around the cardigan hemline. He even does it in a new white and gray streaked mutation mink, banding it with black fox, in a maxilength.

Another idea from Venet came in coats which were extremely full and fluid with a bell effect. Some of the coats—either single or double-breasted—had an important back flare.

At the Molineux house, little suits had close to the body jackets detailed with flapped pockets, velvet touches at neckline and cuff, and silver, steel or gunmetal buttons. The silhouette remains supple and the striped-down look plays up the beauty of the flannel, nubbed tweed or muted plaid fabrics.

An iron gray suit has a lining of wide gray and white awning stripes matching the top of the dress. A conservative checked coat has a camel hair lining and a matching dress, worn with a camel jersey head scarf.



A BIT OF THE ORIENT

Parisian designer Louis Feraud presented two Oriental inspired outfits in printed silk in his 1969-70 collection. The pants outfit at left features a bare midriff, loose sleeves, and a large metal necklace. At right the long skirted dress is highlighted by a deep plunging neckline. The high fashion showings opened in Paris yesterday and continue through the week.

Research Team Finds The Evils Of Being A College Student

DEAR HELEN:

Are colleges and a college education really what they're cracked up to be? According to a Michigan State research team, maybe not.

The survey shows that only one of every four college students gets a degree; there are twice as many suicides among college students as among the general population; college students have 50 per cent more mental and emotional problems than the general public; there is very little or no correlation between grades in college and later success.

The research further reveals that if a student invested the equivalent of the cost of four college years, he would have larger lifetime earnings than if he attended college — that is, if he invested wisely.

"Therefore," the study concluded, "By attending college, a young person has a better chance of becoming a dropout, going crazy, killing himself, learning irrelevant things and losing money."

P.S. I found this gem in our Sacramento suburban newspaper, and figured its tongue-in-cheek philosophy had a good deal of bite. Right? — DWIGHT

DEAR DWIGHT:

Right. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My sister and I will be married in a double wedding. Helen, my future husband and I would like a chocolate wedding cake with white icing. Friends and family are aghast. They say a white cake is traditional. My sister will have the white cake. We want a dark one. What's wrong with that? — CHOCOLATE LOVERS

DEAR LOVERS:

By me — not a darn thing. I'd be very happy with dark cake at a wedding reception, as I'm partial to chocolate. But then I'm less an etiquette buff than I am a sniper at senseless traditions. Your family and friends may overrule me. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a girl friend who does not have a boy friend. I know a boy who likes her. He is a cute kid, but he would never speak to her on his own, being shy. How can I get them together, and should I? — CONFUSED

P.S. My mother saw this letter and she said, "You're just wasting a stamp. She won't print it." Please print it so I can show her.

DEAR CONFUSED:

First find out if the boy really wants an introduction, and then invite them both over to your house for cokes. Let's hope your girl friend likes him too — H.

P.S. You lost, Mom.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a boy friend who lives in California. He'll be back in a few days, and my mother won't let me date him, even though she liked him before he left. You see, when he first got to California he got busted for the possession of marijuana. He only tried it once. Good grief.

My Mom really lost her cool, and now she thinks he's a dope addict. How can I make her understand that he learned his lesson? — TIRED OF CRYING

DEAR TIRED:

Paranoid parent Number 11053. Your mother should realize that one joint doesn't make a doper any more than one drink creates an alcoholic. Your boy friend paid for breaking the law. He shouldn't be tired twice for the same crime. — H.

How To Digest Your Next Trip

Traveling, whether for vacation or business, often puts a strain on the digestive system. New foods, odd hours and anxieties about unfamiliar places can be distressing. Taking health precautions is good travel insurance.

Abroad and in the U.S., allow extra time to reach destinations. Allow for time changes, too. Try exotic foods in small quantities at first. Snack if meals are delayed. Don't drink large amounts of cold beverages.

Take medicines with you, especially for the all too-common stomach upsets. An antacid usually relieves heartburn. Ask your physician to recommend a reliable remedy for diarrhea.

Take special care about the water you drink, especially in remote areas.

Creative Spurt In Old Age

Aging, by itself, does not necessarily reduce creativity, a Washington, D.C., psychiatrist and gerontologist maintains. Instead, it may stimulate it, Dr. Robert N. Butler says.

The creative person, more aware than others of the uncertainities and brevity of human life, often feels more impelled to perform in ways that change his own life and others. This holds true, Dr. Butler says, "even in old age, perhaps even more so in old age."

Nursing Moms Need Iodine

The symptoms of hypothyroidism, commonly resulting from an underactive thyroid gland, may be a feeling of fatigue or laziness. This feeling, known to nursing mothers, may not be psychological but the result of nursing itself.

Mother's milk is rich in iodine. Iodine is essential for the thyroid gland to produce its hormone. When iodine is deficient, thyroid hormone production is reduced. The indicated remedy: iodine in the new mother's diet, according to two Michigan State University physiologists writing in Today's Health magazine.

A WOULD-BE couturiere, Mrs. Arline Rininger became an automobile test designer instead. Here she stands atop one of two turnabout loops she created for each end of a straightaway at General Motors Milford, Mich., proving ground. The loops can safely handle cars at 100 miles per hour and permit a 2½ mile length of the straightaway to be used for high speed testing. (UPI Telephoto)

Martino-Bradley Vows Said

Janice Bradley became the bride of Phil Martino in a Saturday afternoon ceremony at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Mill Valley. A reception at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Bradley of San Rafael are the bride's parents, and she is the sister of Phil, Patrick and Richard Bradley.

Sally Morehouse of Berkeley was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mary Mills of San Rafael, Susan Cichy of Larkspur and the bridegroom's sister, Margie Martino.

Best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Ora Martino of San Rafael, was John Kowski of Sausalito. Ken Johnston and Steve Berringer, both of San Rafael, ushered guests to their seats.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and attended College of Marin. She is employed in the Circulation Department of the Independent Journal. Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Bradley of San Rafael and Mrs. Mary Tenconi of Mill Valley are her grandparents.

Also a graduate of San Rafael High School, Phil attends College of Marin. He is employed at the Cottage Book Shop in San Rafael. Mrs. Mary Robbins of Sausalito is the bridegroom's grandmother.

The couple will live in Fairfax when they return from a wedding trip to Mendocino County.

Instead Of Fashions She Designs Test Roads For Auto Performance

By DAVID W. CHUTE

HIGHLAND, Mich. (UPI)—Mrs. Arline Rininger wanted to be a fashion designer, but instead she designs roads.

Some of them are among the finest roads in the country, and some are among the worst. In both cases it's intentional, for car testing purposes.

Mrs. Rininger works at the General Motors Proving Ground in Milford, Mich., a far cry from her Rhode Island girlhood when she hoped fashion would be her field.

Her talent with a different kind of figures led her to become a mathematics major at Pembroke College, the women's branch of Brown University in Providence, R.I. Upon graduation she was hired by GM to work on their proving grounds recording test data on military vehicles being developed for the Army during World War II.

MRS. RININGER recalls that she arrived in Michigan before her baggage did, and she spent the first week on the job climbing in and out of tanks in high heeled shoes and fur coats.

She was doing drafting work on vehicular designs after the war ended, when one day her boss dropped a three-inch thick volume on her desk. It was an intellectual exercise by Robert McNeal, of GM's technical data department, on something called "Cornu's Spiral," full of fundamental equations on requirements for building a high speed car track.

Mrs. Rininger spent two months figuring out "Cornu's Spiral" and filling in the intermediate steps not included in the original treatise.

Her next assignment was to put "Cornu's Spiral" formulas to work in helping design GM's circular test track near Mesa, Ariz., to be used for high speed tire tests. She did, designing a track with "neutral" banks that would allow a car traveling 100 miles per hour to navigate the track with no "steering" necessary. It was the first such track in the world.

SHE WENT ON to design other test tracks with a variety of turns for testing cars under various conditions, including a two-and-a-half mile highway at Milford with elevated turnaround loops at either end for high severity testing.

She also designed a curving turn into the crest of a road at the proving grounds to test the power of automobiles to accelerate uphill. Cars can go into the turn safely at 90 miles an hour.

ASIDE FROM test roads, she also set up the procedure and mathematical tables for calculating the banks of the Daytona International Speedway in Florida. Other race tracks, including the new one in the Irish Hills of Michigan, have been built with the tables she developed.

One of her most unusual assignments was to build a road with all the wrong bankings. She created a four-mile nightmare of incorrectly canted curves, chatter bumps, potholes and a hundred other hazards found on rural highways. It's use was to test the handling qualities of cars under the worst possible conditions.

The GM proving ground also has another Rininger-designed test road—a four-and-a-half mile closed circuit four-lane "highway." Each lane is designed for different speeds up to 85 miles per hour. A driver in any lane, if maintaining that lane's speed, can travel completely around the loop without once having to turn the wheel.

MRS. RININGER'S roads must be designed on paper before being poured in concrete. Asked if she worried whether they would perform properly, she said: "During the construction period I have had some qualms, but I knew, mathematically, that it had to work and it did."

Off the track, Mrs. Rininger has another commercial interest—the successful gift store in Highland, Mich., that she and her husband, Jack own. He operates the store. Mrs. Rininger, as mathematician, handles the income tax reports.

A Warning To Husbands

LONDON (WMNS) — The Gaslight Treatment really exists.

Two British doctors have described two almost-successful plots to get rid of unwanted husbands by confining them to mental hospitals.

In one case, a wife's attempt to convince doctors that her husband was irrationally violent was foiled when her lover was overheared describing their plot in a local bar.

In the other case, the wife insisted that her husband, a pubkeeper, was a dangerous alcoholic and succeeded in having him confined to the alcoholic unit of a psychiatric hospital. Again, a lucky coincidence brought to the doctor's attention the wife's boast to a relative that she had fooled the doctors, got rid of her husband and planned to take over his pub.

The moral is that doctors should beware of accepting a relative's unsubstantiated accusations.

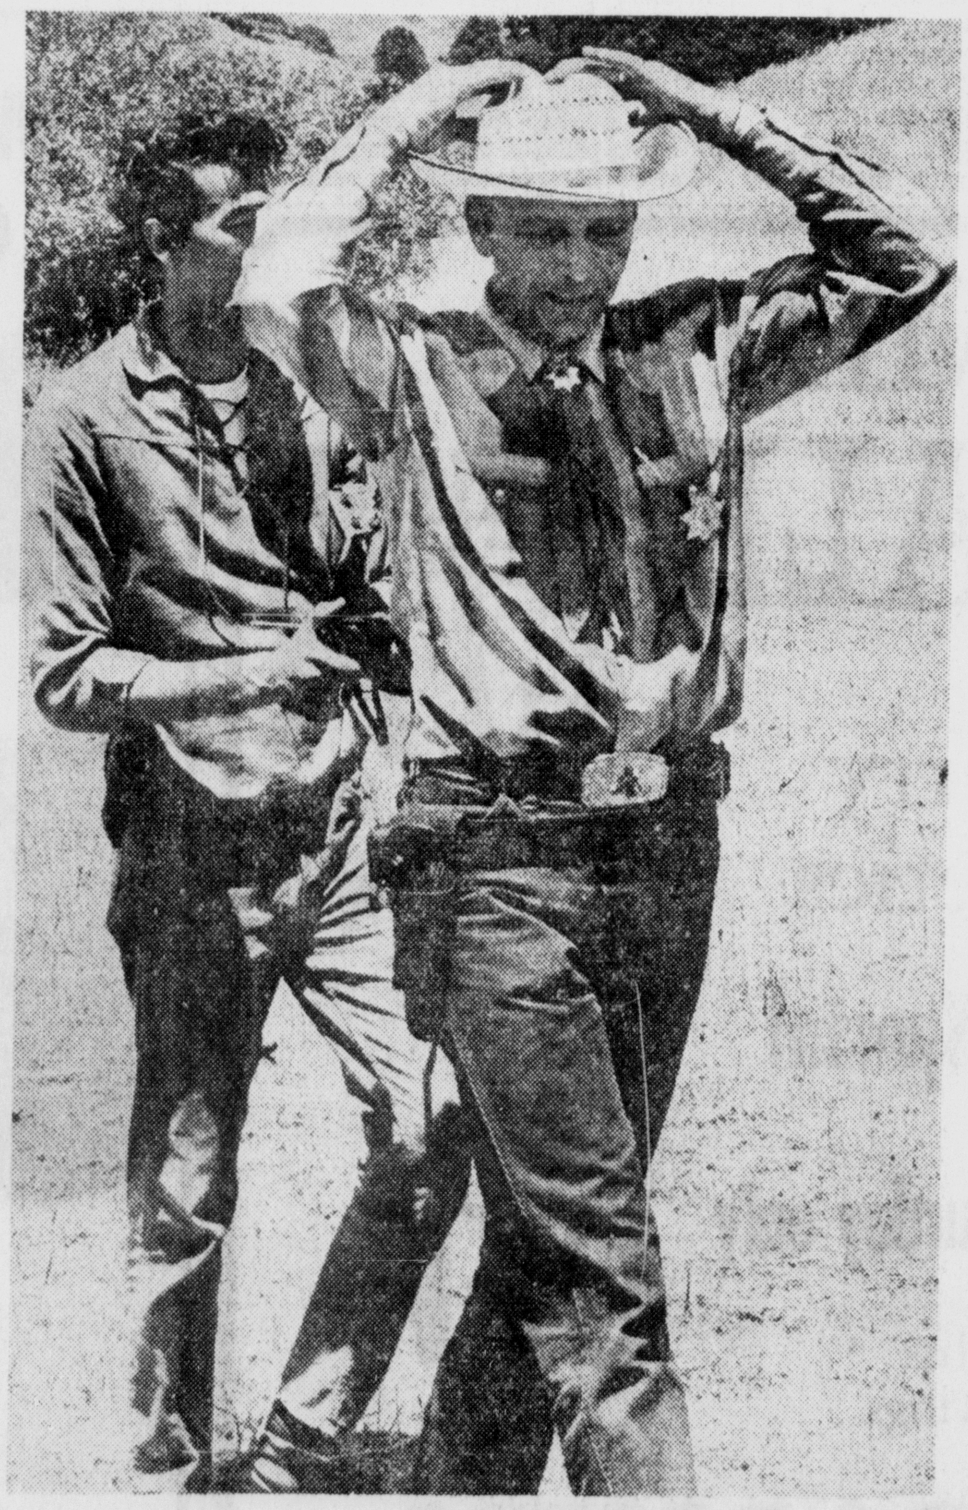
NOW HEAR THIS, COWBOYS—Sgt. George Ruess, sheriff's department training officer, tells members of the sheriff's posse that six armed and dangerous suspected narcotics peddlers—played by other deputies—are hiding in the steep hills east of Nicasio. The valley was sealed off for the recent simulated manhunt so the make-believe desperados couldn't escape.

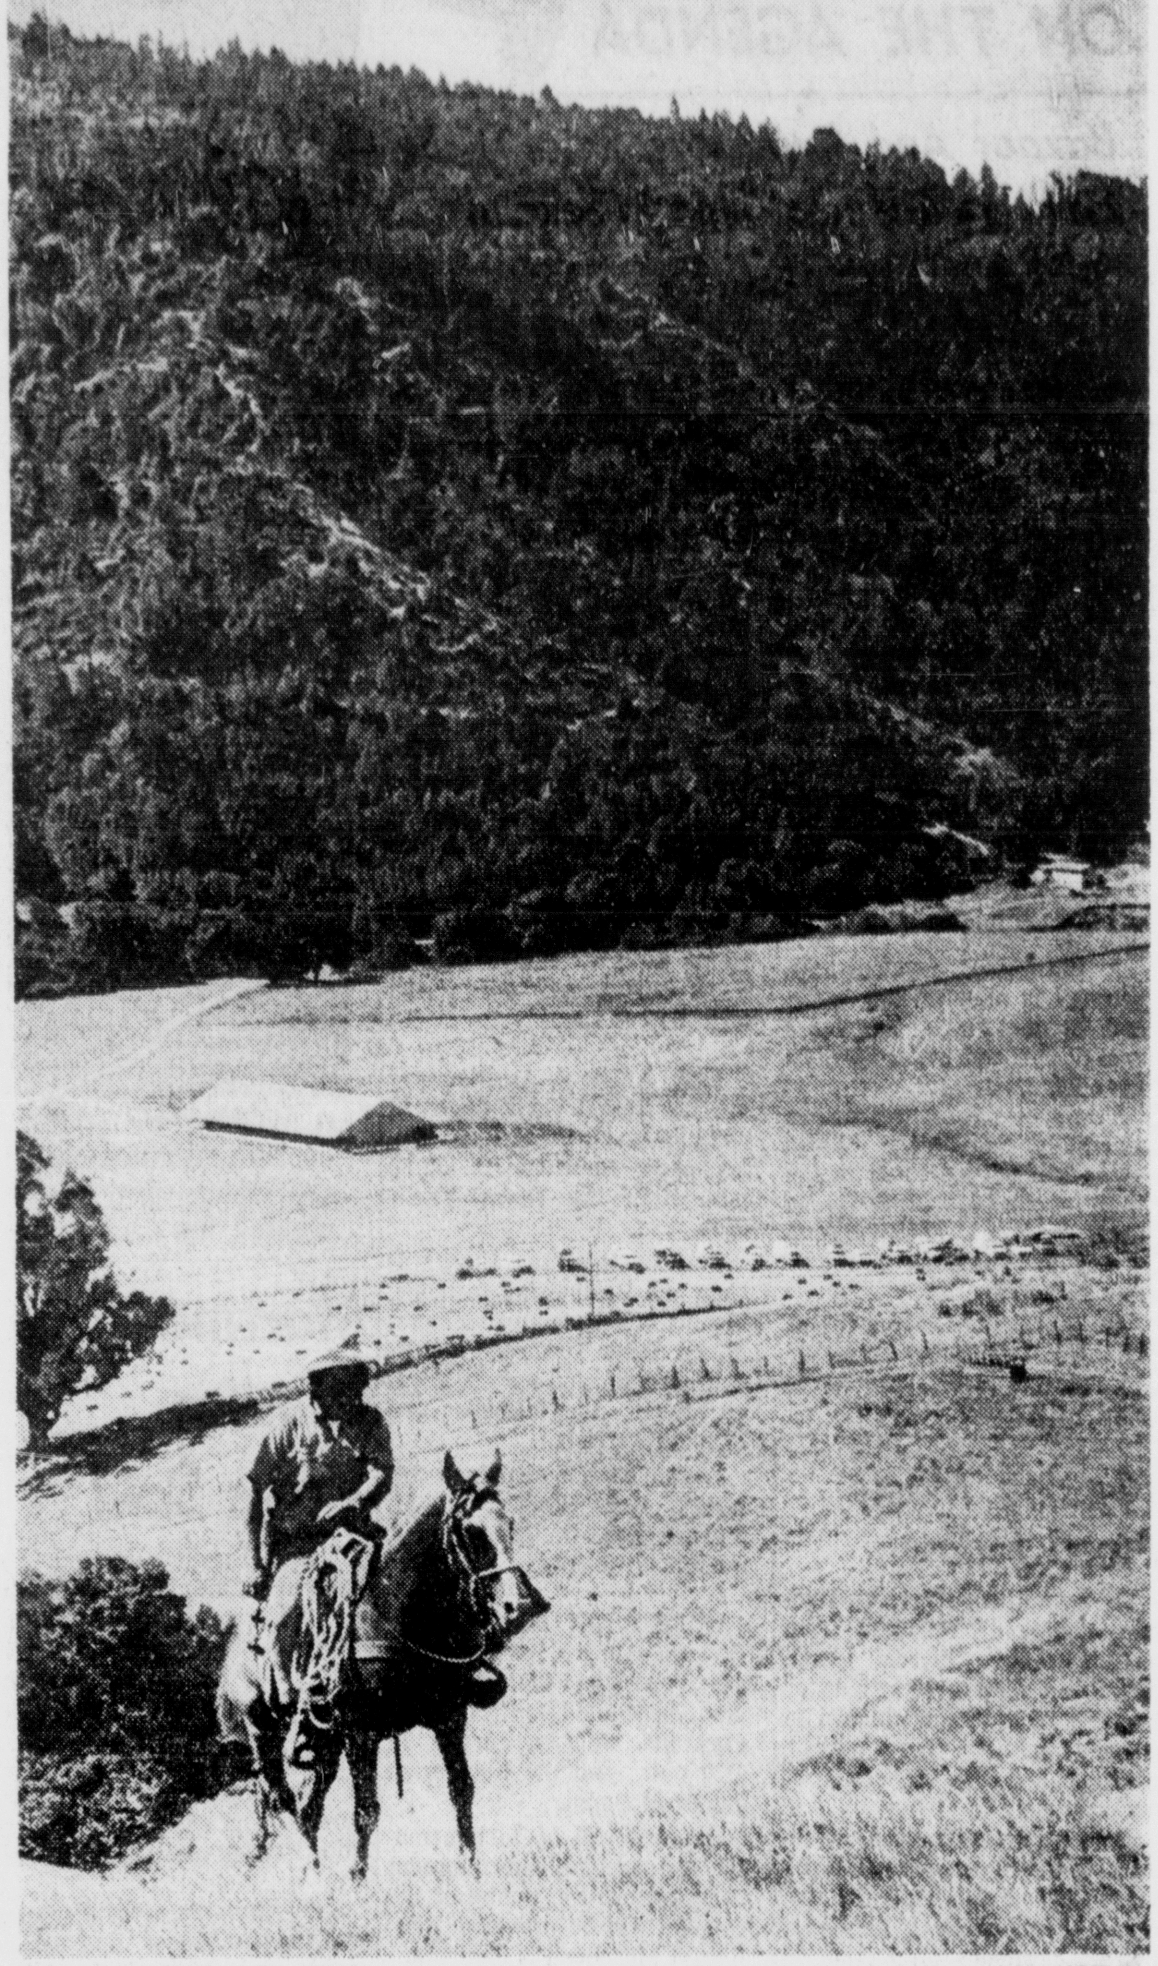
The 'Bad Guys' Don't Escape

A BASHFUL DESPERADO—The same way real bad guys do, fugitive Hilary Lannen tries to shield his face from the camera as he is marched down the hill by deputy "Tex" Chillson. Lannen managed to shoot four possemen before his capture.

ESCAPE FOILED—Slippery Hilary Lannen is handcuffed by posseman Herman Deitch after Lannen almost bluffed his way into an escape. He was almost clear of the exercise area when Deitch wouldn't buy his story of being released, a suspicion that won Deitch points from exercise umpires.



TABLES TURNED—Posseman Bernard Todman—you can tell he's a good guy because he wears a white hat—was temporarily out of action when this unidentified fugitive got the drop on him. Todman, however, was clever enough to divert his captor's attention and other deputies shot the make-believe criminal.



THE SEARCH IS ON — Mounted posseman Carl Mead heads up from the valley floor on the Rogers Ranch near Nicasio in search of the fugitives. Two planes from the sheriff's air patrol and a two-way radio network aided in the search.

New Legislation On Handguns Is Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Presidential commission has recommended a state-federal attack on gun ownership that could take as many as 21 million handguns away from persons who presently own them.

The suggestion was made yesterday by the President's Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, a panel established to investigate the background of assassinations and urban violence.

The commission recommended that states be given four years to pass laws deciding which of their citizens should be allowed to possess handguns. At the end of four years, a federal law would take over requiring all pistol owners not so protected by state laws to surrender their arms, for compensation.

There are an estimated 24 million handguns —such as revolvers and automatic pistols —owned by Americans, the commission said. The combined state-federal attack could take 90 per cent of those out of circulation, the panel said. Owners would be compensated at an average of $20 per gun, about a half-billion dollars total.

Police, security guards, small businessmen in high crime areas and those with a "special need for self-protection" would be allowed to keep handguns. The commission estimated that most of the handguns now possessed by private citizens are kept for household protection.

The panel specifically recommended, however, that household protection would not constitute a sufficient cause for pistol ownership under the federal statute. Long guns, such as rifles and shotguns, would also be affected in that owners would be required to have an identification card and anyone under the age of 18, as well as certain types of criminals or others ajudicated as incompetent, would be barred from ownership.

The National Rifle Association attacked the proposal as "amounting to gradual strangulation of private handgun ownership. Only those who can show 'their need' would be permitted to retain handguns, and we know from localized experience in New York City and elsewhere that this means precious few."

It added that there were "some millions of respectable, law-abiding Americans" who use handguns for sport and recreation purposes.

Plumbing Union Returns To Work

MARTINA (AP) — About 450 Contra Costa County plumbers were back at their jobs yesterday after settlement of a strike that began July 1.

The agreement gives them wage and fringe benefit increases totaling $2.55 an hour, spread over a three-year contract.

Before the strike against the 60-member Plumbing, Heating and Piping Employers Council of Northern California, plumbers had been earning $8.65 an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

The strike at first halted almost all construction, but some smaller firms signed interim agreements with the union.

Plea Date Set

Edward Thomas Chorovsky, 23, of San Francisco, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Superior Court on charges of possessing marijuana and benzedrine June 15 on Highway 101 near Ignacio. He was ordered to appear Aug. 11 for entry of plea and setting of a trial date.

Escaped Convict Kidnaps Woman

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP)—A convict at the Colorado Penitentiary who escaped last night took a farm woman as a hostage today and forced her to go with him in her husband's automobile.

Officers said the prisoner, David O'Niel, 28, from Denver, appeared about 7 a.m. at the home of Ludwig Ferriancek on a farm five miles south of Canon City.

He took a .22-caliber rifle belonging to the farmer, then forced the man's wife, Ruth, to get into the family car. Ferriancek told officers the car left in the direction of Canon City.

'No Contract'

Westbay Community Associates, in its denial yesterday that it had pushed a weak bill to extend the life of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, said it had "no contact" with the author of the bill branded weak by conservationists, Sen. John A. Nejedly. The Independent-Journal, because of a typographical error, incorrectly reported that Westbay said it had "no contract" with Nejedly.

Frank Loesser, 59, Succumbs To Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Frank Loesser, who gave America 1,500 songs to sing, died yesterday of lung cancer. His body will be cremated today and the ashes scattered over the Atlantic Ocean.

There will be no funeral service. "He didn't believe in things like that," a family spokesman said.

Loesser, 59, who wrote the Broadway shows, "Guys and Dolls," "Where's Charley," "Most Happy Fella," and the Pulitzer Prize winning "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," was admitted to Mount Sinai Hospital four weeks ago.

Te was working on a new song or show at the time, a family spokesman said. "He was always working."

Loesser's songs included "Once In Love With Amy," which dancer Ray Bolger used almost as a signature, "Baby It's Cold Outside," which won the Academy Award in 1949, and "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," which he wrote as a private in World War II and it became an instant hit.

"Most Happy Fella" was a folk opera but Loesser shunned the word opera and billed it simply as a "musical."

Loesser, dark, suave and terse with his words in conversation, was born in New York City in 1910 to a family of musical highbrows whose members felt, "Frank writes nice songs but they aren't music."

After flunking out of the City College of New York at age 15 because he failed everything but English and gym, Loesser went to work as a newspaper reporter and in the depression years held a variety jobs, including screwing caps on bottles of insecticides.

He began writing songs in 1931 and his first published song was "In Love With a Memory of You." It was not a success but in 1937 he wrote "Moon of Manakoora" for the movie "The Hurricane" which became a hit and although Loesser himself "sang like an auctioneer" and never studied music, his career became a 30-year almost unbroken string of successes.

Loesser's chief collaborators during his career were Hoagy Carmichael, Jimmy McHugh, Burton Lane, Jule Styne, Arthur Schwartz, and Abe Burrows, who wrote the book for "How to Succeed." But in many cases, Loesser wrote both the words and music for his songs.

Loesser was described by friends as a "complicated man," full of nervous energy. He slept four hours a night and smoked three packs of cigarettes a day.

Lagunitas School Pay Undecided

The Lagunitas School District board last night again postponed action on salary adjustments because of inadequate information about the amount of funds available for the fall semester.

Superintendent Marshall J. McCunniff reported the board has offered contracts this year based on last year's salary schedule with the understanding that salaries would be adjusted if sufficient funds from Sacramento are available.

McCuniff also said the board will decide later whether it can afford one or two kindergarten teachers and teachers for the handicapped. A budget hearing is scheduled for Monday.

The Lagunitas School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Awarded contracts to the Thornton Paving Co. of San Rafael for $2,233 to pave the playground area at San Geronimo Elementary School and $1,563 for repairing the driveway entrance at Lagunitas Elementary School.

ENROLLMENT — Reported that first term summer school enrollment was 76 for Lagunitas District youngsters at the Oak Manor School in Fairfax.

LANDSCAPING — Reported that landscaping work at the new San Geronimo School is underway and summer maintenance work is progressing.

GI Charged In Slaying Of Singer

SAIGON (UPI) — An American soldier was charged today with the "premeditated murder" of Australian singer Catherine Anne Warnes, shot on the night of July 20 while entertaining American Marines.

An official military report said Sgt. James Killen was charged today and that there was "strong circumstantial evidence which linked Killen to the proven murder weapon, a .22 - caliber weapon equipped with a silencer."

The report also said "there is no motive established for the murder at this time." However reliable civilian sources in Da Nang and Saigon said they understood the fatal bullet was meant for one of the other entertainers on stage who had an argument with a GI before the show.

Miss Warnes was singing her last song with the whole troupe on stage at a non-commissioned officers club at about 9:30 p.m. on the night of the July 20 when she was shot. She fell to the floor and was dead on arrival at a nearby American military hospital.

Pedestrian Dies; Victim Of Hit-Run

An elderly Cotati pedestrian was struck and killed by a hit-and-run driver at 7:30 p.m. yesterday on Old Redwood Highway near Minnesota Avenue, two miles south of Cotati.

Jack Jackson, 81 of 118 Highland Avenue, was pronounced dead on arrival at Petaluma General Hospital.

The California Highway Patrol said that Jackson was walking north on the south shoulder of the road when a speeding southbound car struck him. Police said the car spun around the fled north.

Two witnesses in a nearby home described the car as a white 1959 Chevrolet driven by a dark-haired young man who was alone. The car was damaged in the center of the hood.

Jackson is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Betty Lesh of Cotati, and a son, Sam Jackson of Houston, Tex.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Abbey of the Chimes, Vallejo.

The Pacific Ocean, which covers one-third of the globe, is so huge that it could swallow the seven continents.

Strawberry Cove Apartments Approved

A master plan for 112 marina apartment units in Strawberry Cove on seven acres owned by Leonard B. Fleischman of Belvedere won the approval of the Marin County Planning Commission by 4 to 1 vote yesterday.

Acting Chairman High Dougherty cast the lone dissenting vote. He and Commissioner Margaret Azevedo wanted at least a 30-foot strip in the center of the elongated lot dedicated for public access from Seminary Drive into the waters of the Cove.

Commissioner Niels Schultz Jr. moved to delete that 30-foot dedication on grounds that public access would be provided by another condition imposed — a 400-foot strip along the waterfront on Seminary Drive to be dedicated for public access.

Another condition attached to the approval is that Fleischman will install a conduit to carry into the bay the drainage waters that run between his property and De Silva Island.

Architect Allan Steinau and attorney Albert Bianchi, representing Fleischman, presented plans for 12 studio apartments, 80 one-bedroom units, and 20 two-bedroom units to be built in clusters on the bay side of Seminary Drive east of Ricardo Road. About half the waterfront will be left open for visual view of the bay.

Chairman Michael Praszker and Commissioner Walter F. Freitas were absent.

The County Planning Commission Also:

TARRANT APARTMENT — Continued until Aug. 11 a hearing on P. J. Tarrant's plan to build a 48-unit apartment at North San Pedro Road and La Brea Way, Santa Venetia. Tarrant asked for the contiiuance.

RICHARDSON BAY — Continued until 10 a.m. Aug. 11 the hearing on a specific development plan for Richardson Bay. Property owners criticized as too restrictive the specific plan which calls for a complicated formula to decide the ratio of open water to developed areas.

PRESERVE — Granted agricultural preserve status to 15 acres owned by Marco M. Porobich at the corner of Gage Lane and Indian Valley Road, Novato.

WEST MARIN ZONE — Asked the planning director to notify all landowners in West Marin that the planning commission intends to rezone agricultural land, tying in the allowable density to the county slope policy.

Closed Session

There will be a closed meeting of the fire commission on Aug. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the city manager's conference room to hear charges brought against an employee, according to Thomas Goodale, administrative assistant.

A Conditional Nod For Marinview Unit

Marinview Unit 2, a 41-lot subdivision on the west side of Tennessee Valley Road near Bell Lane, won a conditional go-ahead from the Marin County Planning Commission by 5 to 0 vote yesterday.

(Another county planning commission story, page 19)

Planner Raymond Smith recommended a lower density because the 16 acres is hilly, but the planning commissioners approved a density of 2.5 units per acre.

However, other conditions are still subject to a review by a one-man committee (Niels Schultz Jr.) appointed by acting Chairman Hugh Dougherty. These include the proposed pavement width of 22 feet, grades up to 18 per cent, and location of sidewalks.

Allan-Marin Company, headed by Allen Allan of Los Angeles, will build 41 single family homes, with access from Bell Lane. Minimum lot size will be 7,500 square feet.

Leslie Smith of Muir Beach, consultant on the project, and engineer Kenneth A. Frost of Belvedere presented plans which show a loop road, with 22 feet of paving and two feet of shoulder on each side to serve the 41 lots.

Residents in the area, including a spokesman for the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club, backed the proposal, calling the plan "excellent in design."

Allan-Marin Company also owns more than 300 additional acres in the area. The commissioners set Aug. 25 as the date for hearing to consider master planning the rest of the property.

Plead Innocent

Two cousins, Robert B. Deem, 26, and Richard B. Deem, 21, both of Santa Venetia, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burgling Painters Union hall in San Rafael June 29. Jury trial was set for the week of Sept. 15.

U.S., Latins To Confer On Fishing Boats

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—The United States and three Latin American nations meet tomorrow in an effort to halt the capture of North American fishing boats in disputed territorial waters off the west coast of South America.

The United States, which claims a 12-mile limit for fishing, will confer jointly with Chile, Ecuador and Peru, which recognize a 200-mile offshore jurisdiction. The latter two nations have seized and fined more than 60 U.S. fishing boats since 1953.

The three South American nations agreed to participate in the conference—which the United States has been seeking for two years—on condition that their claim to the 200-mile limit would not be discussed.

Although the agenda has not yet been set, diplomatic sources suggested today the delegates would discuss regulation of fishing and licensing procedures that would prevent further seizures of U.S. craft.

Assault Count Against Youth Is Dismissed

A charge of assault was dismissed against one of three youths yesterday in Marin Municipal Court after a preliminary hearing, and Judge Peter Allen Smith said he will rule Monday on the other two defendants.

The charge was dismissed against James McKenna, 18, of Kent Woodlands. Other defendants are Terrance R. Rilla, 18, of Kentfield, and Robert L. Davis, 20, of Kentfield.

The three were accused of beating two youths July 19 in Corte Madera.

McKenna was represented by private counsel but Rilla had the public defender's office. Judge Smith asked for an inquiry Wednesday to learn why their families had not hired an attorney for McKenna and Rilla.

Salary Hikes For Tiburon Employees Win Split Vote

By ANNE BARDWELL

Salary increases for Tiburon city employees, including City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose, were approved last night by the Tibu- 3-1 with Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood dissenting and Councilman Thomas E. Drohan absent.

Rose's new salary was set at $1,550 a month, an increase of $125 over the objections of Miss Ellinwood who said Rose's "ability to expand his contribution to the administration of the city has reached its limit."

Salary hikes for other city employees ranged from nothing to 12.5 per cent with the highest increase given to public works department maintenance men.

Percentage increases for individual employees were not indicated on the salary schedule presented to the council. The schedule only listed range and step proposed for each employee without comparison to salaries paid last year.

Following the meeting, city staff was unable to indicate general percentage increases except in a broad range of up to 12.5 per cent. Staff representatives also were unable to indicate who had not been given raises. Nor was the staff able to say what the increases would cost the city.

Miss Ellinwood supported an even greater increase in maintenance men salaries noting that even with the 12.5 per cent increase, the Tiburon employees were starting at a lower salary than offered by comparable cities.

Of Rose, she said his duties had "decreased with time" and was itemizing examples of this when she was ruled out of order by Mayor Branwell D. Fanning.

Pounding the gavel loudly, Fanning sternly lectured Miss Ellinwood on the Ralph M. Brown Act which allows public bodies to meet in closed session to duscuss charges brought against an employee.

"I refuse to have statements made for or against an employee except in executive session," Fanning said. "We are not here to hear your recommendations for the management of the city."

Before being ruled out of order, Miss Ellinwood said increased job responsibility of the assistant to the city manager and more work performed by the council's own subcommittees had contributed to the "diminished responsibility" she had mentioned earlier.

In particular, she said, the council has asked for job descriptions for all city employees in July, 1968, and had receiced them only last Friday, one year later.

Other councilmen supported the salary increase after Councilman William R. Bremer said Rose should receive at least $150 a month raise.

Bremer said as mayor last year had asked Rose not to take a raise because of the current status of city finances and Rose's willingness to do so "shows us the kind of man that money wasn't everything from his point of view . . . We'll lose him if we don't pay him more this year."

Fanning noted the $125 raise was a compromise since Drohan had also asked that Rose receive a larger increase.

Miss Ellinwood also objected to a change of job title for Russell L. Melquist from assistant to the city manager to assistant city manager, noting that the post had begun as a temporary six-month internship in 1966 and had grown to a permanent position without council authorization.

She also opposed salary increases for the deputy and agenda clerks on the basis the salaries are excessive for the job functions but did ask consideration of increases for the city attorney and minute clerk.

The council took no action on any of her suggestions.

New Deputy Counsel Is Appointed

San Rafael attorney George J. Silvestri, 27, will join the county counsel's staff as deputy next week at $959 per month.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who announced the appointment, said Silvestri was selected from a field of 40 applicants for the position. This was the first opening in the office of county counsel in four years.

Maloney now has an assistant and three deputies including Silvestri.

Silvestri was born in San Francisco but has lived most of his life in Marin County. He graduated from St. Mary's College and Hastings College of Law.

He lives at 190 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, with his wife, Valerie, and three children.

Tiburon Begins New Bid On Rail Property

The first step in what appears will be a lengthy legal battle to obtain city ownership of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way along Richardson Bay for a bicycle and hiking trail was authorized last night by the Tiburon City Council.

The council agreed to retain attorney Richard A. Clarke of San Rafael, a condemnation expert, to represent the city in negotiations with the railroad.

The action was authorized after Wayne E. Moody, planning director, said there was no way 36 single family homes could be constructed on the right-of-way which runs from San Rafael Avenue to the north city limits.

This now leaves the way open for us to proceed with condemnation, which, I believe, is the next step for the city," Councilman William R. Bremer said.

In June, railroad representatives offered to sell the strip of land for $458,000 based on an estimate of $10,000 for each of the 36 useable lots plus 45 cents a square foot for the remaining unusable land.

That offer, rejected by the council June 18, was again termed unreasonable last night by Bremer. He said the city should be prepared to pay up to $50,000, a figure he said he based on rough estimates and the sale last year of reversionary rights to the railroad for $35,000.

Bremer also asked that Clark be directed to obtain appraisals of the property "so we'll have a better idea of what we're talking about" and that the city staff be directed to apply for federal funds to aid in the purchase.

In the meantime, he said, he would continue to "keep the lines of communication open" to the railroad in case it decides to lower the asking price.

All of Bremer's requests were unanimously approved by the council. Councilman Thomas E. Drohan was absent.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

REZONING — Introduced ordinances to rezone portions of lots at 2326 Mar East Street, owned by John C. McGuire, and 2344 Mar East Street, owned by Victor C. Banks, from public to duplex zones.

SETBACKS — Approved a variance granting 11 and 12 foot sideyard setbacks for lot 45 in Reedland Woods Unit No. 1, requested by Lawrence C. Olin, and referred to committee for study other setback variances also requested by Olin.

CONSTRUCTION — Adopted uniform construction tandards to bring the city in line with the County of Marin.

AYALA DAY — Allocated $1,400 for Ayala Day festivities scheduled for Sept. 6.

APPOINTMENT — Approved Fanning's appointment of Albert Sennett to a full term on the commission. Sennett had been appointed to fill a vacancy earlier this year.

CONTINUANCES — Continued consideration of the proposed city budget for fiscal 1969-70, a variance denial appeal by Lawrence H. Stotter for 2244 Vistazo East Street, and application for a use permit renewal by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad for a parking lot in downtown Tiburon, to Aug. 11 because of the late hour.

Cycle Mishap In Home Yard

A 16-year-old Novato motorcyclist received facial and arm cuts and bruises at 9:10 a.m. today when his motorcycle overturned in a yard at 20 Washington Street, Novato, police reported.

The youth, Gary Towne of 171 San Andreas Drive, was greated at Novato General Hospital.

Police said Towne and a companion on another motorcycle, Daniel Williams, 17, of 14 Stasia Drive, Novato, rode through the yard of Robert Paine at 28 Washington Street, with Towne spilling. Williams' motorcycle broke off a tree and damaged a bush, police said.

Tam High District Salary Talks End

Teacher representatives and trustees of the Tamalpais High School District last night concluded special negotiations on a proposal by teachers to add a fifth scale to their salary schedule.

The trustees said they would announce their decision on the proposal late this afternoon. The district is the last in the county to finish salary negotiations with teachers.

After last night's 90-minute session at district offices at Redwood High School, indications were the board would turn down the proposal this year.

District officials estimated the additional scale, with raises ranging from 3.1 to 4.9 per cent over the top scale approved in June, would cost about $45,000. It would affect about 90-100 teachers and boost the top pay to $14,950.

William D. Wilkinson, chairman of the negotiating council of the Tamalpais District Teachers Association, would not speculate on what action the teachers might take if the proposal is rejected.

The atmosphere of the session, attended by about 25 teachers and other onlookers, was cordial and remarkably lacking in heavy strategic maneuvers.

Teacher representatives urged the board to adopt a new "E" scale for teachers with a Bachelor of Arts degree and 75 additional units of college credit. And they pushed for adoption of a policy that would give teachers unit credit for activities judged equivalent to college work, such as special seminars and workshops.

A 5 per cent increase for teachers, already approved by the trustees, would set the top salary at $14,500.

The A.B. plus 75 units proposal would offer "fewer difficulties" than other ways of hiking top pay, Wilkinson said.

He indicated teacher morale hinged on the trustees decision and said the salary talks were "symbolic" and "quite crucial" in the teachers relationship with the board.

At least two trustees indicated they would not support the new scale this year.

"I thought we agreed in closed session this was a matter for next year," said David D. Ring. In no sense of the word would Tamalpais district teachers be at the bottom of the list of Marin districts in regards to a pay increase this year if only the five per cent boost goes into effect, he added.

Trustee Gloria Melbostad told the teachers' negotiators: "Why should the board go one step further?" she said, "I have to be quite blunt . . . I think we are backing down publicly if we do go ahead with it (the new scale)."

Salary discussions were reopened in June at teachers' request after the board approved the 5 per cent hike and an additional 1 per cent in fringe benefits. Teachers had originally asked a 10 per cent across-the-board hike in the salary schedule plus fringe benefits.

Woman Dies From Fire In Kentfield

Fire that destroyed a Kentfield home last week claimed the life yesterday of Stella Panteleakos, 42, a Garden Grove, Orange County, woman who had been visiting there.

Miss Panteleakos died at 11:30 p.m. in the intensive care unit of Marin General Hospital, from burns that covered 70 per cent of her body.

She was trapped in a flaming bedroom of the 22 Stetson Avenue home when fire swept through the two story wood frame building July 23.

Miss Panteleakos, a cook with the King Manor Convalescent Home in Santa Ana, is curvived by a sister, Susan Phillips, also of Garden Grove.

She was born in Massachusettes and had lived in California for 11 years.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Tourism And Business Board Sets Meeting

The first meeting of the tourism and economic development sub-committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin will be held at 8 p.m. Aug. 7 in the Civic Center Administration Building.

The subcommittee is composed of 12 representatives of the business and professional community, three members of the planning council and four ex officio members. It will study ways of improving Marin's economic base with the help of a federal grant recently awarded to the county.

SALARY HIKES PLUS RESERVES

Rosy Outlook For Fairfax Budget

With a flick of its magic wand, Fairfax has come up with a budget containing a cushiony reserve, 7.5 per cent salary increases and an additional policeman — at little or no increase in the tax rate.

The proposed budget, with a similar reserve, 5 per cent salary hikes and no new employees, would have added 11 cents to the tax rate.

The city council, which had made no substantial changes in the budget in a series of study sessions, was surprised. "Every week we're in better shape," said Councilman Frank J. Egger with a note of incredulity.

The improved budget outlook is the result of overestimating expenditures, underestimating revenue and mathematical errors.

City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet had estimated the general fund balance at the end of the fiscal year at $148,966. The financial report for the fiscal year ending June 30 shows the balance at $170,941.

The council last night approved 7.5 per cent salary increases, 2.5 per cent more than Mrs. Lestanguet had recommended and 2.5 per cent less than employees had asked. There was no discussion.

The council also authorized hiring one additional police officer accompanied by a cut in the police department's request for overtime and vacation relief funds.

Working up to the action, the council unanimously approved a motion by Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet to defer hiring two new officers as requested by Police Chief James R. Orr.

Then, Egger moved to hire one extra officer but it died for lack of a second.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson moved to increase the overtime fund from Mrs. Lestanguet's recommended $11,000 to $14,000, maintaining it was unrealistic to budget less than the $12,500 spent this year. Orr had asked $16,530, claiming there is currently 1,171 hours of overtime on the books.

No one liked that motion either, so Egger made another, to hire another policeman and cut overtime to $9,000. Councilman Robert R. Souza amended the figure to $5,000 and the vote was unanimous.

"You've been talking about utilization of manpower," Fire Chief Charles Thornton said angrily. "I ask for a change of one of my men for utilization of manpower and get turned down," he declared. "I don't understand it."

(His reference to "utilization of manpower" was on Souza's repeated use of the phrase in the police discussion.)

Earlier in the meeting, the council had appointed Fireman George Hettema as a captain despite the recommendation of Thornton that Jean Lestanguet, husband of the city administrator, be named captain. Mrs. Wilson voted no.

Thornton maintained Hettema, trained as a fire prevention officer, should continue in that post, but with captain's rank and pay and Lestanguet should be the shift captain.

The council appointed Hettema because he had finished first on the examination for the post and because, councilmen said, four administrators man department.

Finishing up other budget items, the council agreed to spend $2,500 for implementation of park plans. The parks and recreation commission had asked for $5,000.

The council ended with about $405,000 in expenditures and $395,000 in receipts, with the difference to come from the $171,000 general fund.

The council started trying to figure out a tax rate but decided instead to think about it until the next regular meeting, 8 p.m. Aug. 11 in the Fairfax Women's Club.

The current tax rate is $1.74 per $100 assessed valuation.

In other business, the council hired Frank D. Trulove as a policeman at a starting salary of $693 a month.

Marin City Development To Be Aired

A special town meeting to take the pulse of Marin City residents on future development of the community will be held with commissioners of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

The special meeting was called earlier this month when angry Marin Citians opposed giving the Marin Development Co. (formerly the California Development Corp.) any more time to come up with development plans for Marin City.

The development company, which holds an exclusive contract with the redevelopment agency for developing Marin City, repeatedly has asked for delays. It has held the contract for more than six years without coming up with a firm plan for development.

At the redevelopment agency board meeting July 16, the company asked for another 30-day extension. Tomorrow night's town meeting was called after several residents demanded that Marin Development be declared in default of its contract and the future development of Marin City be opened up to other sources of financial help.

Service Station Expansion Passes

Expansion of a Shell service station at 5639 Paradise Drive was approved last night by the Corte Madera Board of Design, a spokesman reported.

Also approved was an application By Robert J. Dewitz to add a deck enclosure to his home at 144 Mariner Green Court.

Construction Worker Killed By Equipment

A 41-year-old heavy equipment operator working at the new Marin County Hall of Justice was crushed to death yesterday when the loader he was driving rolled over him.

Kenneth Lonzo King, 41, of 23 Carlson Avenue, San Anselmo, suffered multiple injuries to his head, left foot and right leg at 11:15 a.m. and died in the emergency room of Marin General Hospital at 12:35 p.m., the coroner's office reported.

A witness to the accident, Leslie Wider, maintenance superintendent, said he heard the loader come up the hill at the southwest corner of the Hall of Justice.

"A few minutes later, I heard the motor rev up to much higher than normal. I dashed out to the balcony and saw the loader going down the hill backwards," Wider said.

"About two-thirds of the way down, he tried to make a turn. The equipment rolled over him completely and landed right side up. His head and feet were crushed," Wider reported.

King was an operating engineer with Maggiora and Ghilotti and had been with the firm for 10 years.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Warning To San Rafael From Water Quality Board

The hard line taken by the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board with the City of San Francisco last week should serve as warning to San Rafael.

The water quality control board's patience is not yet worn so thin with San Rafael as it is with San Francisco, which has been procrastinating about doing anything about its pollution of the bay for years and years. But if San Rafael officials fail to start moving, the board's temper could rise rapidly.

And the board now has all the power it needs to force action. A new state law, which will take effect 60 days after adjournment of the legislature, imposes a $6,000 per day fine on any jurisdiction that ignores the board's order to cease and desist from practices which pollute the bay.

THIS IS BY FAR the toughest anti-pollution law yet put on the books, at least in this part of the country. It was passed by the legislature and signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan with little fanfare. But it may go farther toward cleaning up our environment than all the regulations of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District and Bay Conservation and Development Commission put together.

San Francisco has for over a century been dumping raw sewage in the bay. It has never installed a sewer system as such. It uses storm drains to carry the sewage. When it rains, this means the treatment plants must be by-passed. The result: raw sewage flows into the bay from San Francisco at 41 points.

San Rafael has nothing so bad as that. It has a well-designed sanitary sewer system — which includes areas outside the city and is operated by the San Rafael Sanitation District — in addition to its storm drain system. The trouble here is that storm drains on private property have been connected into the sanitary sewer system in many instances, leaks in pipelines have caused intrusion of storm water into the sanitary sewers, and as a result the treatment plant is overloaded during heavy rains.

The water quality control board has had harsh words about this in the past, and has put San Rafael on notice to do something about it. But — as in the case of San Francisco — it has not been able to put a great deal of muscle behind its demands. Now, thanks to the new law, it has the muscle.

THE IMPLICATION seems pretty clear: The board intends to crack down first on San Francisco, the biggest offender. But San Rafael can expect to feel its wrath, too, unless it takes action to make corrections such as recommended in the Dan Coleman Associates report in June of this year.

Incidentally, there is an interesting sidelight regarding the water quality control board's raking over of San Francisco at its meeting last week in Hayward: Neither the San Francisco Chronicle nor the San Francisco Examiner carried a word about it the following day. San Francisco residents presumably had to learn about it from their fellow workers who commute from Marin County or Alameda County and read about in the Independent-Journal or the Oakland Tribune.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Little's $45,000 Ferry Report —And What It Didn't Include

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The consulting firm which concluded earlier this month that ferries should be revived between Marin and San Francisco hung its hat pretty hard on the hope that a practical hydrofoil could be developed for the system.

The consultants, Arthur D. Little Inc., almost completely dismissed conventional displacement ferries. "The top speeds that can be produced by most displacement vessels fall only slightly above the minimum speeds required to make water transport systems operating from middle to north Marin competitive with the present work trip times of driving an automoblile," was the way the report put it.

THE REPORT, bought with $45,000 in taxes from Marin and San Francisco, mentioned fleetingly that the naval architectural firm of Morris Guralnick Associates Inc. had recommended the conventional displacement vessel over more exotic types. This firm, not the Little firm, presumably was the expert on water transportation, but the naval architects rated only one brief mention in the Little report.

When our curiosity led us to ask the Little people if a separate report had been done by Guralnick, we were told "no." Then, when we found one indeed existed, the Little people refused to release a copy of it.

Shortly afer we pointed out that their refusal to release it probably violated California's public record laws, the Little people telephoned back to explain they meant only that they could not release a copy of Guralnick's report because they had only one, but that we could get one from Guralnick. Which we did.

AFTER ALL THIS hocus-pocus we were disappointed to find Guralnick's report less a real thriller than a thoroughly documented report on why the naval architects strongly doubted hydrofoils would work on the bay.

Because hydrofoils are limited in the number of passengers they can carry, they said, "the number of units required to accommodate the peak commuter loads without serious delays make this approach undesirable for the main San Francisco-Marin service. It is doubtful whether they could maintain high speed schedules on the bay during periods of low visibility."

The largest hydrofoil in the world was made last year in Norway with a capacity of 240 passengers, or "less than one-sixth the number which can be comfortably carried in a medium sized displacement hull," the Guralnick reported noted.

According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, Guralnick said, the best use of hydrofoils would be in the 30 to 200 mile range — far longer runs than needed here.

GURALNICK DID NOT estimate the cost of the hydrofoils envisioned by the Little consultants, a pity in light of the extremely low estimate of $600,000 apiece in the Little report.

As for the other exotic vessel, the air cushion vehicle, Guralnick declared it to be "expensive, noisy, uncomfortable and undependable. '

Meanwhile, of course, the traffic just gets even worse.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Water District Playing Favorites

It was with sincere regret that I read in the I-J that the Marin Municipal Water District is going to asks for $57.5 million to spend on improvements in the coming years. Before the public should be asked to pay for this very substantial increases in costs it would be well to inquire as to how the district is managing the money and income that it is getting. Also, whether it is keeping the interests of the subscribers to the system at heart, or whether it is favoring a few wealthy and influential individuals.

This would not ordinarily be apparent except for the fact that in the same issue of the I-J is a report of the management that is so glaring an example of favoring the influential few at the expense of the rest of us, that I am appalled. I believe that the I-J should verify or retract a report that the Meadow Club of Tamalpais is paying a measly $500 a year rent for this very valuable land which it uses for club and golf course.

This land, at a very conservative estimate, is worth $2,000 an acre and is far more attractive than other land being considered by the City of San Rafael for a potential golf course site, at a price similar to this. The club would have to use at least 125 acres for its layout, and this would indicate that it is using public land for its exclusive advantage which is valued at a minimum of $250,000. At a conservative rent of 5 per cent of the valuation per year for rent (a figure well established in practice) this club should be charged at least $12,500 per year . . .

We may well inquire whether there are any other sweetheart contracts in existence, and who is being benefited? This sort of a situation makes me boiling mad. I hope that other like-minded people will inquire about how their money is being spent.

He Also Serves Who Orbits And Waits

I am writing in regards to an article about the Apollo XI astronauts which appeared in the July 24 issue of the I-J.

Pictures of Aldrin and Armstrong appeared on the front page with a caption under their pictures reading, "Space Heroes". Also appearing on the front page, under those of Aldrin and Armstrong was a picture of astronaut Michael Collins. Under his picture was his name and a mere statement, "He waited in space".

Isn't Collins a space here too?

Armstrong and Aldrin would not have been able to complete their mission and come home without the work and help of Collins. The Apollo XI crew is a crew and it works together in the same way a team works together. If team has a victory, it is a victory the whole team shares. The same is true with the Apollo XI crew. The success of the mission was a result of the work of the crew as a whole, along with the hard work of the ground crew.

Even though Collins did not land or walk on the moon, he was a member of the crew and had to face many dangers while fulfilling his part of the mission.

Now, I ask again, isn't Collins a space hero too?

Of course astronaut Michael Collins is a hero, too. The caption writer was merely trying to avoid repetition. — Editor.

The Other Arms Race— And Our Share In It

Reprinted from New York Times

Leaders of developing nations, who are rarely reticent about criticizing the big powers for diverting resources needed for development into an extravagant and self-defeating arms race, drew a pertinent rebuke the other day from the secretary general of the United Nations. U Thant pointed out that some developing countries themselves are wasting their meager national resources on arms, creating a "vicious circle of greater violence, which leads to aggravated poverty, leading in turn to new violence."

The Middle East today is certainly a case in point. So is the Indian subcontinent where India and Pakistan feed their persisting military rivalry with funds which would be better employed in mutual development for the benefit of their impoverished and increasingly restive peoples.

THE PRIMARY responsibility for this deplorable state of affairs lies with the developing countries themselves who so often fail to practice the principles of peaceful coexistence they so piously preach. But some of the blame must fall on the big powers who are all too ready to peddle or dump their surplus arms without adequate regard for the possible military, economic and political consequences.

Secretary of Defense Laird has taken note of the Russian role in feeding the mini arms race. But in doing so, Mr. Laird made a strong plea for continuing United States participation in this shortsighted competition. He assured the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that American arms sales are authorized "only after careful consideration is given to the potential impact on social and economic development and on arms races."

THE COMMITTEE knows better. Ralph A. Dungan, a former ambassador to Chile, testified recently that there has been "willing collaboration of U.S. military personnel to expand major weapons procurement" for Latin countries. He said one United States military mission was dispatched to "drum up sales" of the $5 million C-130 troop transport and he suspected the only reason for this was "to keep the production line going in Georgia."

"If there is a problem of 'Militarism' in the Latin-American countries," Mr. Dungan concluded, "we bear a heavy burden for its existence." The same can be said for other areas of the world.

It is time all countries, large and small, made a concerted effort to stop the arms race at all levels. This urgent goal could be accomplished if they would cooperate in strengthening the peace-making and peace-keeping machinery of the United Nations to provide an effective alternative to war for the settlement of international disputes.

Oil Import Control Program Needs Reform, Not Abandonment

Tax reform proposals, and a special cabinet-level task force study of the oil import control program, are focusing attention on the economic and political importance of oil. Consumers want oil import controls relaxed and ordinary taxpayers want oil depletion allowances cut. Domestic petroleum industry representatives want both retained.

There is substantial evidence that the depletion allowance, which applies to a number of mineral resources, has been stretched beyond its original intent as an incentive for development of domestic resources. For example, the allowance now applies to overseas petroleum operations. Reform of the depletion allowance should be one of the priority items in this year's tax reform legislation.

THE OIL IMPORT program also needs reform. President Eisenhower imposed the controls in 1959, in the aftermath of the first Suez crisis. As originally set up it covered crude oil, petroleum products and residual fuel oil. Under the program, importers of record (as of 1957), refiners and deep-water terminal operators receive licenses to import given quantities of crude oil, products or residual fuel. The effect of the system is to maintain higher prices for domestic crude oil and petroleum products and to funnel additional profits to holders of licenses.

Consumers in New England won a major victory when the system was modified to permit importation of residual fuel oil to meet domestic demand. Contrary to predictions by some oil industry spokesmen, the change in the residual fuel import program did not cause ill effects in the domestic industry, but it did lower consumer costs.

I believe similar changes should be made in the crude oil import program. Consumers are paying more than they should for petroleum products, and a major cause of those high prices is the import control program. Secy. of Labor George P. Schultz, who heads the oil import task force, has an opportunity to recommend such changes to the President by early this fall.

I DO NOT think it is feasible, or necessarily desirable, to remove oil import controls completely at this time. A sudden end to the program could cause havoc among independent producers, refiners and marketers. That, in turn, would add to the domination of the petroleum market by a few major companies, a domination which the oil import program has fostered.

The national interest will not be served by continuing the oil import control program in its present form. Neither will it be served by ending the program so quickly that smaller operators are drowned in a flood of oil brought in by major international companies.

Therefore, I have recommended that fuel and petroleum product deficit areas, such as the northwest, be given additional import allocations and that licenses be issued on the basis of actual sales. This is a system which has worked for residual imports. I think it could work to the consumer's interest, without undermining the domestic petroleum industry.

U.S. Gesture Can Mean Little To Red China

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States has given a nice little bonus to the businessmen of Hong Kong, but after that, one wonders.

A July 21 State Department announcement declared that henceforth American tourists may bring back with them $100 worth of goods made in Red China and that a ban on travel to Red China will be lifted for scholars, students, scientists, physicians and newsmen.

The announcement declared the action to be in the interests of "the development of peaceful contacts between the peoples of the United States and Communist China."

THE WONDERMENT springs from the fact that for some years State Department permission for the above listed categories to travel in Red China has been not much more than a formality anyway.

The catch has been that in most cases the Red Chinese do not want them.

Nor will permission for U.S. travelers to buy $100 worth of Chinese Communist - manufactured goods do much for Red coffers.

The enterprising merchants of Hong Kong, chief outlets for relics, silks, jewelry, etc., the items dearest to the hearts of tourists, have always been willing to swear the goods did not come from the Chinese mainland, regardless of whether they did or not.

THE CHANGES, then, are at the most symbolic, some slight sign that the United States finally is easing its 20-year total ban on trade with the Chinese Communists.

The Red Chinese reply can be expected to be a nose-thumbing gesture of derision at imperialist double-talk, based on earlier Nixon administration statements.

Early in his administration the President expressed his oppcsition to Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

On May 28, his opposition to an easing of trade curbs against the Communists also was disclosed.

Both were pegged on "present circumstances."

OPPONENTS to the President's position argue that the United States cannot much longer ignore the fact of Red China's existence and that it is shutting U. S. industry out of a market containing 750 million people.

Britain recognized the Red Chinese regime partly to protect Hong Kong. France did it because President Charles de Gaulle sought to re-establish French influence in Asia. Japan sought business advantage. None has been particularly successful.

Official Japan - Red Chinese trade ties come to less than $70 million annually.

Against these precedents, then, the U.S. action must be taken first as a step to enhance its bargaining position in future talks with the Soviet Union and second to assure the Red Chinese that in their quarrel with the Russians the United States is neutral.

Facts, Figures About Novato And Its Splendid Isolation

The other day we happened to attend a meeting in Central Marin and heard a few snide remarks made about Novato. Ever since we've been in Novato, we have felt isolated from the rest of Marin County, and apparently the central and southern part of the county feels much the same way. Many other Marinites look at Novato as the old time Israelites looked at Nazareth — could any good come out of it?

Unlike other cities in Marin County, Novato is a city within an area with many component parts. For example, the Novato Fire District has 75 square miles in it; the Novato Unified School District has 50 square miles in it, and the city has 20 square miles in it.

In this area are approximately 40,000 people or about 1/5th of the population of Marin County — a pretty big tail for a dog to wag.

THE CITY OF NOVATO is the largest in area in the county, going eight miles in one direction and one and one-half in the other.

Parts of the city are below sea level where it is diked. Novato also has the highest city limits —the summit of Big Rock Ridge which is 1,905 feet elevation, or less than 600 feet lower than Mount Tamalpais. Big Rock Ridge offers a route for the most scenic highway in the county. It is now a fire trail that starts at Highway 101 on St. Vincent's Hill and follows the ridge over eight peaks that go from 1,305 feet upward to the one just under 2,000 feet. The ridge has a bulk about twice that of Mount Tamalpais and the road goes fairly straight. If made open to the public, it would give a view of a big share of Marin County, San Pablo Bay, the East Bay cities, and east to Vallejo.

Novato borders on San Pablo Bay where barges bring in fuel to Hamilton Air Force Base. It also borders on the Petaluma River.

The city also has in it several miles of man-made lagoons, probably more than any other city in the county. These make the city a boaters' haven.

Two golf courses serve its residents, the Marin Country Club and Indian Valley Golf Club, which is the only one in the United States with an elevator between holes.

It also has the largest airport in the area — Hamilton Air Force base, which unfortunately is unavailable for private planes. Bordering the city on the north is Gnoss Field, the only lighted airport with a 3,300-foot runway within 45 miles.

FOR THE PAST 10 years Novato has been the fastest growing city both in population and area, and is second only to San Rafael in population.

Isolated as it is, Novato has not pushed itself forward as much as many citizens and officials would like. For example, the city limits signs on Highway 101 is nearly two miles inside the city limits. The state Dvision of Highways should erect a sign on the southern city limits, which touch St. Vincent's School for Boys. This sign should read: "Novato, Next 11 exits."

Novato has a space and the master plan studies predict that eventually it will contain a larger population than there is now within the entire county.

The Novato City Hall is the old Presbyterian Church converted into a city hall. The church bell still hangs in the belfry. So when the Apollo astronauts landed, the city employees went into the belfry to ring the bell.

They report that there were no bats in the belfry.

Drug Sentence

Carl Lonas King, 21, of Fairfax, was sentenced yesterday in Marin Superior Court to 60 days in jail and two years' probation for selling methedrine Feb. 3, 1968. King was given credit for 60 days already served in jail and was released.

ART BUCHWALD

Once There Were Two Martians Who Landed In A Park, And . . .

WASHINGTON — As I watched the two American astronauts on television go through their paces on the moon, I couldn't help thinking:

Suppose two Martians named Neil and Buzz made a space trip to this world and by accident landed in one of our city's parks.

A COP drives up. "Hey, you guys. Get that piece of junk out of here."

"It's not a piece of junk," says Neil. "It's an earth module."

"Yeah, well I don't care what you call it. You're not supposed to put up nutty sculpture in the park."

"We're only going to be here two hours and 40 minutes," Buzz says. "It's very important that we get earth samples for our scientists to study."

COP ASKS suspiciously, "What kind of samples?"

"Earth samples," Neil says. "You see, I take this little scoop with the plastic bag on the end and dig it into the surface like this, and I put the bag in the pocket of my space suit."

"You're pushing pot!" the cop yells.

"We don't know what pot is," Buzz says. "But we're supposed to pick up rocks and put them in a box."

"And then," the cop says, "after you put the rocks in the box, you're going to take off in that crazy piece of sculpture?"

"AFFIRMATIVE," says Neil. "But first we have to put the plaque up."

"What kind of plaque?" the cop asks as he takes out his notebook.

"It's a plaque which says, 'We came in peace for all Marskind.' "

"I get it. You're a bunch of anti-Vietnam peaceniks. Where are the rest of the creeps?"

"There's only Mike, and he's flying around 100 miles above us, waiting for us to come back."

THE COP looks up. "Mike is flying around 100 miles up there? Oh, yeah. There he is."

"You can't see him," Buzz says. "He's way out in space."

"Well, Mike ain't the only one. Let me ask you a question, and I wish to precede it with a warning that you may have the service of an attorney and that I am apprising you of your constitutional rights. Are you guys on a trip?"

"Of course we are," says Neil. "Why else would we be here?"

"Wait a minute, wait a minute," the cop says. "What kind of flag is that you're sticking up?"

"It's our national flag."

"NO FLAG flies in this park but the American flag. Now you take down that flag this minute or I'll knock those crazy motorcycle helmets off your heads."

"But we have to put the flag up or our parliament won't give us any future monies for our space program."

The cop wipes his face with a handkerchief.

"What are you doing with the camera?"

"We have to take pictures of the earth's surface, so we can pinpoint where we've been."

"OF COURSE," the cop says. "There's no sense taking a trip if you can't remember where you've been. Now listen to me, you blankety blanks. Don't either one of you move until I tell you to. Stay right where you are."

"But we have to set up the sun experiments."

The cop gets out his gun. "I said stay where you are." He picks up the microphone in his car. "Hello, gimme the chief . car. "Hello, gimme the chief. . . . Hello, chief. This is Pulan- if I told you I've got two hippies dressed in silver motorcycle suits and goggles with packs on their backs, picking up rocks and dirt in the park and sticking them in their pockets? . . . That's what I thought you'd say . . . No, no, everything's fine . . . It's just a quiet Monday morning . . . Yeah, I'll speak to you later.

"All right, you two weirdos," the cop says, "I'm going to drive around the park and then I'm coming back; and if you and that piece of junky sculpture ain't out of the park when I return you'll be picking up the rest of your rock samples in the yard of the county jail."

Luehring To Address Civic Affairs Panel

Dale W. Luerhing, general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, will speak at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Marin Council for Civic Affairs meeting in the supervisors' chambers of the Civic Center.

Raymond Ryason, MCCA board member, will report on three recently published transportation studies: the Bay Area Transportation Commission final report, the Little ferry study and the optiumum bus system proposed by Seymour Cashin of the Marin Transit District.

If You Could Have Seen

the joy in our eyes, then, these words could go unsaid. This is one of the most charming, sturdily built, Bavarian chalet-styled modified "A"-frame homes that we have seen (3 bdrms., 2 bas. plus den). From the quality carpeted liv. rm. a styled staircase rises with a flair to a railinged study-den & to a most generous sized mstr. bdrm. w/adj. large walk-in closet & bath. The view windows are like picture frames encasing the beauty of natural wooded privacy accented by Yosemite-sized boulders and gay splashes of colorful fruit & flowers. The csutomized all-elec. kitchen is unusual and warm with rdwd. paneling & surprise quality extras. About 12 min. to G.G. toll. Want charming living (?), then please phone now; you'll be glad you did!

Trio Appears To Hear Charge

Three Marin City residents charged with interfering with sheriff's deputies who tried to arrest one of them Wednesday were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

David Townsell Jr., 22, Brian Beard, 24, and Peggy Bullock, 20, were released on their own recognizance to appear Aug. 11 with counsel.

Deputies reported they tried to arrest Townsell on traffic warrant when they saw him on a commuter bus, and that Miss Bullock and Beard tried to prevent the arrest.

Deputies said the incident occurred in Marin City, but Beard and Miss Bullock said yesterday the bus was well inside the Sausalito city limits at the time.

Pleads Innocent

Jeffrey Lynn Evans, 20, of San Anselmo, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of selling marijuana Oct. 1 in San Anselmo. A jury trial was set for the week of Nov. 24.

Oregon Attorney General Indicted On Corruption

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—The attorney general of Oregon has been indicted by the Marion County grand jury for alleged violations of the state's Corrupt Practices Act.

Yesterday's indictment charged that Lee Johnson failed to report his election expenses as required within 15 days after the November general election and with making a false oath when notarizing his expenses.

Dist. Atty. Gary Gortmaker said the former Portland attorney signed a blank statement of expenses, leaving it for his lawyer to fill in the amounts. Gortmaker alleged Johnson was out of the state on the day his campaign expense statement was notorized.

"This matter will have to be resolved in the courts," Johnson said. "I do not believe I have committed a crime or any other wrongdoing."

TV REVIEW

Gleason Building Big Shows

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The word from the camp of CBS-TV's Jackie Gleason is that the great one will be going all out to fend off the new competition of NBC-TV's Andy Williams this fall.

Gleason has been a rock of ratings consistency and power for CBS-TV for years, and the NBC-TV move of confronting him head-on with Williams' variety hour will be watched closely by the trade as well as the public.

A Gleason spokesman says the comedian will offer at least 10 new one-hour musicals based on "The Honeymooners" characters that are the anchor of the series.

CARNEY BACK

This means clearly, says the spokesman, that Art Carney, Sheila MacRae and Jane Kean will be back with Gleason. The Carney confirmation, which seems solid at this point, according to the spokesman, is pivotal to the success of the series.

For there is little doubt that without Carney the series would be severely weakened, and that the Williams competition would become even more formidable.

In addition to "The Honeymooners' musicals, says the spokesman, there will be at least 10 other programs, original, in the musical-comedy style, in which Gleason will offer some of his other characters—such as Reggie Van Gleason.

BROADWAY NAMES

The spokesman also notes that the Gleason series will bring a number of Broadway names to the Miami Beach production point to play supporting roles in the various musical hours.

Merv Griffin's late-night CBS-TV show, opposite Johnny Carson and Joey Bishop, has its debut Aug. 18, and his announcer-sidekick will continue to be the amazingly youthful and wholly charming actor who served the same function on his syndicated series, Arthur Treacher, 75 years old.

CBS-TV notes that Treacher, who was famous as a snobbish movie butler, first met Griffin eight years ago.

Four years later, Griffin signed the deal for his syndicated series, and, he says, "I immediately stated that I wanted Arthur as the sidekick and announcer. I absolutely insisted on it. When Arthur's agent called to tell him he had been offered a rather 'different' sort of job, Treacher knew before being told that it was for my show. And he accepted on the spot."

Year's Probation

William Norman Roberts of San Geronimo was given a suspended 30-day jail sentence yesterday in Marin Superior Court and placed on a year's probation for having marijuana in his home May 5, 1968.

Santa Cruz Fires Lifeguards

SANTA CRUZ (UPI)—The Santa Cruz City Council has fired 13 striking lifeguards after the strikers picketed city beaches for three straight days in a demand for higher wages.

The lifeguards said they would probably appeal the firing and were in contact with an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union.

The strike began Saturday when the city refused to meet the lifeguards' wage demand of $3 an hour, offering instead $2.48.

The striking city guards contended their scale should be higher because they work right next door to state lifeguards who receive $3.40 an hour.

Swimmers were warned to bathe at their own risk since only four replacement lifeguards were on duty at the city beaches.

Eldridge Cleaver Now A Father

ALGIERS (AP) — Mrs. Eldridge Cleaver, wife of the Black Panther leader who skipped bail in San Francisco and has been living abroad for about eight months, gave birth to a son in an Algiers clinic today.

Cleaver and his wife have been in Algiers for the Pan-African Cultural Festival as guests of the Algierian government.

Cleaver was not available but friends said that the baby would be named Eldridge Jr.

Arraigned On Marijuana Count

James David Jensen, 32, who reportedly was found by highway patrolmen July 20 beside a wrecked hearse clutching a paper bag full of narcotics and jewelry, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Jensen was ordered to appear Aug. 11 with counsel.

Deputies estimated the 1958 hearse contained $5,000 worth of jewels and a large quantity of drugs and narcotics paraphernalia. Jensen was committed to Napa State Hospital for psychiatric observation after he was found by the wreck at White's Hill.

Lower Tax Rate Now Likely In Sausalito School Budget

A preliminary 1969-70 budget of $1,429,927 which will require a tax rate increase of 25 cents instead of the 35-cent hike anticipated earlier was approved last night by the Sausalito School District board, Supt. Phillip W. Schneider said today.

School district trustees also approved a survey of parents to see if they want a breakfast program, currently sponsored by the Black Panthers, continued.

The budget, on which final action will be taken Aug. 4, is down from last fiscal year's budget of $1,625,830.

The reason the tax increase is needed despite the lower budget, according to Asst. Supt. Joseph Amato, is that the last budger included funds for the San Francisco State College-sponsored Step Program in the district and a $112,000 school facilities planning grant from the state which will not be in the new budget.

The anticipated tax rate to meet the new budget will be $3.29 per $100 assessed valuation, Schneider said. Previously, the board had figured a tax levy of $3.39 — 35 cents higher than last year — would be necessary.

Schneider said the lower tax rate was made possible as a result of the district's income being higher than expected.

The budget carries a 7.5 per cent salary increase for district teachers, administrators and classified employees.

Schneider said the survey of the breakfast program will be done "as soon as possible." If parents decide they want the program continued, he said, it would be taken over by the school district with some help from federal funds and some financial support from private organizations.

The survey and decision on whether the program will be continued will be made before school starts on Sept. 10, he said.

The Sausalito School District board also:

READING — At the request of a group of parents agreed to put special emphasis on reading at the Martin Luther King School. The program, with particular focus on youngsters who are two or more years behind their grade level in reading, would include coordinated programs from first through eighth grades, in-service training for teachers and whatever consultant and specialist help is needed, Schneider said.

CALENDAR — Approved the school calendar for the coming school year with school running from Sept. 10 to June 12, the same calendar adopted by Tamalpais High School.

FIRE — Decided to consider contracting with the Sausalito Fire Department for fire protection for the Manzanita Kindergarten School in addition to protection already furnished by the county fire department.

PAVING — Held over a discussion on a paving project for a driveway at the Martin Luther King School.

Pleads Innocent To LSD Possession

David Brian Denison, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of possessing LSD. Trial was set for August 25.

Sheriff's deputies reportedly found the drug on Denison June 14 when he was returning from a doctor's appointment. He was serving a burglary sentence.

Thefts Reported In San Rafael

San Rafael police today reported three bicycle thefts and a car theft.

A car beloning to Gail Lynn Sivori of 16 Hillcrest Court, San Anselmo was stolen from 111 Clayton where the owner had parked it.

A bicycle belonging to Dean J. Dinellis of San Francisco, valued at $40, was stolen yesterday from the parking lot at Lucky Market at Northgate Shopping Center. A $50 bicycle owned by Marle Eleanor Corritore of 1766 Las Gallinas was stolen Friday at the Terra Linda High School swimming pool. Robin Jones of 2542 Las Gallinas reported a bicycle stolen from his home July 18.

Pair Posts $5,000 Bond In Drug Case

Two men arrested Sunday with $10,055 in their possession managed to scrape up another $2,500 bail apiece yesterday after being arraigned on charges of possessing marijuana.

Lawrence Victor Harrison, 28, of Soquel, Santa Cruz County, and Kevin Richard Stein, 21, of San Francisco, were arrested in 1954 Bentley. The surprised highway patrolman found $8,600 in small bills in a paper bag along with $1,495 in Stein's pockets.

Also found, the California Highway Patrol said, were two marijuana cigarettes and several marijuana butts. The car was initially stopped because it had a British license plate on the rear.

The men knew nothing of the marijuana in the borrowed car, defense attorney Terrence Hallinan told Marin Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith yesterday.

As for the cash, he said, "it's not a crime in this country to have a lot of money — not yet." Smith reduced bail from the original $18,000 apiece and the pair bailed out later in the afternoon.

Hallinan said later the money was intended as a payment on a house Harrison is buying in Mill Valley. Both the car and the money were impounded by officials.

When arrested, the men gave no explanation for the money. Hallinan told the court the men wanted to say as little as possible until they got an attorney.

The car is registered to Ronald Stevenson of Jenner who, Harrison and Stein said, lent them the car and is now in Hawaii or Japan.

A preliminary hearing was set for 2 p.m. Sept. 11.

Durocher In, Out Of Hot Water; Admits 'Stupidity'

CHICAGO (AP)—Leo Durocher manager of the Chicago Cubs, is not above making mistakes. Sometimes he admits them and sometimes he doesn't.

"It wasn't Hands' fault," said Durocher yesterday after the Cubs threw away certain victory and then snatched it back from Juan Marichal and the San Francisco Giants 4-3 in 10 innings.

"It was stupidity on my part," admitted Durocher when Bill Hands' sailing along with a 2-0 shutout, threw a home run pitch to Willie McCovey in the eighth to tie the game.

The Giants took the lead in the top of the 10th on Willie Mays' run-scoring single, but the Cubs pulled it out in the bottom of the 10th after two were out on a walk and singles by Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert and Billy Williams.

It marked the first time the Cubs have whipped Marichal since September of 1966 and their first victory over the Dominican righthander in Wrigley Field since 1964.

Durocher confessed to stupidity in not ordering Hands to walk McCovey in the eighth with a man on second and first base open.

"I must be second guessing myself," he said. "I walked him in the first inning with a man on second and first base open. In fact, I long ago decided to handle him like I used to handle Stan Musial. Anytime Musial could tie me or beat me, I ordered him walked. That's all.

"I should have done the same thing to McCovey. Then if Dietz (Dick) hit a homer to win the game and you guys came down to ask me why I walked McCovey, I would have told you it's my decision.

"But my boys took me off the hook," added Durocher, "they never quit or give up."

While the Cubs took Leo off the hook on the field, it remained to be seen what would happen today when he meets with club owner P. K. Wrigley about his disappearing act off the field.

Durocher left in the third inning of last Saturday's game, complaining of stomach pains. He also missed Sunday's game.

Later it was learned he appeared at Camp Ojibwa, Eagle River, Wis., Saturday night at a parents' reception. Mrs. Durocher's young son is attending the camp. Durocher and Lynne Walker Goldblatt were married last month.

When Wrigley learned what had happened, he said Durocher owed the players, the coaches and management an apology.

Durocher refused to comment when he came to the ball park yesterday morning saying, "It's a private matter and I don't discuss my private life with anyone. If I have anything to say, I'll tell it to Mr. Wrigley."

"Leo can do anything he wants," said Wrigley, "but the way he did it, it seems to have left everyone hanging. If he had told the club what it was, everything would have been fine. The players are busting a boiler to win. I don't like to see these upsetting things at this stage of the game."

JIM GILMARTIN

Novato An Incubator Of Baseball Champs

The younger males of the City of Novato look like other boys in the country. I mean, they all have two arms, two legs, one head, etc.

But there is something strangely different about Novatans. Maybe it's the weather, although it doesn't seem much different in Northern Marin than in San Anselmo, Fairfax or San Rafael. They eat the same type of groceries as other kids. Maybe it's the water, although the North Marin Water District insists its product is essentially the same as the MMWD's

Anyway, what I'm getting at, is how in the world does the city the size of Novato consistently produce such outstanding baseball talent? I think newborns up that way are draped in striped, numbered flannels instead of conventional diapers. While the infants in the poverty pocket of the Ross area, for example, are born with silver spoons in their mouths, Novato tykes spurn rattles for horsehides, tinker toys for Louisville sluggers, pacifiers for webbed mitts.

Young Man's Fancy . . . Bats, Balls

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to birds and bees. In Novato, it's bats and balls. Batter up.

It's been that way for some years and 1969 is no different.

Briefly, here is what has transpired in the Bounty County's northernmost community:

To start the ball rolling, Novato High School won the Marin County Athletic League championship with Russell King Dillon being named Player of the Year.

Then, on the collegiate scene, Novatan John Dolinsek led Arizona State University to the NCAA World Series, earning most valuable player award and a bonus professional contract with the Houston Astros Organization.

Most Valuable In Conference

Another collegian from the Baseball Capital of Marin, shortstop Tom Corder of San Jose State, was named MVP in the West Coast Athletic Conference with brilliant play at shortstop and at bat. Corder has another season at SJS after which he is a cinch to be selected high in the major league draft.

Annex-Motors-sponsored team of Novato kept the streak intact by easily winning the Northern Division title of the Marin Joe DiMaggio League for high school age players and could go on to further honors this month. Don't bet against it.

Not to be outdone, younger players in Novato are going great guns. The Babe Ruth Leaguers have won six consecutive tournament games and are in Auburn for the Northern California championships; and the Novato American All-Stars have captured the Marin title and will go to Santa Rosa this weekend for the Sectional Little League championships.

Only One Regulation Diamond

There seems no end in sight to this parade of championship talent. What makes it seem more remarkable is that the city has only one regulation baseball diamond at Novato High School and that one does not have lights.

Maybe they have bigger backyards in Novato.

Anyway, next time you're in Novato, don't dare holler "Play Ball!" or "Hi, champ." You're liable to be stampeded.

OOPS — that was Lon (not Lou) McEachern and not Alan McIntosh of the Twin Cities All-Stars who hit two home runs in last week's Marin District Little League Tournament. Saturday's I-J erroneously credited McIntosh with two blasts instead of one and McEachern with one instead of two.

Anyway, Mac hit two. And Mac hit one. Follow me?

Pinson Continues Streak As Cards Nip Padres

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vada Pinson and Billy Williams attended to their private business in plenty of time to become good company men when the chips were down.

Pinson ran his hitting streak to 19 games with a fourth inning single last night, then came up with the deciding hit and saving defensive play in the St. Louis Cardinals' 2-1 victory over San Diego.

Williams also singled in the fourth, for a 17-game hitting skein, before stroking the winning single in a two-run 10th inning rally that sent the Chicago Cubs past San Francisco 4-3 in the day's only other game.

Pinson matched the N.L.'s season-high hitting streaks, shared by Pittsburgh's Matty Alou and Willie Stargell, with his fourth inning single, then doubled to score Julian Javier in the sixth and give St. Louis a 2-0 lead.

Cardinals' rookie Chuck Taylor blanked the Padres until the eighth, when they scored on an error by Javier, an infield hit by Ed Spiezio and a double by Roberto Pena.

An intentional walk filled the bases with one out, but Pinson gloved Nate Colbert's foul fly down the right field line and fired to the plate to nail pinch runner John Sipin, completing a rally-killing double play.

YACHT SERIES TIED

Australian yacht Toogooloowoo IV (background) defeated The Goose of Seattle on a protest yesterday to tie their best-of-seven race series at three-all on San Francisco Bay. The six-meter sloops will clash tomorrow in the deciding race at 10 a.m. Story on page 32.

HALL OF FAME

The Sentimental Stars

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Four new plaques hang on the walls of the Baseball Hall of Fame today. Two honor pitchers from the dim past, while the other two are for a couple of sluggers known even to the younger generation of fans.

Officially enshrined yesterday in this village where baseball Coveleski and Waite Hoyt and slugging stars Roy Campanella and Stan "The Man" Musial.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn introduced the new Hall of Fame members at the ceremony and read the inscriptions on their plaques.

Campanella, In a wheelchair since an auto crash in 1958 ended his catching career with the Brooklyn Dodgers, said, "Regardless of my being here today in a wheelchair this is one of the greatest days in my life. Today means so much to me."

Musial, who played 22 years for the St. Louis Cardinals and still holds a host of batting records, almost broke up when he recalled his boyhood in the steel town of Donora, Pa.

"My father," he said, "was a Polish immigrant and a great baseball fan. I always remember him talking about Baby Ruth. The Musials were poor then, and my first toy was a baseball,"

His favorite ball players in ers Carl Hubbell and Lefty Grove and hitting stars Mel Ott and Lloyd Waner.

He also reminisced about playing against Campanella and the Dodgers. "Campy was always trying to distract me," he said. "It wasn't the Brooklyn pitchers who got me. It was Campy."

Coveleski, now white haired and bent with age, won 216 games in a 14-season career in the majors in the early 1900s. He choked up, too, when it was his turn to be officially inducted, but he managed to go on.

He told of working for $3.75 a week in the coal mines around his native Shamokin, Pa., and of chunking stones at a tin can dangling from a tree—a past-

Raiders Release Several Players

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who must drop five players to trim their roster to 60 by Saturday night, made several cuts yesterday.

However, officials said they won't say how many were cut or who they were until tomorrow.

The Raiders play their second exhibition game Saturday night in Birmingham, Ala. against the Kansas City Chiefs. The Raider rookies downed the Dallas Cowboy rookies in the first exhibition, 33-0.

'Also-Ran' Aaron Now Belongs To Establishment

MONTREAL (AP) — Tommy Aaron has joined golf's establishment.

He's finally shed the stigma of the perennial also-ran by winning a tournament.

The tall, 32-year-old from Callaway Gardens, Ga., made it to the winner's circle yesterday after a nine-year wait, capturing the Canadian Open Championship by twos trokes in an 18-hole playoff round with veteran Sam Snead—25 years his senior.

"I guess you won't talk about the fact I've never won one now," Aaron gently chided newsmen. "You'll probably quit writing about me because there's nothing unique about me now. I've become one of the guys. I've won one."

Aaron shot a two-under-par 70 over the Pinegrove Golf Club layout while Snead had to settle for a par 72.

His victory was a big one financially as well as psychologically. He won $25,000 to Snead's $14,300 and added $4,500 as his share of the gate.

PLAYOFF LOOT

Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., also picked up $4,500 additional money from gate receipts of $18,000 from the estimated 3,000-strong gallery. Fifty per cent of playoff gates are assigned to the golfers involved, with the Royal Canadian Golf Association and he host club equally splitting the other 50 per cent.

The pair had finished the regulation 72-hole route Sunday with identical 13-under-par 275 scores, with Aaron setting a course record with a eight-under 64 in the fourth round to catch Snead.

The veteran had held a six-stroke lead over Aaron entering Sunday's round.

EIGHT SECONDS

Aaron had registered eight second-place finishes since turning pro in 1960, but had never been able to better those performances.

However, he did his first victory up in style. Leading by one stroke going into the 18th, Aaron guided in a 25-foot putt for an eagle 3, while Snead had his eagle attempt from 40 feet miss by less than an inch and slide four feet beyond the cup.

Snead birdied the hole, but only after the excitement caused by Aaron's efforts had died down.

Novato To Meet Concord

The Novato American All-Stars, champions of the Marin County District Tournament, will try to climb a little bit higher on the Little League tournament ladder Thursday when they open play in the divisional tournament at Santa Rosa.

The Novatans will meet Concord at 6 p.m. at the Santa Rosa National Little League field in the southeast corner of the Sonoma County Fairgrounds. Radio KTIM will broadcast the game with Bob Dinsmore and Aldo Pasquinelli at the microphone.

Three other teams will be in the single elimination tournament. The two Sacramento entries will square off at 6 p.m. tomorrow. That will be followed by the Novato-Concord game Thursday. Santa Rosa will meet the Sacramento survivor at 6 p.m. Friday. The winners of the Thursday and Friday contests will battle it out at 6 p.m. Saturday for the right to advance to the State tournament at Chico Aug. 7-8.

POND TO START

Lanky lefthander Jeff Pond, who propelled the Novato American to the district title on the mound and with his bat, will get the starting pitching call Thursday.

Pond won two games in district competition, stopping Sausalito, 1-0, on a three-hitter and San Rafael National, 3-1, on a one-hitter. He's struck out 25 batters and allowed only one earned run. He also tops Novato .500 with two home runs.

Backing Pond up on the mound are Mike Race, who's won the other two games, and Jim Chakos.

The Novato infield will consist of first baseman Dana McCune, second baseman Jack McGovern, shortstop Mike Brunner and Chakos at third base. Catching will be Mike Moraski. In the outfield will be Glen Dunbar, Race and either Jim Lawrence or Mike Moreno. Bob Douglass is manager of the Novato American All-Stars.

SECOND GAME FOR NOVATO TEAM TONIGHT

Jeff deRecat will probably get the starting call for Novato's Babe Ruth All-Stars when they meet Yuba City in second-round play of the Northern California Babe Tournament at Auburn at 6 p.m. today.

DeRecat spun a seven-hitter in his last outing, downing Sonoma, 5-2, in a game that clinched the District 7 crown and a ticket to Auburn for the Novato squad.

Novato won its opener Sunday in the double-elimination tournament, downing Menlo Park, 1-0, behind Dave Judnick's no-hitter.

A Summer Of Discontent For Rick Monday Of A's

OAKLAND—This is the summer of Rick Monday's discontent, a surprising fact because his performance is almost on par with the so-called "good" year he enjoyed with the Athletics in 1968.

But Rick seems discouraged and worried. His cool facade hides much of this concern, but his teammates know it's there and yet are stumped as to exactly why. An amateur psychiatrist might find analyzing the Monday "slump" a tantalizing exercise.

THE PRIME consideration is Rick's status as Charlie Finley's first big bonus boy. All that money forced upon Rick the need to excel, and quickly. And for some reason, although he's still but 23, Monday was pegged by those in charge here as a "leader" type. Then there was the arrival of Arizona State classmates Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson, both of whom received smaller bonuses and less fanfare.

Monday arrived at the Coliseum in the spring of 1968 heralded by the local press as the team's obvious superstar. There was talk of him hitting as many as 20 home runs in this ball park.

THAT HE ended up with eight is not as important as the rest of his work at the plate. For several mid-summer weeks the slender blond the ballplayers call "Twiggy" was leading the league in batting. He ended in the top 10 at .274 and was a member of the American League All-Star team.

In the final weeks of the season, Rick slumped and began striking out more, finishing with 142 whiffs.

THIS SEASON he's striking out at a stepped-up rate (77 through 95 games) and hitting in the .260s, not an appreciable dip. His runs batted in total is definitely admirable by comparison: a year ago he had 49 total, and in less than 100 games in '69 he has 43. Already he has 10 homers (two of them grandslammers) as compared to last year's tepid total of eight.

But as reasonably encouraging as these statistics may be, they don't reveal Monday's true anguish. The batting average points, RBIs and most of the home runs came in two brief hot streaks. In fact, in the first torrid stretch, from April 19 to 30, Rick batted in at least one run in 10 consecutive games.

THE SPAN since his last batting assault, however, has now stretched to several weeks, and Rick shows no sign of snapping out of it, despite extra batting practice.

Monday, who lives in Tiburon, is not necessarily the forgotten idol here, but other names — particularly those of other Arizona Staters — are more frequently mentioned.

"RICK HAS to snap out of this slump," says a friend on the club. "He's truly — I mean truly —got more potential than anyone on this team. And he's a very smart fellow. Kids like Reggie learn after making the same mistake two or three times. But not Rick. He knows."

ANOTHER CLOSE observer theorizes that Monday simply hasn't matured as fast physically as, let's say, Bando and Jackson.

"When he does," the man says, "nothing will hold him back." And that may be worth waiting for.

Irish Hold Key In All-Star Attack

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars will send a Notre Dame flavored offense and a highly regarded defense against the New York Jets Friday night in the 36th annual All-Star football game in Soldier Field.

Notre Dame quarterback Terry Hanratty and Irish tackle George Kunz yesterday, were named co-captains on offense, while cornerback Jim Marsalis of Tennessee State and linebacker Bob Babich of Miami of Ohio will co-captain the defense.

Head Coach Otto Graham, who had requested the players not to make the voting a popularity contest, was pleased with the selections.

"The results prove they took this seriously," said Graham. "These four men not only are outstanding athletes, they have been the hardest workers in our training camp."

Hanratty could be the key of the All-Stars' hope to win the Jets and Joe Namath. In three years at Notre Dame, Hanratty piled up 4,738 total yards to break the offense record of George Gipp and set 15 school records.

One of his targets will be Jim Seymour, the rangy split end who helped Hanratty compile his records at Notre Dame.

Hanratty is from Butler, Pa., which is only 20 miles from Beaver Falls, home of Broadway Joe Namath, and the two could turn the midsummer classic into a neighborhood aereal brawl.

Graham is not concerned about his offense as much as he is the defense. He is fully aware that the pros' pass patterns usually baffle the collegians in the All-Star game.

Although he will be without the services of LeRoy Keyes of Purdue, who like O.J. Simpson of Southern California and Ron Johnson of Michigan, will be missing because of contract squabbles with their respective clubs, Graham is high on his defensive secondary.

"All the way along in training camp I have been impressed with our defensive secondary," said Graham. "As a group I think it has the speed and quickness to do the job. I'll be disappointed if the Jets get any cheap, quick touchdowns."

Nevertheless, the All-Stars figure to be somewhere around 13 points underdogs against the Jets, who defeated the Baltimore Colts 16-7 in the Super Bowl to become the first American Football League team to qualify for the All-Star game.

TITLE FIGHT

Press Rips Pep For Score Goof

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The biggest furore in Australian boxing in 20 years has fallen on Willie Pep, former world featherweight champion.

Pep refereed yesterday's Fighting Harada-Johnny Famechon world featherweight title fight which ended in a shambles when he awarded a draw, but a check on his scoreboard showed Famechon, the champion, had won by one point.

Pep said, "I am not infallible. I made a mistake."

Newspapers and observers ripped into Pep.

"Fighting Harada should be basking in the glory of his third world title but in my opinion there was a miscarriage of justice at Sydney Stadium last night."

Rod Humphries, boxing writer for The Sydney Morning Herald, said this in his comment on the world featherweight title fight between Harada and the Australian champion.

"I wonder whether referee Willie Pep, had he known that his points at the start of the 15th round were incorrect, would have scored the last round differently to make it a draw?

ALL THE FIGHT

"Harada made all the fight, and I mean all the fight.

"I wanted Famechon to win but I cannot help feeling sorry for the likeable Harada, who came close to etching his name in history."

Phil Tresider, writing in The Daily Telegraph, Sydney, said Pep had angered fans long before his calamitous final round error.

"He allowed persistent kidney punching by the little Japanese and much illegal punching in the clinches by both boxers. The score card shambles dampened an otherwise eventful and tense world title fight," he wrote.

Keith Robbins also writing in The Telegraph, said, "I thought Harada won clearly. His nonstop aggression won a lot of points."

WELL PLACED

Mike Gibson in his column, "Calling the Shots," in The Telegraph, said:

"I have never been to Hartford, Connecticut, Willie Pep's home town. But I did a bit of checking up on the place last night.

"It is the home of the American School for the Deaf, The Connecticut Institute for the Blind and the Institute of Living (For the mentally unwell).

"I will make no further comment, other than to say Willie is extremely well placed. He ought to run for mayor!

Pep said in an early morning interview:

"I made an honest mistake. I just added it up wrong, that's all. I don't know how it happened, but someone pointed out that in one round I gave Famechon four points but added five to his total."

time that sharpened his pitching skills.

Hoyt spent 21 years in the majors and won a total of 237 games, many of them for the New York Yankees.

"This arrival at the Hall of Fame," he said, "is not arrival through one man's talents and abilities. Everybody I ever came in contact with helped me."

"This," he said, "is the achievement of all that I have ever dreamed of."

Clippers Sue Pro Soccer For Monopoly

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Clippers are dead and their former owners think somebody should pay $750,000 for the funeral.

Yesterday, the Clippers' management sued much of the organizational structure of soccer in the United States and California, claiming those groups have a monopoly on the sport.

An antitrust suit was filed in the U. S. District Court here by William M. Brinton, Joseph I. O'Neill Jr. and H. T. Hilliard, principal stockholders of the Clippers.

Cited as defendants were the North American Soccer League, the U. S. Soccer Football Association, the California Soccer Football Association, the Southern California Soccer Football Association and a number of individuals.

OBLIGATION

"We believe that we are not only entitled to the damages which are being sought,' says the suit. "But that there exists an obligation on our part to the future of this sport to compel organized soccer to discontinue policies and practices that are hampering the growth and development of the game in this country."

The Clippers were members of the North American Soccer League until last year when it went independent and played an international schedule.

When that failed to draw many customers, the team was disbanded in June.

Yacht Showdown Tomorrow; Indy Turbine Ban Upheld

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — A protested victory in favor of Australia's Toogooloowoo will send the Challenge Cup Yacht Series into a seventh race.

The "Toogoo" evened the best-of-seven series Monday protest of a non-maneuver by the American entry, The Goose.

The Goose, sailing out of Seattle, was the apparent winner of the race by one-minute 53-seconds but, after a two-hour meeting, officials declared the "Toogoo" the winner.

The "Toogoo" protested saying The Goose failed to follow through with her request for "sea room" during the race.

"We tacked for her but she continued on her original course so we protested," said a crewman of the Australian six-meter.

The deciding race will be held tomorrow over the 12.9-mile San Francisco Bay course.

AUTO RACING

INDIANAPOLIS — The U.S. Auto Club rules committee voted last night to increase the size restriction on "stock block" engines in Indianapolis-type cars from 320 cubic inches to 335 cubic inches in 1970.

The committee also reconsidered, and upheld, the earlier decisions to ban four-wheel-drive and turbine engines from championship racing next year. It recommended that all engine limits but the stock block specifications remain the same.

BOXING

SPORTS SHORTS

Opponents will be named later.

Amaya has been particularly impressive, registering 21 knockouts in 23 victories.

ICE HOCKEY

OAKLAND — The Oakland Seals will host the Los Angeles Kings Oct. 17 in their 1969 National Hockey League home opener.

The Seals, who will open the season on the road, will play 38 home games with 15 of them scheduled for Friday nights, 11 Wednesdays, six Tuesdays, one Thursday and one Saturday. Four Sunday afternoon games are also scheduled.

TENNIS

KALAMAZOO, Mich — Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., the top-seeded junior, defeated Joe Gettys of Melbourne, Fla., 6-1, 6-1, in the opening round of the National Junior and Boys 16 Championships.

GENERAL

SAN YSIDIO, Calif. — John Maiben, one of the top U.S. jockeys in the 1920s, died at the age of 71.

ALORTON, Ill. — A stable fire killed 32 race horses at Cahokio Downs race track.

CHARLES TOWN, W.Va. (AP) —One fan collected $24,820 for a $2 bet Monday night at the Charles Town Race Track as a muddy track upset the form and four outsiders figured in the Big Exacta.

Friendly Count, $28.40, won the seventh race with Torino, $7.80, finishing second.

The first half of the Big Exacta was easier as 125 players correctly named Weather Mist, $14.20, as winner in the fifth with Linsey—Jan, $11.60, finishing second.

Unsung Men Behind Raider Grid Machine

By GARY TISCHLER

SANTA ROSA — Hey, Raider rooter.

Remember Daryle Lamonica?

Oh yeah, big flashy white teeth, great passer, hell of a quarterback.

Right. How about Blanda?

The old man? Yeah, he seems to go on forever, doesn't he? Sure comes through with his toe. Great guy.

Right. And Big Ben?

Davidson? That big lug. Gee, he sure creamed Namath that one time, didn't he? Saw it on instant replay 10 times.

How about George Anderson?

Who?

You know, the fellow with the towels, the tapes, the bag and pills.

Can't say that I place him.

No, I don't think so. How about Dick Romanski?

Come again?

PAD SPECIALIST

Romanski. Glasses, white-haired crewcut, ties a hell of a shoelace, specializes in shoulder pads, insteps, things like that.

You sure he isn't a Polish movie director?

Exclusive of maybe places like Vallejo, Pinole and San Leandro and maybe St. Norbert's College, Dick Romanski and George Anderson are not exactly household names.

The happy thousands who root the Oakland Raiders on to whatever proud desserts they achieve probably know more about the usherette on the seventh row of the upper deck than they do about Messers. Anderson and Romanski.

Which is probably the way it should be. The proud practitioners of such special arts as fitting behemoth helmets on the skulls of famous skullcrackers or listening to and sometimes diagnosing the moans of high priced backs and linemen don't make the sports section of Time magazine too often.

TAPES, LISTENS

Anderson, the taper and listener, is the Oakland Raider trainer and Romanski is the equipment manager, men with gray titles in what has become a victory machine.

The run of the swill-mill fan may or may not have heard of George or Dick but the Raiders know them rather well, almost as well as their mothers. The feeling is not quite the same, but it is close.

To use the old cliche, these men are unsung. They appear on page nine of the lower quarter of the Raider Press and Television guide, in side-by-side pictures and one-paragraph capsule portraits.

Romanski, a rooter deep in his specialized heart, is a 41-year-old ex-hero, ex-athlete and ex-teacher.

A former Little All-American quarterback at St. Norbert's (Wisconsin) College, he was teaching architectural drawing in a Wisconsin High School when Raider boss Al Davis gave him the call to join the Raiders as equipment manager.

BEATS TEACHING

"It beats teaching," Romanski says laconically of his job.

His is a nitty-gritty job, full of masses of equipment, some of it used, most of it new, a lot of it special.

He is watchdog, organizer, fitter and orderer. He watches out for thieves, orders helmets for extra-large heads, gives a lockerroom that look of functional neatness, ready for use so that when the teams get together for pre-game preparedness sessions, the linebakcers are all together in a neat, package corner and the quarterback can talk to a receiver face to face instead of across the room.

In the course of talking to him, at the team training camp here the other day, some interesting facts come to the surface. Such as that the Raiders are one of the few teams in either the AFL or NFL to order a complete set of new uniforms every year.

Of course, there are superstitious exceptions.

"Billy Cannon will not change his helmet," Romanski reported.

LUCK CHARMS

There are players who hang onto favored equipment like a treasured good luck charm.

The old, hulking, huge shoulder pads are on the way out, being replaced by smaller, more comfortable and functional ones.

"The accent is on comfort and speed," Romanski said. "They're lighter today. Everything is faster."

Romanski's favorite lockerroom is, of course, the one in the Oakland Coliseum. Buffalo occupies the bottom of the list.

"It's unbelievable," he said.

A fully-dressed and outfitted Raider is an expensive piece of football meat, in addition to his yearly salary. He wears about

By AL GIDDINGS

Bass And Salmon Slow; Get Ready For Deer

From most reports bass fishing was slow most of this past week. Some fish were taken at Racoon Straits, drifting anchovies. The tides were slow with not much of a runoff, and I think this slows things. This week we have some good minus tides; good enough for abalones, too.

FRANK SUE just called and said he got a $5. tagged fish. He was pretty close mouthed about the place. He said he limited, but the area was top secret. You'd be surprised how these guys clam up when you write about their hot spots. It has to be somewhere by the Golden Gate Bridge as the fish were all big. That's not much help now, is it?

I PUT the skiff in the water at Point Reyes where I had read the salmon fishing was hot. I caught only one six and one-half pound salmon, but as it was the first of this summer from the skiff, it looked good.

The commercial boats out there didn't do very good, and most of them came in by noon. I watched a couple of party boats and, at times, they were over the rockfish beds, probably trying to satisfy their customers with something.

The ocean was calm and using the skiff was great. I used two rods, one with a one pound weight and a herring, the other, a flyrod with an Andy Reeker spoon and a four ounce trolling weight. I caught the fish on the bait rod with 50 feet of line out.

ONE DAY last year, using the same two rigs, I caught nine salmon in two hours all on the flyrod-spoon combination fishing close to the surface. If they are on top, I take the bait rod in, and fish strictly with the flyrod. It's a ball. The fish are mouth hooked and easy to release. One other day at Tomales last year I nailed a 28-pounder on the flyrod and the fight was great. One of the mechanics, Dale Tallant, from J&B Ford, was with me and he hasn't gotten over that yet!

YOU KNOW, this coming Saturday the coastal buck season opens. With good feed conditions, the bucks are in good shape. Better get your guns out, clean them, check the sights and sight them in. Our family uses a 30-0-6, a .257 Roberts and a 243, all bolt actions with identical safeties, etc.

Oftentimes we exchange guns back and forth, depending on the type of hunt or the stand we take. The scopes are 2½, 4 and 8 power.

We have had excellent luck using the 25-yard sighting in distance for best results for all three guns. Sighting in these guns, and I mean right on at 25 yards shooting prone and with a rest, assures accuracy at ranges up to 250 yards. On at 25 yards and on at 250 yards with a midrange trajectory about three inches high is ideal and so simple to achieve. It really pays off. I know last year, the family brought home four or five bucks, all with clean neck shots.

The big event of last year was when my daughter, Marylu, aged 15, after taking two hunter-safety courses, and practicing all the actions of the 243 rifle time and time again, finally got a shot and made a beautiful neck shot. And that's where she aimed, because the gun was accurately sighted in.

Where does one sight in a rifle? There's a range at Petaluma open from 4 to 6 p.m. daily, and through the day on weekends. The price for the range use is $1. Call the Petaluma Police Department for details.

The Dept. of Fish and Game points out that each of the 114 hunting accidents last year was caused by somebody's failure to observe common sense safety practices. Safety in the field is everybody's job.

HERE'S QUITE a day for you! Ropey Clark of Larkspur went out to Tomales Bay Sunday in a skiff with a friend to try for salmon or halibut.

The first thing Clark caught was a hat drifting by. Then he hooked a shark with a two-foot dorsal fin. He said it just took off and there was no way to stop it. (I suppose it was in the area looking for those skindivers who spear halibut). Clark also caught eight flounders and one red tailed perch. No salmon or halibut.

THE GIRL who checks the fish at Nick's Cove on Tomales Bay sent me a note that 45 persons in 21 boats took 5 halibut, 10 sole, 20 flounders and 11 salmon along with some rays, sharks, perch, lingcod and rockfish.

$200 worth of clothes and protective gear.

Specialized as his job is, it comes down to quick thinking.

"We're just like comedians," Romanski says. "We're always ad libbing."

Romanski is the outfitter of the Raider machine, Anderson is its nursemaid, the aunt with the castor oil.

NO WHIP

As trainer, he is in charge of diets, putting on weight, losing it, an art that he doesn't practice with a whip.

"I set the diet for the meals," he said. "I can get weight off them, or put it on. That's easy. We have a certain control over that. But they're adults. They know what to eat and what not to eat."

A former trainer at Southern Cal, Anderson is the oldest Raider around in term of longevity, having been with Oakland since the formation of the team. A San Jose State graduate, he now lives in Pinole.

Anderson is one man who is close to the players, literally. Got an ache, a pain, a sore this or that, or a problem, and Anderson is the man.

"Most of the time, the gripes are legitimate," he said. "There's hardly any malingering on a professional team. I mean, this is a business, this isn't college. They're all pointing for the superbowl."

SPOTS INJURIES

It is usually Anderson who will spot a serious injury, and may have to tell the coach that a certain player has had it.

As trainer, in addition to the more mundane task of taping, applying linament and ointment, pills and pain-easers, Anderson has to be something of a psychologist.

"You treat each player differently," he said. "If one comes with an ache or pain, you might sympathize. Sometimes you just have to turn your back, that's all there is to it."

What is immediately apparent about both these men, is their pride not just in their job, but as Raiders. These aren't just men who know how to do a certain thing well. They are yellers and rooters who die a little on Sunday, out of joy or disappointment.

They are certainly unsung, maybe not even heroes but somebody, up in the distant bleachers, behind the usherette, ought to give them at least one roar.

49ers Drop Four Men

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Four players were missing from the San Francisco 49ers' training camp today after being put on waivers.

Among them was running back Don Street, a 6-foot-1, 197-pound former Mississippi star who was carried last year on the 49ers' reserve, or taxi, squad.

The others dropped yesterday were free agent punter Hank Collins of Miami, free agent place kicker Al MacFarlane from Louisville, and cornerback Gary Golden of Texas Tech.

Still out were holdouts Clifton McNeil, Howard Mudd and top draft choice Ted Kwalick of Penn State. Gene Washington, former flanker from Stanford, is in Chicago training for the all-star game.

CAIN'S TIRE

Marin County's Exclusive No-Nonsense Tire Dealer

We're moving our SAN RAFAEL STORE in September! We were going to move into a huge retail emporium in Northgate, but I decided against that for a lot of reasons. What we are going to do is move into our other two retail locations in San Anselmo & Novato. We will open up San Anselmo considerably and will have plenty of parking & working space. All this is a preface to telling tire buyers we have got to sell lots of products 'cause we just don't have that much room for all of our inventory. We are dumping all the stock we can on the greatest quality lines in the area.

"After you show us your flowers, Grandma, then can you show us your 'frigerator?"

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, July 29th, the 210th day of 1969 with 155 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1914, the first transcontinental telephone linkup was completed with a conversation between New York and San Francisco.

In 1945, B29 bombers dropped 3,500 tons of fire bombs on six Japanese cities which had been warned earlier that week.

In 1967, 129 men were killed when fire swept the aircaft carrier USS Forrestall off the coast of Vietnam.

In 1968, Pope Paul upheld the prohibition of all artificial means of birth control for Roman Catholics.

A thought for the day: Novelist Booth Tarkington said, "It really is the land of nowadays that we never discover."

Airplane Job For Car Washer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Larry Neal, who operates a car wash business, had a promotional gimmick going with a sign that advertised "Airplanes Washed Free."

Then Neal Loving drove up with an airplane in tow.

After the shock wore off, operator Neal called out his crew of car washers and they turned to plane washing.

"It's on the house," Neal called as Loving drove away towing the plane. "Happy Landings!"

Always Keep On The Alert At The Table For Extra 'Cookies'

When I was a young man of 7, my mother would sometimes send me to buy a loaf of bread. One of the nearby grocers would sell me the bread and send me home with a kind word, but another grocer would sell me the same loaf for the same price and would sometimes give me a cooky all for myself. That was many years ago, but I still look for the extra cooky — especially at the bridge table.

IN DUMMY

South took the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps and led dummy's low diamond toward the king. West took two high diamonds and then led another club.

The defenders eventually got a heart trick as well, and South was down one. South got his loaf of bread, but he forgot to look for the extra cooky.

South should begin the diamonds by leading low from his own hand toward dummy's jack. This play does not cost South his loaf of bread: he will still make the contract if East has the ace of diamonds.

SWITCH DIAMONDS

Imagine that the diamonds are switched, so that East has the A-Q-10-6. South leads a low diamond, losing dummy's jack to the queen. Back comes a heart to dummy's king, and declarer leads dummy's low diamond. East can take the ace, but then South has time to discard dummy's losing heart on the king of diamonds.

South gets his extra cooky whenever West has the queen of diamonds. When South leads the low diamond from his own hand, West must step up with the queen.

CASH A CLUB

The defenders cash a club trick and then lead a heart to dummy's king. South leads dummy's jack of diamonds and now he doesn't have to worry about the location of the ace of diamonds. The jack forces out the ace of diamonds, and South wins the heart return and cashes the king of diamonds to discard dummy's heart loser.

Declarer's actual line of play would work only when East has the ace of diamonds. The right line of play works not only when East has the ace of diamonds but also when West has both the ace and the queen.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K Q 8 4
♥ K 7 2
♦ J 5
♣ A 8 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

The hand is just barely worth an opening bid. If you start with one club you can rebid one spade over a red response; you can raise one spade to two; and you can pass a response of one no-trump.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Speculations Evaluated By Their Earning Trends

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Are Railweight and Flying Tiger worth holding? If not, what are suitable switches? — B. G.

A. Both stocks are identified with freight transportation — a basic segment of the national economy — yet their speculative characteristics are totally different.

Railweight, a small outfit with grows revenues of $515,000 in fiscal 1968, is largely dependent on the struggling railroad industry to buy its freight-weighing systems. Recognition of their value is gradually building up here and abroad but progress is slow.

Flying Tiger's revenues of $16.7 million in 1968 were about 60 per cent generated from military contracts. The company is striving to increase its commercial business; hence its new transpacific route award is a significant development. Earnings are moving up again this year whereas Railweight is likely to report another deficit.

I'd sell Railweight and hold Flying Tiger for price recovery. If you would like a lower-priced speculative issue, I suggest Livingston Oil, recently recommended for its growing stake in cable-TV. As a more conservative selection I like Tenneco, which is trading on a somewhat higher level.

Q. Last April you pointed up the strong growth prospects in the country's Southwest. But in selecting utilities likely to benefit therefrom you omitted El Paso Natural Gas. We've been told it would be a "good thing." — G. S.

A. I agree and had already recommended purchase of EIG in an early March column which you must have missed. The company's nonregulated speculative operations are promising: participation in Gasbuggy's nuclear blasting tests, and important stake in a major copper discovery in Arizona and production of petrochemicals, plastics and man-made fibers.

The $1.00 annual dividend provides an attractive yield and estimated earnings of $1.50 for 1969 produce a P/E multiple of 13x, the low end of the stock's 10-year range. The bulk of 1968 revenues (64.2 per cent) came from natural gas production and distribution.

Currently the company is involved in working out a plan acceptable to the U. S. Supreme Court for divestiture of its Pacific Northwest Pipeline properties.

Market In Decline Once Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—An impressive rally early today failed to hold and prices on the New York Stock Exchange declined for the seventh day in a row in fairly active trading.

Shortly before the close the UPI marketwide indicator was off 1.07 per cent on 1,562 issues traded. Declines outnumbered advances, 912 to 386. The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than 6 points at its best, lost more than 3 points on the day. Volume topped 13,000,000,000 shares.

Electronics and chemicals were firm, oils, steels, motors and airlines narrowly mixed.

IBM posted one of the biggest gains in the electronics. Up more than 6 points at its best, it backed off later. Motorola and General Electric improved. Control Data was strong on a higher earnings report. Texas Instruments retreated.

Most oils were near Monday's close. Natomas jumped more than 4 points early in the day and then backed off. Jersey Standard traded in a narrow range most of the day. Most other issues were up fractions.

Dow and Eastman Kodak were the best performers among the chemicals. Du Pont moved higher during the midmorning surge fell back later.

Unveiling Tomorrow For First Store In Petaluma Shop Center

Petaluma's new Lucky Store, nucleus of the Town and Country Center under construction at Petaluma Boulevard North and West Payran Street, will open tomorrow morning.

This is the first store to be opened in the center. Ribbon cutting ceremonies will be held at 9:45 a.m. Architecture, covering some 27,000 square feet in the store, is traditionaly town and country styling, with tile roof and wide overhang.

Still to be constructed is an L-shaped wing of about 12,000 square feet for satellite shops.

Town and Country Center, which has been more than four years in the planning and construction stages is a project of Barstone Corp., headed by G. M. Stonitsch of Petaluma.

NEW OFFICES have been opened by Laurentide Finance Corp. at 227 Third Street, in the Montecito Shopping Center, San Rafael, moving away from 1403 Fourth Street — and closer to the Peacock Gap home of Laurentide president Roy L. Cook, who says he intends to keep a close watch on this branch's new open style format without the usual customers' booths. If it proves to be popular, other Laurentide offices will be similarly designed.

Manager of the San Rafael office is Charles Roof of San Anselmo. Other staff members are William Petigoe, assistant manager, and Patricia McIntyre, cashier.

Adams

Waltz

R. MICHAEL WALTZ of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant manager of Wells Fargo Bank's Sausalito office. Formerly credit officer at the Mill Valley office, he succeeds William Robeck, who has been assigned to San Rafael. Waltz joined Wells Fargo in 1966 and was named credit officer in 1967.

WILLIAM J. ADAMS of Novato, vice president and general counsel for Pacific National Life Assurance Co., San Francisco, has been elected president of Pace Securities, a wholly-owned subisidary which will be active in mutual funds. He has been with Pacific National since 1961.

SAM AND ROSE JANKO, who opened Janko Upholstery Shop at 570 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, last March, have already started to expand.

They have opened a second shop, primarily a workshop, at 1501 San Anselmo Avenue at Center Boulevard. The Jankos started with two employees and now have four between the two locations.

OUR RECENT ARTICLE on the removal of painting contractor Robert V. Kunst's headquarters from 32 Lisbon Street, San Rafael, to a new office, warehouse and retail store at 4184 Redwood Highway seems to have caused some confusion.

He has no connection with the painting contracting firm of Kunst Bros., Inc., whose principals are John R. and Charles T. Kunst. This is still located at 76 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. Same family — but another business entirely.

POTLATCH FORESTS, INC., in a headquarters reorganization at San Francisco, has promoted two Marin residents:

William D. Chandler of Mill Valley, formerly a planning analyst, is now director of corporate planning and reports to the office of the president.

George E. Pfautsch of Terra Linda, formerly a financial analyst, is now acting as assistant treasurer. Reporting to him are the general credit manager, insurance manager, cashier, financial analyst and international financial specialist.

Dividend Dropped

MACON, Ga. (UPI) — Bibb Manufacturing Co. has announced it is omitting the dividend for the third quarter in view of the company's $523,000 loss for the second quarter.

BUY WORD

The regular editor of this column is on vacation so we thought you might be interested in these words from one of our home economists.

ABOUT CHICKENS . . .

Buy whole and baked . . . stuffed or not. Baste with wine, butter, mushroom sauce, Italian herbs, tomato sauce or whatever. Buy whole and save by cutting up your own way. Chicken meat makes good sandwiches. Bones make good broth. Bone the breasts, roll and collect in the freezer for a special gourmet dinner in good sauce or stuffed. And all the rest, which is quite a bit, can be used in many delicious recipes from all over the world. Browse through our CO-OP LOW COST COOKBOOK.

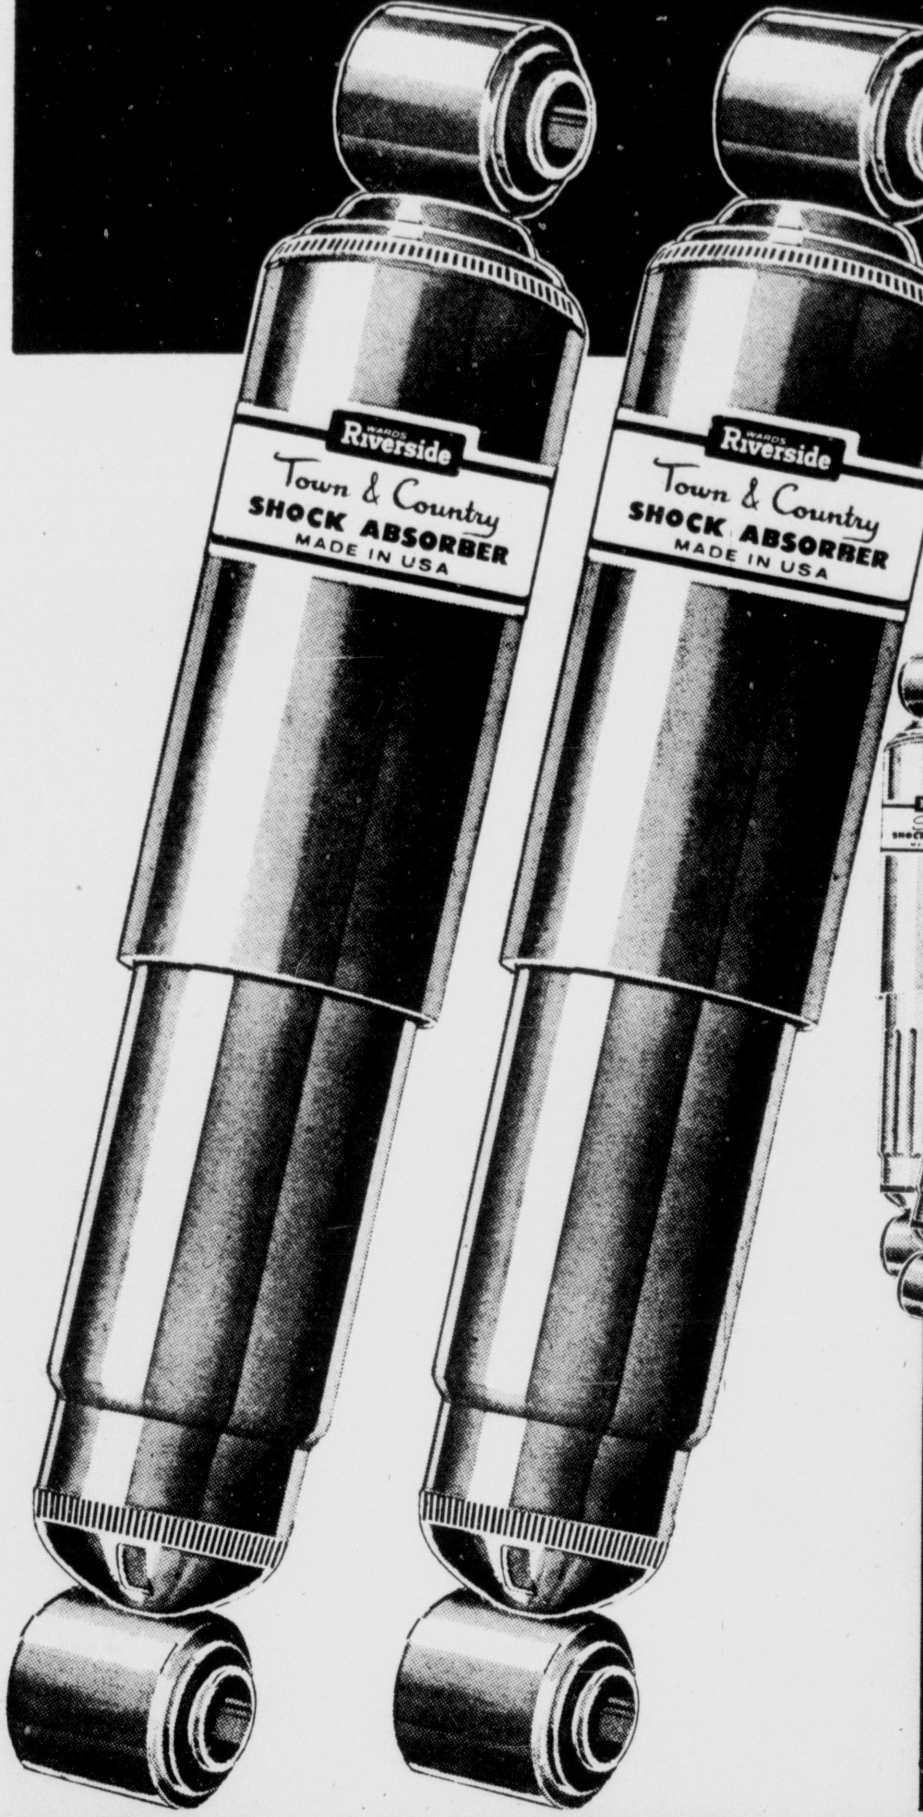
TOWN & COUNTRY SHOCKS ARE 3 WAYS BETTER...

THAN OTHER HEAVY DUTY SHOCKS:

1. Shock efficiency is increased to top performance for life of shocks by anti-foaming baffle coil.
2. Fluid loss, main cause of shock failure, is eliminated by multi-lip rod seal with 8 wiping edges.
3. Passengers and vital car parts are protected from jolts and bounces by progressive valving action.



REG. 14.98 A PAIR

Good shocks keep your tires on the road. Town & Country shocks do just that—you retain full steering control for greater safety. They're designed to give a more comfortable, more controlled ride on rough country roads, a safer ride on highways.
